Mideast peace expected: Carter

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—President Carter Sunday said the United States expects Israel to honor its agreements to withdraw from all occupied Arab territories in exchange for peace.

He also said United States policy will not be affected by the change in leadership in Tel Aviv, and warned that failure to reach a Middle East peace settlement could result in an international "disaster."

It was the strongest statement the President has made on the Mideast since the right wing Likud Party won a plurality in Israeli elections last week.

LIKUD PARTY LEADER Menahem Begin, who is expected to become Israeli prime minister next month, repeatedly has said Israel must keep all the occupied West Bank of the Jordan, which it captured in the 1967 Middle East war.

The Labor government which lost power in last week's election had agreed to United Nations Resolution 242, which calls for return of the occupied territories to the Arabs in return for peace.

Carter's remarks were included in a major foreign policy speech to the University of Notre Dame graduating class.

A SENIOR WHITE HOUSE aide said the purpose of the speech was to lay out the President's basic vision of America's position in a changing world and "also to send some messages to some foreign governments."

Asked if the Middle East references were aimed at Begin, the aide's first response was "If you wish to say so."

But he then backed off, noting that Begin does not yet head a government and at one point said, "I wouldn't say its a signal to Begin."

Carter said in the speech the friendship between Israel and the United States will not be changed by "domestic politics" in either country.

"OUR OWN POLICY will not be affected by changes in leadership in any of the countries in the Midle East," he said. "Therefore, we expect Israel and her neighbors to continue to be bound by U.N. Resolutions 242 and 338, which they have previously accepted."

Resolution 338 calls for Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist as a state.

Carter said this may be the best time for a Middle East settlement since the conflict began and warned, "To let this opportunity pass could be disaster, not only for the Middle East, but perhaps for the international political and economic order."

IN HIS SPEECH, Carter also called for a change in American foreign policy, which he said is based on an outdated world situation.

Carter said that since World War II, the United States has helped build the United Nations, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the World Bank

2 new trustees balance board in yeas, nays

by BILL HILL

The faces may have changed, but the philosophical makeup of the Arlington Heights Village Board appears to have remained intact despite the arrival of two new trustees.

The problems and issues facing the board probably will be handled much the same as if Richard Durava and David Griffin had not left to make way for newly-elected trustees Martin Cawley and Ralph Clarbour.

"It's really ironic that we have almost the same makeup on the board," said Griffin, who served with Durava as a trustee for four years. "Ralph sort of replaces Dick and Marty sort of replaces me."

CAWLEY AND CLARBOUR agree with that assessment.

Clarbour said he follows a conservative philosophy, similar to Durava's, and Cawley calls himself "close philosophically" with Griffin, except for business rulings. "I'd tend to be more restrictive on them," he said.

Policies of the old board, often wrought with 5-4 and 6-3 votes, should be safe from reversal with the new board because Cawley and Clarbour figure to cancel each other's vote.

Clarbour said he expects to be on the losing end of major votes often, just as Durava usually was on such annual controversies as the village's participation in the U.S. Housing and Community Development program and the village's financing of social service programs.

THE VILLAGE'S acceptance of the federal community development grants, totaling $453,000 in the past two years, and the program's requirement that the village file a housing assistance plan were the "main provocations" for Clarbour's candidacy this spring.

"My feelings on those things are that those monies should be spent where the problem really exists. You're not going to correct a housing problem in the core area of Chicago by spending money in Arlington Heights," he said.

"We're not going to get enough money out of these to afford the attorneys' fees. We are going to be sued by civil rights groups the minute Arlington Heights spends the money," Clarbour said.

CLARBOUR SAID he doesn't expect the village to meet the goals of its

And they're off in the Des Plaines River canoe race!

Deep or shallow, 2,000 canoeists paddle onward

About 2,000 intrepid paddlers armed with lots of muscle turned out Sunday for the 20th annual Des Plaines River Canoe Race.

With temperatures hovering around 90 degrees for the seventh straight day, racers from throughout the Midwest dropped about 1,000 canoes into the river near Libertyville at 8 a.m.

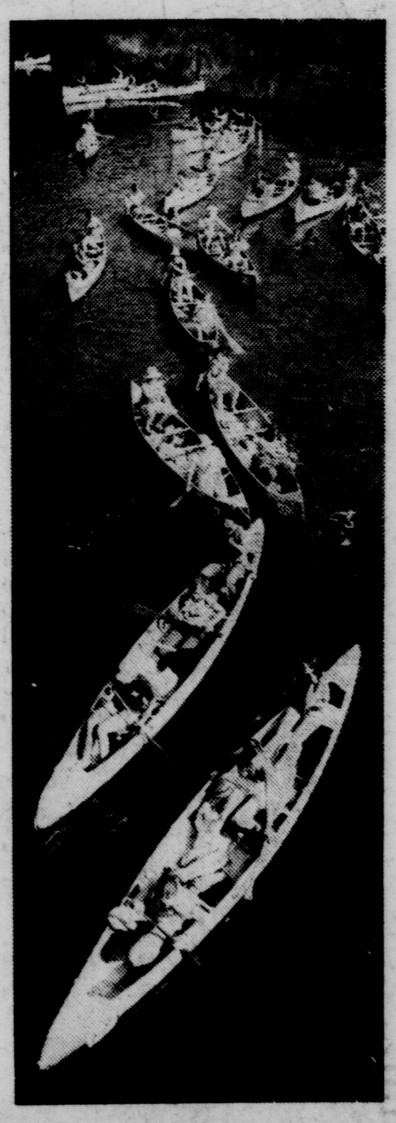

For some racers, however, it wasn't all "smooth sailing." The river was too shallow in parts, forcing some canoeists to portage their crafts.

But with sheer strength and determination, the canoeists made it through the river's waters for 19 miles to the end of the race near Dam No. 2 in Des Plaines.

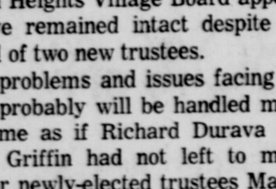

The race was sponsored by the Illinois Paddling Council and the Cook and Lake County forest preserve districts.

The top four finishers in 21 classes received awards for their day's work.

Little relief as sun sizzler to continue

Northwest suburban residents found little relief from the sizzling temperatures Sunday as the thermometer melted the 90-degree mark for the seventh consecutive day, setting a new record for the month of May, National Weather Service officials said.

The thermometer boiled up to the 93-degree level Sunday, breaking the old record for May of six consecutive 90-plus degree days set in 1962, a National Weather Service spokesman said.

"We also predict that this month we'll also set a new record for the number of 90 degree plus days," he said. "We expect anywhere from eight to 10 days of 90-degree temperatures (in May)."

This week's weather probably will be very similar to last week's. The high today is expected to reach "only" 87.

But sizzling temperatures are expected to return Tuesday with the mercury expected to rise over

Is the teacher more disciplinarian than educator?

An eighth grade student is about to present a report.

As he walks to the front of the room, a wad of paper sails through the air, hitting another student and capturing the attention of the class.

Whispers, laughter and catcalls, some of them obscene, spread around the room, One boy knocks his desk into the girl in front of him. It causes a chain reaction down the row.

ANOTHER BOY punches the student next to him and grabs his books.

It's the Northwest suburban version of "Blackboard Jungle."

Teachers have long complained that education is taking a back seat to discipline in junior high schools.

While there may be more serious concerns in junior high than kids throwing spitballs, punching other students and flouting a teacher's authority, discipline problems like these are constant, irritating and, often, serious obstacles to teachers teaching and kids learning.

IN A RECENT survey by the National Education Assn., a nationwide teachers union, teachers named classroom disruption as one of their biggest problems.

"It would be nice to be a teacher and just be able to teach. Unfortunately, you have to stop and do a lot of disciplining," said Honey Saltzman, a teacher at Cooper Junior High in Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Saltzman said kids' antics cause a lot of interruptions. They talk out of turn, pass notes, bother other students by poking them or writing on their back, leave their desks and wander around. More serious problems are throwing things and talking back, she said.

The teacher then has to take time out to quiet the disruptive child, tell him to sit down or to stop doing whatever is causing problems, all of which causes further disruption.

TEACHERS ARE expected to handle these types of problems themselves. More serious cases are referred to the principal and, possibly, to a police counselor.

And, although local teachers say they don't fear walking the halls, as do many of their inner-city counterparts, suburban junior highs have their share of serious discipline problems and even violence.

Dennis Hogy, police counselor for Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, said two junior high kids were charged last year with aggravated assault for threatening to beat a teacher with a

Plane crashes near Fox River; 1 dead

A 50-year-old St. Charles man was killed Sunday when his plane plunged into the Fox River one mile north of I-90 just east of Elgin Airport. Kane County Sheriff's officers identified the victim as Gordon Irving, who was pronounced dead at the scene. Authorities said Irving, a student pilot, had taken off in his single engine Cessna 150 from Aurora for a trip to Janesville, Wis. and then to Crystal Lake. The trip was required for a flying license. He had made several attempts to land at Elgin before his plane stalled and spun into the river. Early indications were that wind gusts of 35 miles per hour interfered with attempts to land.

Purchase of airport criticized

A team of financial experts has criticized a consultants' study recommending the Village of Schaumburg purchase and improve a private airport at the west end of the village. The group has questioned a $42,000 per acre suggested purchase price for the 120-acre field at Wright Boulevard and Irving Park Road and the omission of the airport's financial history in the $56,000 federally funded report. The experts include Robert Starzyk, of Schaumburg, controller of Stan-Ray Corp., Chicago; John Schlesser of Elmhurst, financial director of Union Oil Corp., Schaumburg; and Donald Torisky of Schaumburg, financial vice president of Borg-Warner Acceptance Corp. The team has been asked by Village Pres. Raymond Kessell to study the airport proposal and make a recommendation expected to help village board members decide if they will purchase the field.

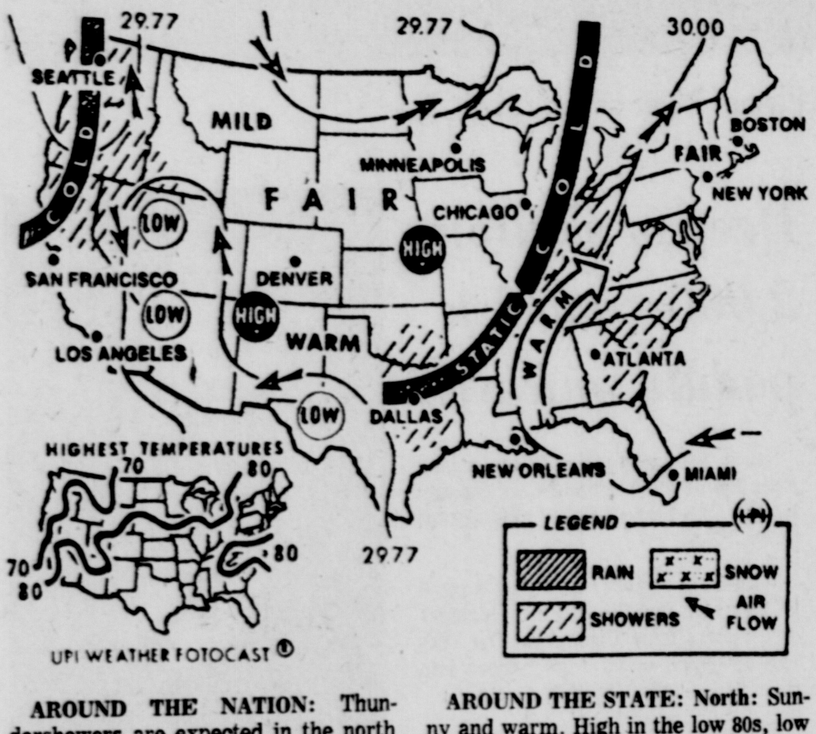

Teamsters to make bid tonight

Teamster Union officials tonight will ask Palatine Village Board to reconsider its decision to deny recognition to the union. William Hogan, president of Local 714 which is seeking to represent patrolmen and public works employes, said he will attend tonight's meeting to speak to the board. "We'll ask them to reconsider and appeal to them to investigate every avenue before they close off all their options," Hogan said. The board has twice rejected Teamster bids for recognition on behalf of patrolmen and public works employes. Village Pres. Robert J. Guss said the union officials will be welcome at the board meeting, but the board will not change its position. "They have our answer," Guss said.

Bucky Fuller says he can do it

A new house for only $5,000?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Architect Buckminister Fuller says that despite escalating home prices he can build a house for $5,000 and it will be so light he can deliver it to your door.

Fuller, 81, inventor of the gedesic dome, says the trouble with economists who estimate the current cost of the average American home at more than $52,000 is that they "don't know anything about energy or technology."

"For instance," he said, "an economist doesn't know that his $52,000 house weighs 50 tons. I'll give you just as much house for $5,000 and I'll make it earthquake-proof and it will weigh only two tons, so I can hand-deliver it to your door.

"WHAT'S MORE, you can heat it with energy from the sun — or the wind," the famed architectural philosopher said in an interview.

"Look — the building (it's round) interrupts the wind, parts and comes together on the other side, creating a terrific low pressure area. You can use the suction to run an air turbine.

"The wind doesn't blow all the time, so you store the energy when it does. There are lots of ways of doing that: You can pump water up, let it run down through a water turbine, for instance."

Advocating bigger and better domed structures, Fuller said the larger they are the more efficiently they use heat, "so let's put a two-mile dome over Manhattan.

"The surface area of the buildings it would cover is 84 times the area of the dome. And New Yorkers would love it. The dome would save energy and the savings in snow removal costs alone would pay for it in 10 years."

But all the building won't matter soon anyway, he said.

"In 25 years, we won't need buildings. We'll be sheltered by an electromagnetic field."

Firm bubbles over on hot tub baths

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI)—Save both water and energy — invite a few friends over for a bath and a bottle of wine.

Hot Tub entrepreneur Day Chapin has gone into the business of building large wooden barrels accommodating up to 20 persons. They are filled with water heated to 100 to 120 degrees.

It's the latest quirk in an energy-short world in which experts predict drastically altered lifestyles as the crunch becomes more evident.

THE 30-YEAR-OLD Chapin, acquiring the hot tub fad during a trip last year to California, said 110 degrees was a good temperature for a quick bath in which heat reaches the bones.

But a temperature of about 104 degrees is "a good social temperature for friends and wine," he said.

"They're an alternative to swimming pools and a way of socializing," siad Chapin of his redwood vats, which sell for $1,000 to $2,600, depending on heat and filtration systems.

"A lot of people are seriusly shopping around and really getting down to it," Chapin said, adding that "hot tubbers don't have too many thoughts" about sex when sharing a bath with someone they find attractive.

"AS HE PUT IT: "At that high temperature, your energy is pretty much drawn inward and you're not in that state of mind."

But he said Public Service Company of Colorado employes had been diligently working above his canyon home for several weeks.

"It seems like every time some people come over for a hot tub, the work crew suddenly is up there working on the lines."

This town tills to any heart's desire

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill. (UPI)—With some federal help, this Wabash River community of 8,000 has a booming anti-inflation garden program and is getting rid of the dead wood in town.

Both programs are in their third year and Mayor Tommy Stroup says he receives all kinds of inquiries from groups and individuals in other towns.

Residents, by just picking up the telephone, can call the city and have a garden plot plowed or tilled without charge.

"LAST YEAR was our biggest year," said Stroup. "We prepared 400 gardens. We have only 265 this year but I think a lot of the people that we helped the first year or last year are doing their own. Tiller sales have gone up."

The gardens are of all sizes and descriptions.

"One group of six has a 3½ acre community garden project going and they even have started up a tree nursery," Stroup said.

Last year, Stroup said, the Christian Church had the city plow up four or five vacant lots around town, raised vegetables in the gardens and sold the produce. "They donated the proceeds to a world hunger program," he said.

NO GARDEN DIGGING request is too big or too small for the city to tackle.

One elderly couple wanted to grow six tomato plants. "So we took a tiller and plowed them a strip 18 inches wide by 6 feet long by their back steps," said Stroup.

The mayor doesn't grow a garden because he's given more produce than he can use.

"When the tomatoes and green beans start coming in, I start dodging because I don't want to hurt any feelings," he said. "There really is some fine stuff raised."

The city bought the tilling equipment with federal revenue sharing funds and received help first from the Office of Economic Opportunity and then from the Green Thumb program for the tilling work.

In a similar program, the city will cut down without charge any dead tree in town, wait for residents to take any of it for firewood and then haul away the brush. Stroup said the city felled some 50 dead trees last year.

90 degrees again. The heating trend should continue throughout the week.

Rain is not likely in the area this week, but the National Weather Service said there is a slim chance one or two showers may find their way into the Northwest suburbs.

Some Northwest suburban residents were without electrical power to run their air conditioners and fans.

Commonwealth Edison spokesmen said power lines were snapped by rain weakened trees that were blown down by high winds in south and west Palatine and parts of Rolling Meadows. Lines weer also reported down in Mount Prospect.

Spokesmen for the utility could not say how long the power was off or how many residences were affected.

Area communities have voiced fear that 90-degree plus weather may cause water shortages. Arlington Heights and Palatine said they will enforce sprinkling laws limiting sprinkling this weekend in an effort to reduce water use.

A spokesman for Arlington Heights said enforcement has been strict and so far is keeping water usage down.

No figures of the number of tickets issued were available Sunday.

But while sunbathers from Illinois to the Northeastern part of the nation basked in record high temperatures, tornados ripped through five Midwestern states during the weekend. Five twisters touched down in Nebraska Saturday.

Two tornados struck Minnesota while Kansas, Missouri, and South Dakota were each hit by one. No injuries or extensive damage was reported.

Thunderstorms rumbled across north and east central Alabama, ending a three-week drought that had stalled planting of the state's 1.6 million-acre soybean crop.

But rains failed to reach southwest Alabama where forestry officials said a continuation of the drought could turn their woods into tinderboxes.

Plane crashes near Fox River; 1 dead

A 50-year-old St. Charles man was killed Sunday when his plane plunged into the Fox River one mile north of I-90 just east of Elgin Airport. Kane County Sheriff's officers identified the victim as Gordon Irving, who was pronounced dead at the scene. Authorities said Irving, a student pilot, had taken off in his single engine Cessna 150 from Aurora for a trip to Janesville, Wis. and then to Crystal Lake. The trip was required for a flying license. He had made several attempts to land at Elgin before his plane stalled and spun into the river. Early indications were that wind gusts of 35 miles per hour interfered with attempts to land.

Purchase of airport criticized

A team of financial experts has criticized a consultants' study recommending the Village of Schaumburg purchase and improve a private airport at the west end of the village. The group has questioned a $42,000 per acre suggested purchase price for the 120-acre field at Wright Boulevard and Irving Park Road and the omission of the airport's financial history in the $56,000 federally funded report. The experts include Robert Starzyk, of Schaumburg, controller of Stan-Ray Corp., Chicago; John Schlesser of Elmhurst, financial director of Union Oil Corp., Schaumburg; and Donald Torisky of Schaumburg, financial vice president of Borg-Warner Acceptance Corp. The team has been asked by Village Pres. Raymond Kessell to study the airport proposal and make a recommendation expected to help village board members decide if they will purchase the field.

Teamsters to make bid tonight

Teamster Union officials tonight will ask Palatine Village Board to reconsider its decision to deny recognition to the union. William Hogan, president of Local 714 which is seeking to represent patrolmen and public works employes, said he will attend tonight's meeting to speak to the board. "We'll ask them to reconsider and appeal to them to investigate every avenue before they close off all their options," Hogan said. The board has twice rejected Teamster bids for recognition on behalf of patrolmen and public works employes. Village Pres. Robert J. Guss said the union officials will be welcome at the board meeting, but the board will not change its position. "They have our answer," Guss said.

Bucky Fuller says he can do it

A new house for only $5,000?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Architect Buckminister Fuller says that despite escalating home prices he can build a house for $5,000 and it will be so light he can deliver it to your door.

Fuller, 81, inventor of the gedesic dome, says the trouble with economists who estimate the current cost of the average American home at more than $52,000 is that they "don't know anything about energy or technology."

"For instance," he said, "an economist doesn't know that his $52,000 house weighs 50 tons. I'll give you just as much house for $5,000 and I'll make it earthquake-proof and it will weigh only two tons, so I can hand-deliver it to your door.

"WHAT'S MORE, you can heat it with energy from the sun — or the wind," the famed architectural philosopher said in an interview.

"Look — the building (it's round) interrupts the wind, parts and comes together on the other side, creating a terrific low pressure area. You can use the suction to run an air turbine.

"The wind doesn't blow all the time, so you store the energy when it does. There are lots of ways of doing that: You can pump water up, let it run down through a water turbine, for instance."

Advocating bigger and better domed structures, Fuller said the larger they are the more efficiently they use heat, "so let's put a two-mile dome over Manhattan.

"The surface area of the buildings it would cover is 84 times the area of the dome. And New Yorkers would love it. The dome would save energy and the savings in snow removal costs alone would pay for it in 10 years."

But all the building won't matter soon anyway, he said.

"In 25 years, we won't need buildings. We'll be sheltered by an electromagnetic field."

Firm bubbles over on hot tub baths

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI)—Save both water and energy — invite a few friends over for a bath and a bottle of wine.

Hot Tub entrepreneur Day Chapin has gone into the business of building large wooden barrels accommodating up to 20 persons. They are filled with water heated to 100 to 120 degrees.

It's the latest quirk in an energy-short world in which experts predict drastically altered lifestyles as the crunch becomes more evident.

THE 30-YEAR-OLD Chapin, acquiring the hot tub fad during a trip last year to California, said 110 degrees was a good temperature for a quick bath in which heat reaches the bones.

But a temperature of about 104 degrees is "a good social temperature for friends and wine," he said.

"They're an alternative to swimming pools and a way of socializing," siad Chapin of his redwood vats, which sell for $1,000 to $2,600, depending on heat and filtration systems.

"A lot of people are seriusly shopping around and really getting down to it," Chapin said, adding that "hot tubbers don't have too many thoughts" about sex when sharing a bath with someone they find attractive.

"AS HE PUT IT: "At that high temperature, your energy is pretty much drawn inward and you're not in that state of mind."

But he said Public Service Company of Colorado employes had been diligently working above his canyon home for several weeks.

"It seems like every time some people come over for a hot tub, the work crew suddenly is up there working on the lines."

This town tills to any heart's desire

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill. (UPI)—With some federal help, this Wabash River community of 8,000 has a booming anti-inflation garden program and is getting rid of the dead wood in town.

Both programs are in their third year and Mayor Tommy Stroup says he receives all kinds of inquiries from groups and individuals in other towns.

Residents, by just picking up the telephone, can call the city and have a garden plot plowed or tilled without charge.

"LAST YEAR was our biggest year," said Stroup. "We prepared 400 gardens. We have only 265 this year but I think a lot of the people that we helped the first year or last year are doing their own. Tiller sales have gone up."

The gardens are of all sizes and descriptions.

"One group of six has a 3½ acre community garden project going and they even have started up a tree nursery," Stroup said.

Last year, Stroup said, the Christian Church had the city plow up four or five vacant lots around town, raised vegetables in the gardens and sold the produce. "They donated the proceeds to a world hunger program," he said.

NO GARDEN DIGGING request is too big or too small for the city to tackle.

One elderly couple wanted to grow six tomato plants. "So we took a tiller and plowed them a strip 18 inches wide by 6 feet long by their back steps," said Stroup.

The mayor doesn't grow a garden because he's given more produce than he can use.

"When the tomatoes and green beans start coming in, I start dodging because I don't want to hurt any feelings," he said. "There really is some fine stuff raised."

The city bought the tilling equipment with federal revenue sharing funds and received help first from the Office of Economic Opportunity and then from the Green Thumb program for the tilling work.

In a similar program, the city will cut down without charge any dead tree in town, wait for residents to take any of it for firewood and then haul away the brush. Stroup said the city felled some 50 dead trees last year.

90 degrees again. The heating trend should continue throughout the week.

Rain is not likely in the area this week, but the National Weather Service said there is a slim chance one or two showers may find their way into the Northwest suburbs.

Some Northwest suburban residents were without electrical power to run their air conditioners and fans.

Commonwealth Edison spokesmen said power lines were snapped by rain weakened trees that were blown down by high winds in south and west Palatine and parts of Rolling Meadows. Lines weer also reported down in Mount Prospect.

Spokesmen for the utility could not say how long the power was off or how many residences were affected.

Area communities have voiced fear that 90-degree plus weather may cause water shortages. Arlington Heights and Palatine said they will enforce sprinkling laws limiting sprinkling this weekend in an effort to reduce water use.

A spokesman for Arlington Heights said enforcement has been strict and so far is keeping water usage down.

No figures of the number of tickets issued were available Sunday.

But while sunbathers from Illinois to the Northeastern part of the nation basked in record high temperatures, tornados ripped through five Midwestern states during the weekend. Five twisters touched down in Nebraska Saturday.

Two tornados struck Minnesota while Kansas, Missouri, and South Dakota were each hit by one. No injuries or extensive damage was reported.

Thunderstorms rumbled across north and east central Alabama, ending a three-week drought that had stalled planting of the state's 1.6 million-acre soybean crop.

But rains failed to reach southwest Alabama where forestry officials said a continuation of the drought could turn their woods into tinderboxes.

CAPTAIN RALPH BISHOP of the Park Ridge Fire Dept. consoles Donald Kurowski after the body of his 19-year-old son, Jeff, was pulled from Axehead Lake, Park Ridge Saturday.

Judge says all kids should visit prison

A Cook County Circuit Court judge has called for mandatory state prison visits for all elementary school students so they "know the feeling of losing their freedom" before they commit a crime.

The prison visit plan was suggested by Judge Robert L. Sklodowski of Northbrook during a breakfast meeting sponsored by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, in Park Ridge.

Sklodowski said the program should be for all students. He said that some parents might be upset over the idea of their children being exposed to conditions in state prisons, but added the visits should be mandatory.

The judge's comments came after a number of area residents complained that several segments of the court system are ineffective.

He also suggested the prison visits might be required for persons given supervision for commiting an offense and juveniles convicted of a crime.

Sklodowski and Assistant State's Atty. Bill Kunkle both said they are opposed to flat-time sentencing legislation being considered in the Illinois General Assembly.

Both men contended the determiment sentencing policy would strip judges of the ability to order a sentence that would fit the crime.

The legislation being considered would require judges to impose a certain sentence for a specific crime and eliminate the meting out of harsher or less severe punishments based on the facts of the case. The legislation also would block chances of early parole for those convicted.

The breakfast meeting was the fourth in a series sponsored by Schlickman. The lawmaker was unable to attend this session because the Illinois House was working in Springfield on Saturday.

Woman's faith in God and the Bible thwarts rapist

DETROIT (UPI) — A tiny woman who thwarted a rape attempt by quoting the Bible to her assailant says her experience proved such crimes could be prevented if more children went to Sunday School.

Florence Moffett, 47, was sleeping in the bedroom of her east side apartment early Saturday when a man crawled through the window.

Mrs. Moffett, who lives alone, screamed and bit his finger during a struggle that ended with a demand for money. She came up with $2.

"He got mad about that and then said he wanted my body," Mrs. Moffett said. "But I told him I could give my body to no man because I had given my life and my body to the Lord."

THE FIVE-FOOT-TALL woman then stunned her assailant by demanding that he allow her to read from the Bible lying on her nightstand. As she reached for it, she fired the first quote that came to her mind — "The wages of sin is death."

They discussed religion a few minutes, and eventually he agreed to leave. As he walked out the apartment's front door he put the $2 down, but "he said he really needed it, so I let him take it."

Mrs. Moffett then called her landlady, who called police. No suspect had been arrested by Sunday.

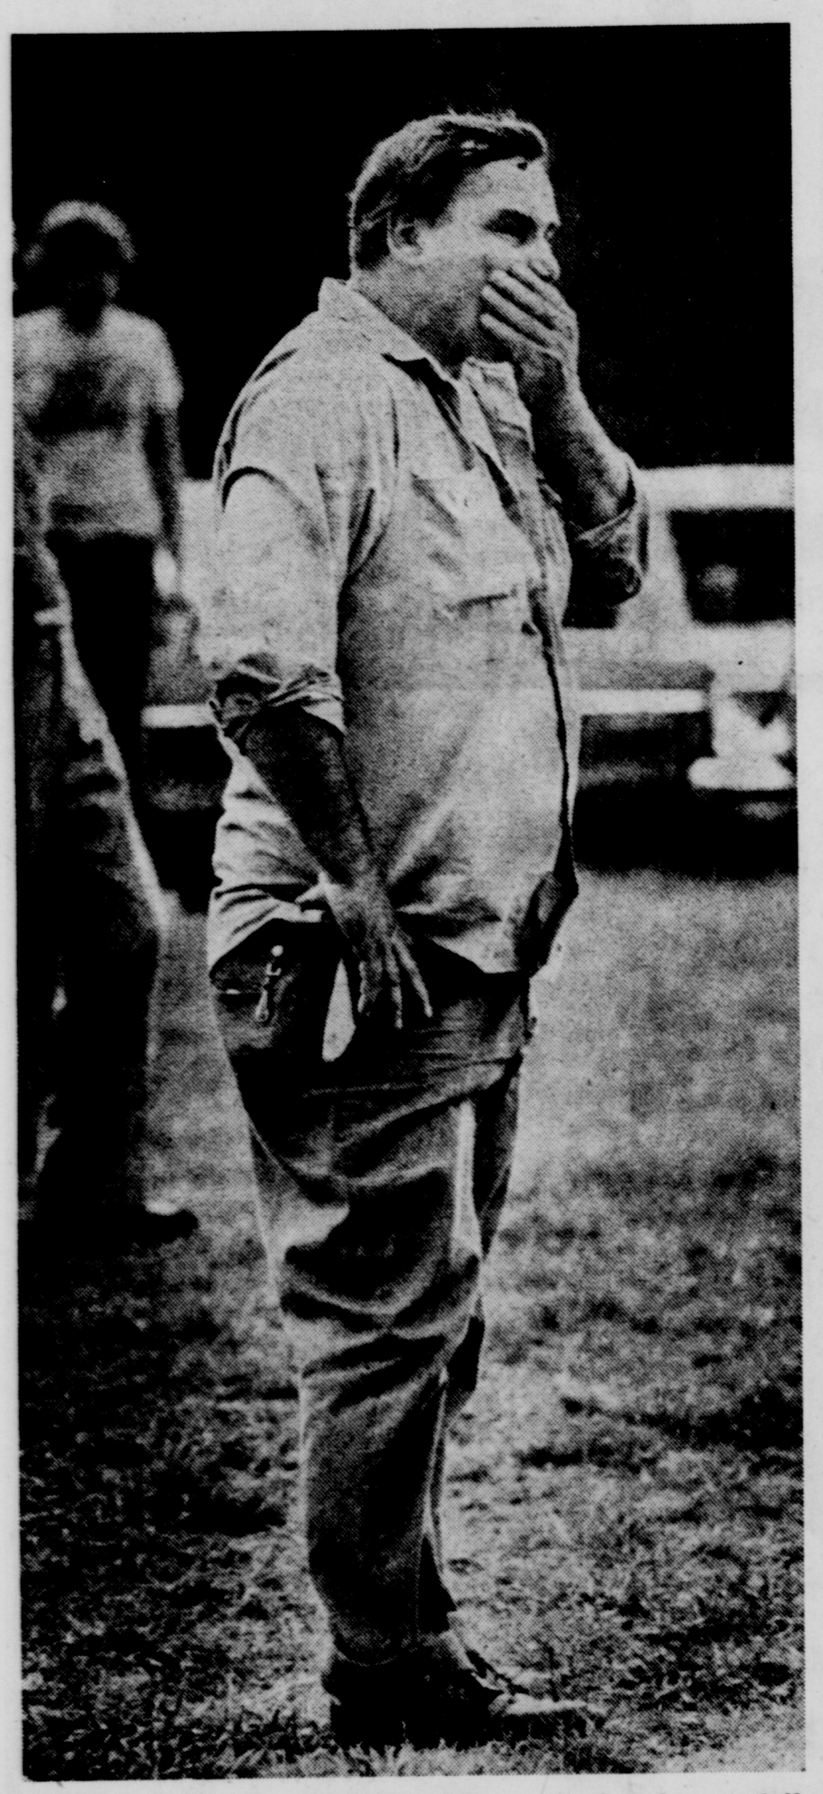

During her 10-minute sermon, Mrs. Moffett, who teaches weekly Bible classes, learned her assailant had attended Sunday school as a child.

"THIS STRENGTHENS my firm belief that children should go to Sunday school," she said. "It gives them something for later in life. For a person not knowing anything about God, it wouldn't have meant a thing.

"But he stood there and listened. I hope and pray this changes his life and he'll never hurt anyone again."

She said the incident also strengthened her own faith and she sees no reason to move to a safer neighborhood.

"When you give yourself to the Lord there's always danger," she said. "But this let me know beyond a doubt that when Jesus said He is with us always, He is. It wasn't my strength that saved me, it was His."

STANDING IN the rain, Donald Kurowski worries about his son, Jeff, who fell through an innertube and went under water in Axehead Lake, Iroquois Woods, Park Ridge. Fire department scuba divers later pulled Kurowski's body from the water.

Man ignores warning signs, drowns in lake

Jeff Kurowski's 20th birhday was Sunday. But there was no celebration.

Saturday afternoon, his friends and relatives watched as scuba divers from area fire departments recovered his body from Axehead Lake in Iroquois Woods near Park Ridge.

Jeff, 19, of 2738 W. Nelson St., Chicago, and his cousin, Robert Kurowski, 20, of 3127 Bernard, Chicago, were attending a party near the lake with about 15 friends.

AFTER A picnic lunch, they both went for a swim in the lake, which is posted with no swimming signs. Jeff was in an inner tube about 100 feet offshore.

"Jeff lost control of the inner tube and he went under," said Jim Peterson of Chicago, who was at the lake. "Then his girl friend started yelling 'He's going down!' "

His cousin tried desperately to help him, but nearly drowned in the process, authorities said. The lake is 60-feet deep in some parts.

"I jumped in," Roger Overbee, a friend visiting from Kentucky, said. "A lot of us jumped in. Two of the guys pulled Bob and brought him close to shore. They couldn't hold onto him, because he was pulling them down. So I jumped in and put the inner tube around him and pulled him in."

ROBERT WAS rushed to Lutheran General Hospital where he was listed in good condition Sunday and was expected to be released soon, officials said.

Scuba divers from Mount Prospect, Glenbrook, Rosemont, Elk Grove Village and Park Ridge spent Saturday afternoon battling bad weather and a swift current searching for Jeff.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at Lutheran General Hospital at 4:25 p.m. Saturday.

Only an hour after rescue teams rushed to Iroquois Woods, another Chicago resident, 17-year-old Michael Renick, 4439 S. Fairfield, drowned while swimming in Bullfrog Lake in Palos Township. He was pronounced dead on arrival in a nearby hospital at 7:06 p.m. Saturday.

Mondale sees progress in Rhodesia situation

LONDON (UPI)—Vice President Walter Mondale said Sunday he believes he made "significant progress" toward Rhodesian black majority rule in 1978 by winning the support of South African Prime Minister John Vorster.

"Rhodesia is one area where we may have made significant progress," Mondale told reporters at Winfield House, residence of the U.S. Ambassador.

"I think we did make some progress. The Vorster government agreed in the language I recited at the (Vienna) news conferknce to a con-(Vienna) news conference to a consaid. "And I think that is a very hopeful development."

U.S. OFFICIALS in Mondale's party believe the Vorster commitment to support a black-ruled Rhodesia in 1978 is significant because South Africa said previously it would only support agreement that Rhodisian Prime Minister Ian Smith accepted.

"That is a new formulation for him and I think it is progress," Mondale said.

Mondale met with reporters before conferring with Denis Healey, Chancellor of the Exchequer. He was traveling to Chequers, country residence of British Prime Ministers, to dine with Prime Minister James Callaghan.

Mondale was also optimistic about the possibility of holding U.S.-supervised elections in South West Africa — the territory controlled by South Africa and known by nationalists as Namibia.

"THERE ARE A LOT of pieces in place now that could be helpful in bringing about a fairly prompt resolution of the Namibian matter if the interim authority issue can be resolved satisfactorily, and return of political prisoners permitted and some other details.

"I think that substantial progress could be made in Namibia," he said.

The South African government has agreed to meet with the United States, Britain, France, Canada and West Germany in Cape Town later this month to seek a resolution of that issue.

Mondale was less optmistic about influencing South Africa to drop its apartheid policy of rigid racial segregation.

Mideast chiefs clash on peace again

The winner of last week's Israeli elections said Sunday his determination to hold onto captured Arab territory will not harm relations with Washington "at all." Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Israeli policy had changed only "in appearance and not in substance" and said he was optimistic about peace.

But in a new war of words triggered by the stunning election victory of Israel's hawkish Likud bloc, an Egyptian newspaper said the Jewish state must either give up conquered land or fight a new war. A Palestinian leader accused America of wanting to "bring the Arab countries to their knees."

Likud leader Menahem Begin, who is expected to become Israel's new prime minister next month, said in an interview with the French magazine Express that his country never would give up the occupied West Bank of Jordan.

IN THE STRONGEST statement yet since the Likud party victory last week, President Carter said in South Bend, Ind. the United States expects Israel to honor its agreements to withdraw from occupied Arab territories in exchange for peace.

Carter also said United States policy will not be affected by the change in leadership in Tel Aviv, and warned that failure to reach a Middle East peace settlement could result in an international "disaster."

"The term 'Western Bank' doesn't mean anything," Begin said. "It is Judea-Samaria. It is Israeli land, which belongs to the Jewish people."

ASKED IF this policy might give rise to tensions with the United States, Begin replied: "Not at all. President Jimmy Carter announced in advance that he would invite the next head of the Israeli government to Washington . . .

"A community of interests exists between Israel and the United States. I hope things will be clearer after my meeting with President Carter."

But the Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram warned that Israel must choose between abandoning occupied Arab lands or fighting a new war.

"Those who occupy the government seats in Tel Aviv will have to face the difficult choice: either a just peace or war," the newspaper said.

THE EDITORIAL contrasted sharply with Sadat's almost cheerful outlook.

"Optimism is my second nature," Sadat told reporters in Alexandria following a meeting with West German opposition politician Franz Josef Strauss. "What happened in Israel is nothing new. It is not a change or (rather) it is a change in appearance and not in substance.

"I am still optimistic and I still urge the United States to play its role."

But a leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization in Beirut said the United States was trying "to bring the Arab countries to their knees and guarantee an uninterrupted supply of oil."

"We are convinced that the Arabs cannot achieve peace or go to war without the Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union," PLO information official Majed Abu Sharar said in the magazine.

"The prospects of war now outweigh the prospects of peace," he said.

"Rhodesia is one area where we may have made significant progress," Mondale told reporters at Winfield House, residence of the U.S. Ambassador.

"I think we did make some progress. The Vorster government agreed in the language I recited at the (Vienna) news conferknce to a con-(Vienna) news conference to a consaid. "And I think that is a very hopeful development."

U.S. OFFICIALS in Mondale's party believe the Vorster commitment to support a black-ruled Rhodesia in 1978 is significant because South Africa said previously it would only support agreement that Rhodisian Prime Minister Ian Smith accepted.

"That is a new formulation for him and I think it is progress," Mondale said.

Mondale met with reporters before conferring with Denis Healey, Chancellor of the Exchequer. He was traveling to Chequers, country residence of British Prime Ministers, to dine with Prime Minister James Callaghan.

Mondale was also optimistic about the possibility of holding U.S.-supervised elections in South West Africa — the territory controlled by South Africa and known by nationalists as Namibia.

"THERE ARE A LOT of pieces in place now that could be helpful in bringing about a fairly prompt resolution of the Namibian matter if the interim authority issue can be resolved satisfactorily, and return of political prisoners permitted and some other details.

"I think that substantial progress could be made in Namibia," he said.

The South African government has agreed to meet with the United States, Britain, France, Canada and West Germany in Cape Town later this month to seek a resolution of that issue.

Mondale was less optmistic about influencing South Africa to drop its apartheid policy of rigid racial segregation.

Mideast chiefs clash on peace again

The winner of last week's Israeli elections said Sunday his determination to hold onto captured Arab territory will not harm relations with Washington "at all." Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Israeli policy had changed only "in appearance and not in substance" and said he was optimistic about peace.

But in a new war of words triggered by the stunning election victory of Israel's hawkish Likud bloc, an Egyptian newspaper said the Jewish state must either give up conquered land or fight a new war. A Palestinian leader accused America of wanting to "bring the Arab countries to their knees."

Likud leader Menahem Begin, who is expected to become Israel's new prime minister next month, said in an interview with the French magazine Express that his country never would give up the occupied West Bank of Jordan.

IN THE STRONGEST statement yet since the Likud party victory last week, President Carter said in South Bend, Ind. the United States expects Israel to honor its agreements to withdraw from occupied Arab territories in exchange for peace.

Carter also said United States policy will not be affected by the change in leadership in Tel Aviv, and warned that failure to reach a Middle East peace settlement could result in an international "disaster."

"The term 'Western Bank' doesn't mean anything," Begin said. "It is Judea-Samaria. It is Israeli land, which belongs to the Jewish people."

ASKED IF this policy might give rise to tensions with the United States, Begin replied: "Not at all. President Jimmy Carter announced in advance that he would invite the next head of the Israeli government to Washington . . .

"A community of interests exists between Israel and the United States. I hope things will be clearer after my meeting with President Carter."

But the Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram warned that Israel must choose between abandoning occupied Arab lands or fighting a new war.

"Those who occupy the government seats in Tel Aviv will have to face the difficult choice: either a just peace or war," the newspaper said.

THE EDITORIAL contrasted sharply with Sadat's almost cheerful outlook.

"Optimism is my second nature," Sadat told reporters in Alexandria following a meeting with West German opposition politician Franz Josef Strauss. "What happened in Israel is nothing new. It is not a change or (rather) it is a change in appearance and not in substance.

"I am still optimistic and I still urge the United States to play its role."

But a leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization in Beirut said the United States was trying "to bring the Arab countries to their knees and guarantee an uninterrupted supply of oil."

"We are convinced that the Arabs cannot achieve peace or go to war without the Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union," PLO information official Majed Abu Sharar said in the magazine.

"The prospects of war now outweigh the prospects of peace," he said.

Family killing predictable: study

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Quarrels and threats usually give police considerable advance warning before people assault or kill relatives, friends or acquaintances, two police studies concluded Sunday.

The studies by the Detroit and Kansas City police departments indicated that police often had visited scenes where violence later occurred. In many cases there were advance threats.

In Kansas City, for example, police were summoned to the scene at least once during the preceding two years in 85 per cent of the domestic assaults and homicides studied, and at least five times in half the cases.

IN DETROIT, the report said, "53 out of 90 homicides involving family members were preceded by threats."

The report, sponsored by the Police Foundation, said more research is needed to show how police answering disturbance calls can avert tragedy instead of considering their job done when they quiet a disturbance.

The foundation, a nonprofit institution seeking improvement in police work, said "a conflict intervention training program that incorporates this knowledge should be developed for police departments."

THE REPORT SAID there are more cases than is commonly believed where "husbands kill unfaithful wives; friends kill friends who don't pay bets; sons kill fathers who come home drunk and beat their wives."

According to the FBI, about two-thirds of the 20,510 murders in 1975 were committed by relatives, friends or acquaintances of the victims. One-fourth involved members of one family.

Investigators in Kansas City compared reports of police calls to quell disturbances with later assaults or homicides involving the same persons.

THEY LISTED three factors that police can use to predict later violence: presence of a gun in the disturbance, 29.14 per cent; a history of previous disturbance, 11.43 per cent, and the presence of alcohol, 11.38 per cent.

The Detroit study said threats preceded 53 of 90 homicide cases involving members of the same family.

"More than for other crimes, the victim of homicide or aggravated assault often provokes the attack that ends in his injury or death," the report said.

"Of 144 assault victims interviewed, 81 indicated that they had been victims in previous conflict-motivated assaults" which were reported to police.

65 guns collected in 'Survival Days'

Two water pistols were among the modest 65 weapons turned in at Chicago area churches and synagogues Sunday as part of "Survival Day," the nationwide weekend gun roundup. Among the other weapons turned in were three loaded pistols, a sawed-off shotgun, and a turn-of-the-century handgun. Despite the small response, Estelle Jacobsen, head of the Chicago chapter of the National Committee for Handgun Control, declared the event a success. "That's 65 people who may not be shot now," she said. The committee for handgun control had sponsored the gun collection at 27 local houses of worship.

Agents of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were to have supervised receipt of the guns but the agency received last minute orders not to participate. The move prompted U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D- Il., to fire off an angry telegram to Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal. "The abruptness of the bureau's change of heart on this project leads me to wonder about the reasons behind the decision," Mikva wrote.

Sears, Easy drive break ties

Sears, Roebuck and Co. has announced it will break all ties with the Chicago-based Easy Method Driving School in 16 states by June 25. The independently-owned school, which was authorized to use the Sears name in 1972, has been accused of filing $1 million worth of fraudulent insurance claims involving personal injury and auto damage suits on behalf of students and teachers in traffic accidents during driving lessons. A Sears spokesman said the school was sent a 60-day termination notice in late April. Sears also has canceled another contract allowing Easy Method to operate the Sears Mobile Car Tune-Up Service in the Chicago and Milwaukee areas, the spokesman said.

Viet vet held in kicking death

A Vietnam War veteran has been ordered held without bond on charges he kicked to death a fellow patient in the Veterans Administration Hospital in North Chicago. Nils Thomas Nilsen, 26, a psychiatric patient in the hospital, was charged in the death of Gordon Uzelac, 56. A witness told the FBI she saw a man lying on a hall floor and another man kicking him. FBI agents said Uzelac had been kicked in the head.

Early morning fire kills 11 in Belgian tourist hotel

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — An early morning fire gutted an old, seven-story downtown hotel filled with tourists Sunday, killing a number of guests including several Britons. A score of others suffered injuries.

Police said 11 persons died in the fire that swept the Hotel Duc De Brabant near the North railroad station but only five bodies had been recovered as night fell on the charred skeleton of the building.

"The rescue workers can see the other six bodies" in the rubble, a police spokesman said. He said rescue efforts were stalled by danger the aging structure might collapse.

HE SAID at least five of the dead were part of a 48-member British tour party staying at the hotel Duc De Brabant.

"It's impossible to tell who the dead are yet . . . it's tragic," said one rescue worker.

It took firemen almost three hours to extinguish the blaze that started in one of the kitchens of the hotel, a series of buildings joined by labryinthine corridors.

Most of the 200 guests fled in their night clothes, some from upper-story windows on ropes made by knotting bedsheets together. Firemen rescued 40 other persons.

THE BRITONS were among 48 persons on a tour organized by Bee-Line Roadways International, a British travel company. Their bus driver was among the missing.

Several other guests said fire precautions in the building were inadequate but hotel manager Henri Van der Goten said the hotel conformed to fire regulations and had an electronic fire warning system.

Mrs. Edith Givanovich, who raised the alarm, said she tried to telephone the receptionist "but there was no answer."

She shouted to alert other guests and ran down the fourth floor corridor of the hotel knocking on doors.

The blaze was the worst in Belgium since New Year's Day 1976 when 14 young people died in a fire at a discotheque in the small town of La Louviere.

The Duc de Brabant is half a block from the Innovation department store where 250 persons died in a fire 10 years ago Sunday.

and the International Monetary Fund.

"That system could not last forever unchanged," Carter said. "It is a new world that calls for a new American foreign policy."

"We can no longer have a policy solely for the industrial nations as the foundation of global stability, but we must continue — confidently — our efforts to inspire, and to persuade, and to lead," he said.

"OUR POLICY must shape an international system that will last longer than secret deals," he said.

Carter said the United States must try to improve relations with the Soviet Union and China.

"Our policy must encourage all countries to rise above the narrow national interests and work together to solve . . . formidable global problems," he said.

The President said past United States policy was guided by the principles that Soviet expansion must be contained and "the corresponding belief in the importance of an almost exclusive alliance among non-communist nations on both sides of the Atlantic."

Now the situation is changed, he said and "historical trends" have weakened the foundation of that policy.

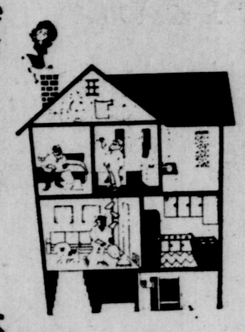

"BEING CONFIDENT of our own future, we are now free of that inordinate fear of communism which once led us to embrace any dictator who joined us in our fear," the President said.

"For too many years we have been willing to adopt the flawed principles and tactics of our adversaries, sometimes abandoning our values for theirs," he said.

Carter also said he believes in detente with Moscow, but there must be accomodations on both sides.

X-rated fare gone, protest still set

Rolling Meadows pornography protesters may have to go to Springfield to get a law banning X-rated films from the city, but they're already seeing results on the marquee of the Meadows Theatre.

Even before Ald. Lorraine Godawa, 1st, and the ministers of five churches began to organize their petition drive, the theater owner substituted two PG-rated thrillers for his usual X-rated fare.

When the campaign begins next week with a Thursday night rally at Rolling Meadows High School, the downtown theater will be showing two first-run films "Fun with Dick and Jane" and the highly acclaimed "Taxi Driver."

AND WHEN THE five ministers deliver sermons on pornography on June 5, the theater will be showing Art Carney's "The Late Show."

Theater owner Stanford Kohlberg complains attendance has dropped since the X-rated films left town, but manager Ernie Johnson expects the anti-pornography campaign to "fizzle-out."

"These are all first-run films," he says. "We're not even showing racy R's anymore, so they've got nothing to complain about."

MRS. GODAWA disagrees.

"That's not going to hurt at all," she says. "We know why all of a sudden he's switching. I hope they will run scared. The more he can feel the pressure, the more he's going to conform."

But things are not going so well on the legal front, she says. The petitions that will make the rounds this week call for an ordinance "banning both X-rated movies and adult book stores in Rolling Meadows."

But City Atty. Donald Rose "is discouraging me about an ordinance," Mrs. Godawa says. "We may need to get a state law. All the legislators have told me that this is one of the hardest things to fight."

BY JUNE 10, Mrs. Godawa says she hopes to have 4,000 to 5,000 signatures on the petitions that will "turn some judges' heads, turn some lawyers' heads and help us get what the people really want."

She's enlisted the help of church organizations, the Women's Clubs, the Girl Scouts and PTAs. "You couldn't get a better crosssection of the opinions of the town," she says.

Arlington Heights park commissioners tonight will review the tentative $1.4 million general operating budget for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at the park district offices, 800 E. Falcon Dr.

The proposed budget is 28 per cent more than the 1976-77 budget of $1.13 million and includes an expected 7 per cent increase in tax revenue because of increased property valuation.

The budget will be adopted following a public hearing June 27.

2 new trustees keep board on balance housing assistance plan, which calls for the development of 90 units of subsidized housing in the village in each of the next three years.

"Only one or two of the board members are committed enough morally to implement the housing assistance plan. The financial decision totally overrode the moral decisions of that act," Clarbour said.

But Clarbour said the village board is not apt to drop out of the community development program, unless Cawley and one other trustee reverses positions. The past two years the board has voted 5-3 to apply for the federal funds.

CAWLEY, AT THIS TIME, supports the village's involvement in the federal program. "Low-income housing is needed. I don't like the fear that is being built up about it," he said.

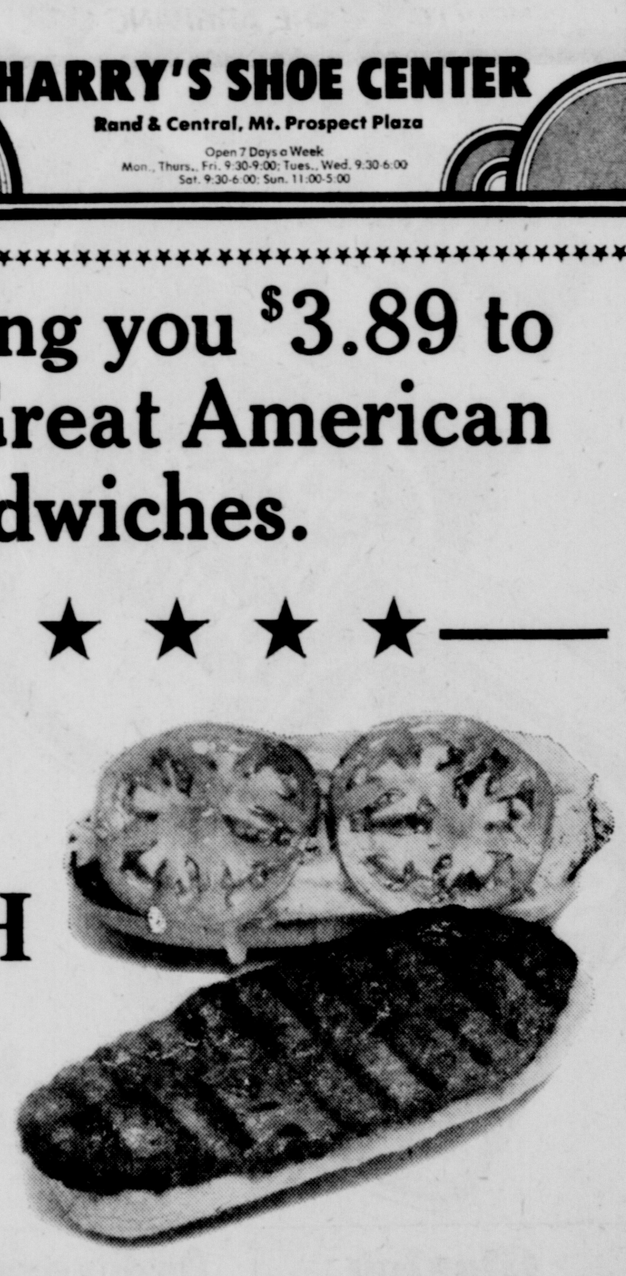

Clarbour also figures to fill Durava's place as an adamant opponent to the village's financing of social service programs. He is more likely to gain majority support from other trustees in this area as it becomes more difficult to balance the village's budget.

"I think the taxpayers are willing to pay their fair share to take care of the services they want, but with the increase of government costs, the fringe services the village is getting involved in are getting to be a burden on the taxpayers," Clarbour said.

"I'm not saying social services shouldn't be provided, but these services should not be duplicated," he said.

During the month of June we will be conducting a workshop program on Tuesday evenings.

X-rated fare gone, protest still set

Rolling Meadows pornography protesters may have to go to Springfield to get a law banning X-rated films from the city, but they're already seeing results on the marquee of the Meadows Theatre.

Even before Ald. Lorraine Godawa, 1st, and the ministers of five churches began to organize their petition drive, the theater owner substituted two PG-rated thrillers for his usual X-rated fare.

When the campaign begins next week with a Thursday night rally at Rolling Meadows High School, the downtown theater will be showing two first-run films "Fun with Dick and Jane" and the highly acclaimed "Taxi Driver."

AND WHEN THE five ministers deliver sermons on pornography on June 5, the theater will be showing Art Carney's "The Late Show."

Theater owner Stanford Kohlberg complains attendance has dropped since the X-rated films left town, but manager Ernie Johnson expects the anti-pornography campaign to "fizzle-out."

"These are all first-run films," he says. "We're not even showing racy R's anymore, so they've got nothing to complain about."

MRS. GODAWA disagrees.

"That's not going to hurt at all," she says. "We know why all of a sudden he's switching. I hope they will run scared. The more he can feel the pressure, the more he's going to conform."

But things are not going so well on the legal front, she says. The petitions that will make the rounds this week call for an ordinance "banning both X-rated movies and adult book stores in Rolling Meadows."

But City Atty. Donald Rose "is discouraging me about an ordinance," Mrs. Godawa says. "We may need to get a state law. All the legislators have told me that this is one of the hardest things to fight."

BY JUNE 10, Mrs. Godawa says she hopes to have 4,000 to 5,000 signatures on the petitions that will "turn some judges' heads, turn some lawyers' heads and help us get what the people really want."

She's enlisted the help of church organizations, the Women's Clubs, the Girl Scouts and PTAs. "You couldn't get a better crosssection of the opinions of the town," she says.

The coin-operated machine analyzes a customer's breath and reports blood-alcohol count to the nearest hundredth of a per cent. If the reading is too high a red light comes on saying "Don't Drive." 'Orientation' flight ends in tragedy with one killed

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Civil Air Patrol plane lifted off from a small airport in Queens County Sunday morning to give young cadets an "orientation" flight and moments later crashed into a two-family house, killing one cadet and injuring the woman pilot and two other cadets aboard.

None of the victims was identified pending notification of next of kin. The house was believed to be empty at the time of the crash.

Hospital officials said the pilot was in critical condition at Flushing Hospital with multiple fractures. The two cadets were in guarded condition at Booth Memorial Hospital.

THE CADET who was killed was pronounced dead at the scene.

Officials said the one-engine Cessna 172 had taken off from Flushing Airport at 10 a.m. EDT and went down moments later, hitting the top floor of a two-story house in the Flushing section of Queens County. The crash caused a fire which was quickly put out by firemen.

Officials said the house is about a mile southeast of the airport, located near Flushing Bay directly across from LaGuardia Airport.

Cindy Clear, 22, who lives directly across from the house, said, "I was lying in bed and heard a big bang. I looked outside and saw a plane sticking out from the roof of the house across the street."

"I was pretty scared, I was shaking. People were coming around to tell us to get out of the house because sparks might have started a fire."

MISS CLEAR said, "One man pushed his way out of the plane and fell on to the grass. The plane then exploded and there was a big fire.

"The wings fell onto the ground and the rest of the plane was demolished."

Mrs. Maria Caputo, who also lives across the street from the crash said, "The part of the plane where the pilot was was inside the house. There were a lot of flames and I saw them take one body away."

Flushing Airport manager Clifford Rice said the plane "had just taken off on a training flight."

RICE SAID the airport, which handles light aircraft, immediately suspended operations for several hours.

Leroy Molini, a major in the Civil Air Patrol, said the plane "was taking the kids on an orientation flight in the local area to show them how the aircraft operates, to familiarize them with the patrol."

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board immediately began an investigation.

Police said the house contained a dentist's office on the ground floor and an apartment above which had been rented but the tenants had not moved in yet. If there had been any occupants in the home at the time, they left before police arrived.

The Civil Air Patrol is a government-sponsored organization of pilots who use light planes to conduct searches and rescues for missing aircraft and assist in other emergencies.

TAIL SECTION of a Civil Air Patrol plane rests in areaway of two-family Queens County, N.Y. home Sunday. The crash killed one cadet and injured the woman pilot and two other cadets aboard.

North Central DC9 battered by hail

A North Central Airlines DC-9 jet carrying 41 passengers had its windshields smashed and radar damaged in a violent hailstorm Friday, but it flew 200 miles to a safe landing in Green Bay, Wis., the airline reported Sunday. Airline officials said none of the passengers and crew on the North Central flight were injured. The airline said the Upper Peninsula flight between Houghton and Iron Mountain flew into a severe thunderstorm that pounded the plane with large hail. The weather gashed deep dents in the engine cowlings and the leading edges of both wings.

Passengers on Flight 294 were transferred to another plane in Green Bay and flew on to Iron Mountain and Chicago, the next scheduled destination. The damaged plane was sent to Minneapolis for repairs, the spokesman said.

Concorde opponents slow traffic

Opponents of the Concorde supersonic transport landing at New York's Kennedy airport Sunday drove at a snail's pace around the airport's access roads in a protest designed to snarl airport traffic. The first protest cars arrived on schedule at 4 p.m. A double column of cars inched along the two-lane access road and prevented other vehicles from passing. Authorities used at least five helicopters, hovering overhead at low altitude, to keep track of the procession as it snaked past airline terminals on the four-mile roadway stopping at every stop sign and stop light.

Many of the cars in the motorcade had their horns blaring and their lights flashing, while others carried signs which read: "Stop The SST." The demonstration was led by Brian Levinson, head of Concorde Alert, one of the groups sponsoring the protest. Police and airport authorities planned to keep traffic moving briskly with the aid of a small fleet of tow trucks.

White House protests abound

Women, homosexuals and war veterans demonstrated around the Whie House Sunday, but President Carter missed all of them. The National Organization for Women picketed for the equal rights amendment; gay rights activists held a "Save Our Children from Anita Bryant" rally, and Veterans of Foreign Wars demonstrated for an accounting of servicemen still believed missing in Southeast Asia. Carter, delivering the commencement speech at the University of Notre Dame, was not around for the rallies.

U.S. not softening on 'rights'

The administration is not softening its stand on human rights around the world, President Carter's national security adviser says. "I don't think that either the substance or the tone of the administration's statements on human rights has altered one iota," Zbigniew Brzezinski said in an interview with U.S. News and World Report. "What has altered is the amount of press play that is given the subject." On southern Africa, Brzezinski repudiated the policy of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, which he said was aimed at "getting (Prime Minister John) Vorster to help you get change in Rhodesia at the cost of supporting him in South Africa. "We're not going to protect apartheid," Brzezinski said. "We're not going to make a deal which is expedient and which has the effect merely of transferring the battleground from Rhodesia to South Africa tomorrow because of its expedient nature."

Young cites U.S. aid to Africa

U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young said in Yohannesburg Sunday long-term U.S. economic aid to southern Africa is "implicit" in America's involvement in the region. Young, who left later for Lusaka, Zambia, also said southern Africa's white regimes are responsible for the bad health of blacks and suggested blacks resort to boycotts. He joined a Zulu prince in singing Africa's nationalist anthem — "God Bless Africa" — at the U.S. Information Service.

But the U.S. diplomat told a news conference drastic change in southern Africa could come about peacefully. "I think that within the market system, when it is encouraged to function fairly, when blacks do have access to capital, even things like land reform can occur without massive disruption," he said. "That requires, I think, international assistance over a long haul, and even though we have not specified it as such, I think that is implicit in the kind of commitment the United States is making in its dealings in southern Africa."

Concorde opponents slow traffic

Opponents of the Concorde supersonic transport landing at New York's Kennedy airport Sunday drove at a snail's pace around the airport's access roads in a protest designed to snarl airport traffic. The first protest cars arrived on schedule at 4 p.m. A double column of cars inched along the two-lane access road and prevented other vehicles from passing. Authorities used at least five helicopters, hovering overhead at low altitude, to keep track of the procession as it snaked past airline terminals on the four-mile roadway stopping at every stop sign and stop light.

Many of the cars in the motorcade had their horns blaring and their lights flashing, while others carried signs which read: "Stop The SST." The demonstration was led by Brian Levinson, head of Concorde Alert, one of the groups sponsoring the protest. Police and airport authorities planned to keep traffic moving briskly with the aid of a small fleet of tow trucks.

White House protests abound

Women, homosexuals and war veterans demonstrated around the Whie House Sunday, but President Carter missed all of them. The National Organization for Women picketed for the equal rights amendment; gay rights activists held a "Save Our Children from Anita Bryant" rally, and Veterans of Foreign Wars demonstrated for an accounting of servicemen still believed missing in Southeast Asia. Carter, delivering the commencement speech at the University of Notre Dame, was not around for the rallies.

U.S. not softening on 'rights'

The administration is not softening its stand on human rights around the world, President Carter's national security adviser says. "I don't think that either the substance or the tone of the administration's statements on human rights has altered one iota," Zbigniew Brzezinski said in an interview with U.S. News and World Report. "What has altered is the amount of press play that is given the subject." On southern Africa, Brzezinski repudiated the policy of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, which he said was aimed at "getting (Prime Minister John) Vorster to help you get change in Rhodesia at the cost of supporting him in South Africa. "We're not going to protect apartheid," Brzezinski said. "We're not going to make a deal which is expedient and which has the effect merely of transferring the battleground from Rhodesia to South Africa tomorrow because of its expedient nature."

Young cites U.S. aid to Africa

U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young said in Yohannesburg Sunday long-term U.S. economic aid to southern Africa is "implicit" in America's involvement in the region. Young, who left later for Lusaka, Zambia, also said southern Africa's white regimes are responsible for the bad health of blacks and suggested blacks resort to boycotts. He joined a Zulu prince in singing Africa's nationalist anthem — "God Bless Africa" — at the U.S. Information Service.

But the U.S. diplomat told a news conference drastic change in southern Africa could come about peacefully. "I think that within the market system, when it is encouraged to function fairly, when blacks do have access to capital, even things like land reform can occur without massive disruption," he said. "That requires, I think, international assistance over a long haul, and even though we have not specified it as such, I think that is implicit in the kind of commitment the United States is making in its dealings in southern Africa."

'Orientation' flight ends in tragedy with one killed

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Civil Air Patrol plane lifted off from a small airport in Queens County Sunday morning to give young cadets an "orientation" flight and moments later crashed into a two-family house, killing one cadet and injuring the woman pilot and two other cadets aboard.

None of the victims was identified pending notification of next of kin. The house was believed to be empty at the time of the crash.

Hospital officials said the pilot was in critical condition at Flushing Hospital with multiple fractures. The two cadets were in guarded condition at Booth Memorial Hospital.

THE CADET who was killed was pronounced dead at the scene.

Officials said the one-engine Cessna 172 had taken off from Flushing Airport at 10 a.m. EDT and went down moments later, hitting the top floor of a two-story house in the Flushing section of Queens County. The crash caused a fire which was quickly put out by firemen.

Officials said the house is about a mile southeast of the airport, located near Flushing Bay directly across from LaGuardia Airport.

Cindy Clear, 22, who lives directly across from the house, said, "I was lying in bed and heard a big bang. I looked outside and saw a plane sticking out from the roof of the house across the street."

"I was pretty scared, I was shaking. People were coming around to tell us to get out of the house because sparks might have started a fire."

MISS CLEAR said, "One man pushed his way out of the plane and fell on to the grass. The plane then exploded and there was a big fire.

"The wings fell onto the ground and the rest of the plane was demolished."

Mrs. Maria Caputo, who also lives across the street from the crash said, "The part of the plane where the pilot was was inside the house. There were a lot of flames and I saw them take one body away."

Flushing Airport manager Clifford Rice said the plane "had just taken off on a training flight."

RICE SAID the airport, which handles light aircraft, immediately suspended operations for several hours.

Leroy Molini, a major in the Civil Air Patrol, said the plane "was taking the kids on an orientation flight in the local area to show them how the aircraft operates, to familiarize them with the patrol."

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board immediately began an investigation.

Police said the house contained a dentist's office on the ground floor and an apartment above which had been rented but the tenants had not moved in yet. If there had been any occupants in the home at the time, they left before police arrived.

The Civil Air Patrol is a government-sponsored organization of pilots who use light planes to conduct searches and rescues for missing aircraft and assist in other emergencies.

TAIL SECTION of a Civil Air Patrol plane rests in areaway of two-family Queens County, N.Y. home Sunday. The crash killed one cadet and injured the woman pilot and two other cadets aboard.

Legal gambling for revenue is poor bet for states: study

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The nation is headed for "the worst of both worlds" if it relaxes gambling laws with an eye on more tax revenues, a government-financed report said Sunday.

Many states are considering legalizing some form of betting — "first lotteries, then offtrack betting, finally . . . state-regulated casinos" — with the goals of driving out illegal gambling and raising revenue, the report said.

Professor G. Robert Blakey directed a team of Cornell University students who made the review of gambling law history and present trends. He said states can compete with illegal numbers games and bookmaking if they were willing to forego their revenue-raising objective.

BUT THEY can't do both successfully, he said.

"Apart from the question of legality or morality," Blakey said, "no one but a fool would gamble with state-run operations. The numbers operators and bookies who don't worry about taxes can always give the customers better odds.

"All the evidence seens to indicate that there is no justification for the highly publicized expectations that the decriminalization of gambling would provide an important new source of revenue," he said.

When a state tries to control corruption and raise money through legalized betting, Blakey said, "illegal gambling will flourish in a twilight zone between formal prohibition and half - hearted enforcement," while "comparatively little income will be realized.

"The Nation seems to be heading, in short, for the worst of both worlds," he said.

BLAKEY SAID THE study ,financed in part by a $75,800 grant from the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance administration, showed there is no reason the government should not go into "direct competition with the mob" by taking less of a cut from legal lotteries.

But success will require "modernizing" federal and state gambling laws, he said.

"You have to equip your prosecutors with the right to give grand jury immunity to witnesses, authorize wiretaps, organize special investigative units . . . and then get judges to hand out stiff sentences."

The 934-page typed report describes repeated efforts — and failures — by states to curb abuses and prevent corruption and criminal infiltration of gambling.

Singlaub can serve nation: Brown

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Sec. Harold Brown said Sunday Maj. Gen. John Singlaub still can serve a useful military role, although he was dismissed as chief of staff in South Korea after a personal meeting with President Carter.

But Brown defended President Carter's decision to reassign the general, who was ousted for telling a reporter he thought the administration's plans to withdraw American ground troops from Korea would lead to war.

"There has been plenty of opportunity for expression of military views on the matter," Brown said.

But once a policy is determined, a soldier's responsibility is "to support that policy if he plans to stay in the military," Brown said. "That's a responsibility and a restriction that people assume when they put on a uniform."

ASKED IF SINGLAUB will have a "black mark" on his record, Brown replied, "Getting this much publicity of this kind, I'm sure, is not something he likes. It's part of his history now."

But he called Singlaub, who was dismissed Saturday, "a capable and dedicated officer" and "I think a useful place can continue to be found for him."

Brown said Carter's plans to withdraw the 40,000 American ground troops from Korea in the next four to five years will still leave United States air and sea power in the area.

"WE WOULD NOT be pulling out our ground troops if we believed it would lead to war," he said.

Welfare agencies cited in stealing children

Indians face 'cultural genocide,' threats: article

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— American Indians, already a decreasing minority in a nation occupying the land they once roamed freely, now face "cultural genocide" as well as a threat from officials often using deceitful means to sterilize their women, reports a national newspaper.

A National Catholic Reporter article, first of a seven-part investigative series, says Senate subcommittee evidence indicates many Indian children are being forcibly taken from their parents. It said evidence shows public and private welfare agencies operate as though Indian children would benefit from being raised by non-Indian parents.

The article quotes Sen. James Abourezk, D.-S.D., who told a Senate subcommittee, "Officials would seemingly rather place Indian children in non-Indian settings where their Indian culture, their Indian traditions, and in general their entire Indian way of life is smothered.

"THE FEDERAL government . . . has allowed these agencies to strike at the heart of Indian communities by literally stealing Indian children, a course which can only weaken rather than strengthen the Indian child, family and community. It has been called cultural genocide."

The threat of having their children taken, which many Indians have testified occurs without warning or legal notification, has undermined the spirit of the Indian parents, said William Byler, executive director of the Assn. of American Indian Affairs.

An AAIA study estimated that 25 to 35 per cent of all Indian children are taken from their families, and the number is increasing in some states. Psychiatrist James Shore says the practice is occurring more frequently.

INDIAN PARENTS who have their children taken develop "a sense of hopelessness and despair," and often become withdrawn and depressed. Shore said social workers often interpret this behavior as "a further lack of concern for Indian children" and additional justification for taking the children.

Social workers also cite poverty conditions as reasons to take children away from their parents, and some doctors are using poverty to justify indiscriminate sterilization of Indian women, according to Dr. Connie Uri, a Choctaw and Cherokee Indian.

Dr. Uri said the sterilization is not planned genocide, but the result of "the warped thinking of doctors, who think the solution to poverty is not to allow people to be born."

"DOCTORS HAVE assumed a God-like authority, and think they are helping women by sterilizing them," said Uri, who in 1972 instigated a Congressional investigation into the sterilization of what she says is more than one quarter of all Indian women.

The inquiry revealed many Indians were being convinced they had to submit to sterilization or lose their children or welfare benefits. The inquiry, in addition to Dr. Uri's private investigation, has led her to say that only 100,000 remaining Indian women can bear children.

"It is an extreme problem because there are so few Indians in existence; less than a million of us," Dr. Uri said. "We are not like other minorities. We have no gene pool in Africa or Asia. When we are gone, that's it."

Former Army commander convicted on lewdness rap

DALLAS (UPI) — Ultra-conservative activist Edwin A. Walker, former commander of Army troops in Germany and candidate for governor of Texas, has been convicted of public lewdness for propositioning a policeman in a park restroom.

He was fined $1,000 and placed on probation for one year.

Walker, an orator and author on behalf of extreme right-wing political causes, pleaded no contest to one of two misdemeanor public lewdness charges. Judge F. Harold Entz of County Criminal Court No. 4, accepted the plea, found Walker guilty, ordered the fine and sentenced him to 30 days in jail, but suspended the sentence and put him on probation for a year.

WALKER WAS convicted for the first incident of lewdness last Tuesday, but the case escaped public attention until late last week.

Walker, 67, was arrested June 23, 1976, by a plainclothes park patrol officer in the men's restroom of a city park. The officer said Walker made sexual advances to him.

Walker was arrested a second time for public lewdness on March 16 at another city park. A second plainclothes officer said Walker made comments with suggestive sexual overtones to him in the men's restroom. The case has not come to trial.

Maximum punishment for a public lewdness conviction is one year in jail and a $2,000 fine. Entz said Walker's punishment was in line with the state's recommendation.

WALKER'S FASHIONABLE green, 19th century-style mansion here sits behind a large billboard bearing various political slogans which are changed every few months.

Walker once emblazoned a star-spangled message saying, "Sodom, Gomorrah or Wallace" — his way of comparing the 1972 Democratic and Republican presidential candidates to the Biblical cities of sin and corruption while urging support of Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Walker entered the national political arena in April, 1961, when he was pressured into resigning as commander of the 24th Infantry Division in Germany. He resigned, rather than obey orders to cease political involvement and for alleged political indoctrination of U.S. soldiers in Germany.

In the past several years, Walker has toned down his frequent firebrand oratory, but maintains a recorded telephone message for communication with his conservative admirers. He occasionally sends cryptic letters to reporters, often containing references to the 1963 Dallas assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

He ran for governor of Texas in 1962, but lost.

Walker entered the national political arena in April, 1961, when he was pressured into resigning as commander of the 24th Infantry Division in Germany. He resigned, rather than obey orders to cease political involvement and for alleged political indoctrination of U.S. soldiers in Germany.

In the past several years, Walker has toned down his frequent firebrand oratory, but maintains a recorded telephone message for communication with his conservative admirers. He occasionally sends cryptic letters to reporters, often containing references to the 1963 Dallas assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

He ran for governor of Texas in 1962, but lost.

Centel island is cents-less place to call a friend

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Bums don't ask for dimes anymore, they ask for "spare change." Dimes just don't go very far these days.

It's been years since you could get a cup of coffee for a dime, and 15 months since Ma Bell started charging 20 cents for local calls from coin phones.

But the Central Telephone Co. maintains an island in the Northwest suburbs where a dime is still a dime. Centel has 1,927 pay phones in Des Plaines and Park Ridge, and each of these phones still takes 10 cents for local calls.

Wayne Kay manages a Shell station on the expensive side of this invisible shoreline, on the northwest corner of Rand and Central roads in Mount Prospect. On three sides of him are shopping centers and restaurants, each with its own 10-cent pay phone.

Kay said his customers complain about his 20-cent pay phone but not enough to bother crossing the street to a cheaper phone. With the price of coffee, stamps and everything else rising steadily, Kay's customers evidently have learned to ride with the inflationary tide.

"THEY COMPLAINED a lot when it first went to 20 cents," he said. But no more.

Those on the other side of the street with the low-cost phone booths say people didn't flock to their booths after Bell raised its charge.

In 1951, Illinois Bell took the big step fro mcharging a nickel to a dime for a coin-phone call. Then on February 10, 1976, the Illinois Commerce Commission approved a rate increase of a dime to 20 cents.

"We believe that the customers who use the pay phone-service should bear the cost," said Merny Miller, Illinois Bell public relations representative.

SHE SAID THE cost of providing pay phone service has risen with inflation, and with the increased cost of replacing damaged equipment.

"It was because of maintenance costs due to vandalism. The cost of the piece of equipment alone has more than quadrupled in the past 25 years," she said.

Mrs. Miller said although the cost of vandalism is going up, the number of incidents is declining. Modern pay phones are harder to rob, she said.

"The latest coin box locks have kept us one step ahead of the rip-off artist," she said.

MARTIN BROWN. Centel public relations officer, said, "Our rate structure for our basic package is somewhat different than Illinois Bell's because we are dealing with different costs factors."

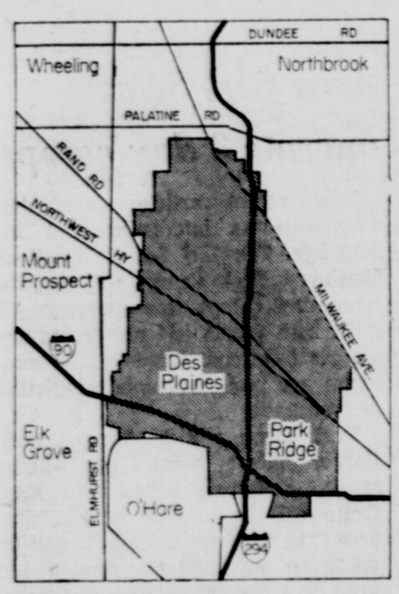

"It's a very complex economic picture," he said.

Brown said part of the reason why Centel rates for coin calls has stayed down is because the vandalism rate has been fairly low.

"MANY OF OUR phones are in locations that can be seen," he said, such as in hotels and restaurants.

"If you were in an area that had a great deal of vandalism, then your costs would go up," he said. He said Centel's new phones also are more vandal-proof.

And Brown's happy to say "We have no rate increases in the offing."

CENTEL ISLAND — In most of Des Plaines, all of Park Ridge, and small areas of Mount Prospect, you can still make a phone call for a dime.

Congress message urges crackdown

Carter to ask environment aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter today will send Congress an environmental message calling for stricter enforcement of existing air and water pollution controls, establishment of new wilderness areas and an attack on chemical discharges.

The message does not propose any massive new spending programs, but stresses better management, administration sources said Sunday.

Carter outlines in his 37-page message what he calls "the most far-reaching environmental program ever put forward by any administration."

IN THE FIRST environmental message sent to Congress by a president since 1973, Carter follows up on many of his campaign promises to environmentalists, who were among his strongest supporters.

He says the primary need is not for new legislation but for "sensitive administration and energetic enforcement" of existing laws.

Carter backs strict enforcement of existing water and air pollution laws, despite a move in Congress to relax them. He says he will force the Environmental Protection Agency to regulate cancer-causing substances in drinking water — something that has been required by law since 1974.

In the message, Carter also:

• Tells the EPA to develop standards requiring industry to use the best technology available to clean up chemical discharges by 1983, a program that will cost industry millions of dollars.

• Proposes legislation to have EPA regulate the 1,400 chemical ingredients of pesticides.

• Stops short of endorsing a national beverage container deposit law, but asks the EPA for a recommendation within six months on that and related issues.

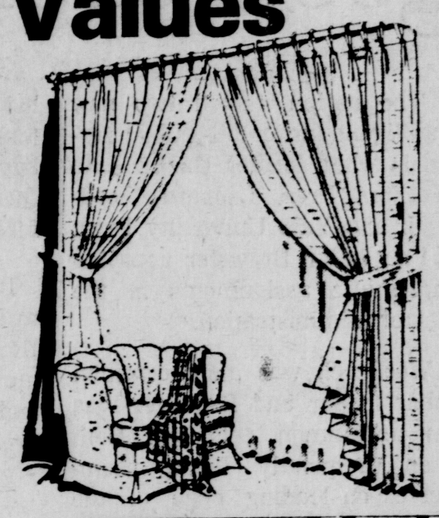

• Supports Army Corps of Engineers regulations requiring permits to dredge or fill wetlands. Executive orders will bar federal agencies from supporting any development in wetlands or floodplains. During the next five years, the government will spend $50 million to buy wetlands, which have been disappearing at the rate of 300,000 acres per year.

• Calls for new restrictions on leasing federal lands for hardrock mining, coal and offshore oil development.

• Proposes designating nine new wilderness areas encompassing more than 24 million acres, eight new scenic rivers and three new scenic trails.

• Proposes to protect from development areas that support endangered species and says federal projects such as dams that pose a serious threat to endangered species should be "reassessed."

Carter picks good choices

The nation gained two new intelligent, articulate public servants when former United Auto Workers Pres. Leonard Woodcock and Yale University Pres. Kingman Brewster accepted diplomatic assignments in the Carter Administration.

Woodcock was an uncommon labor leader and Brewster was an uncommon educator. Both men frequently found themselves on leading edge of the forces for change during the 1960s.

Woodcock heads to the Far East to head the diplomatic mission in China. He was one of thee first labor leaders to back Carter in his early presidential bid.

While clearly a booster of the new president, Woodcock is not above speaking his mind as was evidenced in his final address to 1.4 million member union's leadership.

Woodcock used the occasion to knock Carter's plan to impose heavy taxes on gas guzzling automobiles, arguing small car buyers should be rewarded and there should be no rebate for foreign cars.

Brewster, too, has spoken his mind from time to time, questioning the government's aid to higher education and priorities in solving the problems of the underprivileged.

The appointments of Woodcock and Brewster, while in part reward for political support, mark a stunning reversal of the policy of past administrations which handed out ambassadorial assignments much like receipts for campaign contributions.

Both men have important assignments, Woodcock in a nation where American relations are in infantile stages and Brewster to represent Carter before one of our oldest allies.

Woodcock's credentials in foreign affairs might be questioned, but he did serve the nation well on his recent trip to Vietnam to gather information about American servicemen who are still missing in action.

Besides, as Carter mentioned testimony on Woodcock negotiating ability can probably best be offered by the executives of Chrysler, Ford and General Motors.

As Woodcock and Brewster move into their new positions, the best the nation can ask is that they carry their success from the private sector into their public service.

Reunion a unique idea

It should be quite an event when the Rev. William Herman of Rolling Meadows brings back hundreds of couples he's married for a symbolic ceremony July 23.

Rev. Herman came up with the idea as a fund raiser for a mission in India and for local organizations such as the Clearbrook Center and the Northwest Opportunity Center. It's an interesting idea.

He says he hopes the service will strengthen the family and recapture some of the spirit the married couples had when they got married.

And if indeed he can do that he will be doing something.

He probably has officiated at more wedding ceremonies than most ministers because his church is non-denominational, and he expects a good turnout for the $20 a couple dinner.

He's a bit curious too, he says, to find out how some of his marriages have turned out after all these years.

Berry's world

"Now, I ask you — what's wrong with the environment? Nothing — that's what! Just look around!"

Oh for the good old days. Get rich! Buy and ambassadorship! Live happily ever after!

Jim Bishop

"You write abut 'Sudden Money' as though it is dangerous," says Davey Archer of San Francisco. "Were you ever hit with 'Sudden Money'?"

Yes. Once. The chain of events started in the summer of 1954. I had been a reasonably competent magazine editor. After meditation, I decided that I would rather be lucky than competent. I quit the job and went home to write.

Home was an old two-story house on Garrison Avenue in Teaneck, N.J. My first wife, Elinor, was a noble woman who lived in tension. She wound herself too tight. She could explode in a fervor of love or a ferver of fury over a word or a phrase.

SHE ASKED ME to write in the cellar. I built a wall between my typewriter and a noisy oil burner. In my head was a good economic plan: 1) I would write magazine articles at the going rate of $1,000 a shot to keep the children in Pablum and snow suits and, 2) chip away at a book to be called "The Day Lincoln Was shot."

It didn't work. My confreres among magazine editors buried me. They had no assignments. I went broke.

Sporadically, I had researched the last day of President Lincoln's life for 24 years. I had separate notebooks for each hour of the final day. In some instances, I had four versions of what he and John Wilkes Booth were doing at say, 11:30 a.m.

WRITE OR DIE. In the opening scene, I could see the gaunt, heavy-footed Lincoln walking down the corridor of the White House between rows of office seekers and carpetbaggers who crouched against the walls. I wrote.

I sent a two-and-a-quarter page outline of the book to my agent. No publisher wanted it.

The cellar was dusty. Musty. It smelled of damp laundry. The oil burner burst into roaring flame. Last year's clothes had to be let out for Virginia Lee and Gayle. We couldn't afford a movie. Spaghetti and tomato sauce is filling.

Even Thomas, editor of Harper & Row, read the outline. "This could be a fine historical book," he said. Could. We signed a cautious contract. The advance money was enough for three mortgage payments and six grocery sprees.

I WRITE BUT ONCE. No polishing. I do my best the first time. The book was finished in the spring of 1955. If Harper broke even on the advance, they would permit me to write a second book. Barney Finn got $200.

It was a day of cold, slanted rain. A buddy from AP phoned. "Hey," he said. "The Book-of-the-Month has picked your book as a sole selection."A cruel joke. No, it happened. The throat tightened. Breathing was difficult.

Elinor sobbed. "Can I tell them not to shut the phone off?" Thirty days later, the first of many checks arrived. It was payable to me: $70,000. We turned it over and over and laughed until our eyes were wet.

"Sudden Money." The book was translated into 16 languages. I deposited the check. The mortgage was paid in full. On 34th Street, I bought Elinor a full-length mink coat. My love for the seaside is eternal, so I bought a house on sand dunes at Sea Bright, N.J.

THE KIDS GOT outfits with fur collars and cuffs. I bought a gray Cadillac. A game table. Also three pairs of black shoes and three suits.

The rest went into the bank. The bank president, a fan, often called to say, "Dammit, Jim, you're overdrawn again by $22.75. Now this has got to stop, my friend." This time he murmured, "We always knew you'd make it big."

I sat and thought about it. It wasn't the money, though that was important. The thing was I had proved to myself that I could write one good book. Never mind the clunkers which might lie ahead. One good one is a perfume of the mind.

Elinor interrupted my reverie; "Excuse me," she said, "now that we have all that money, don't you think we should pay Book-of-the-Month the $9.70 we owe them?"

The South: new power elite

by GARY THATCHER

The surest route to Washington's corridors of power used to be through the halls of Harvard. But Jimmy Carter has given the path a Southern twist.

The Carter administration — to a degree unparalleled in U.S. history — abounds with alumni of Southern colleges and universities. And these schools are clearly basking in their newfound status.

"Harvard just took it for granted it would always supply the think-tank guys, the ambassadors, advisers, and all that," crows University of Georgia spokesman Barry Wood. Summoning up his thickest mock-Southern accent, he adds, "Well, it gist ain't so no mo.' "

HARVARD DOESN'T find the needling too funny. Asked for a response to Mr. Wood's statement, Harvard dean John Fox sniffed: "Well, that's just nothing I could react to at all. I like to think I have a sense of humor, but I still like to talk sense, and I'm not capable of talking sense on that subject."

Now, Southern schools are making up for lost time. The University of Georgia clearly has the most alumni in Mr. Carter's inner circle, including advisers Hamilton Jordan and Charles Kirbo, counsel Robert Lipshutz, Cabinet secretary Jack Watson, deputy press secretary Rex Granum, and a host of other ambassadors, special assistants, and the like. Even Amy Carter's appointments secretary — Rick Hutto — is a University of Georgia alumnus.

ONE OF THE Presidents' sons, Jack Carter, received his law degree there, and the other two sons attended the institution but did not graduate. First Lady Rosalynn Carter served as honorary overseer of the university's botanical gardens. And Mr. Carter, while still governor of Georgia, helped finance reconstruction of a giant ground sloth's skeleton, which now greets passersby in the school's graduate studies department.

Atlanta's Emory University has a few ties with the Carter clan it would rather forget.

The university's security force towed away then-governor Carter's car during a campus visit. And, to make matters worse, the school flunked out his brother, Billy Carter. But apparently there have been no hard feelings. Emory alumni in top administration posts include press secretary Jody Powell, Office of Management and Budget director Bert Lance, and health affairs adviser Dr. Peter Bourne.

Georgia Institute of Technology counts the President himself among its alumni, even though he attended there but a single year before transferring to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. Mr. Carter, too, considers himself a "rambling wreck from Georgia Tech" — as he proved while swearing in Harold Brown as Secretary of Defense.

DEPARTING FROM the seriousness of the ceremony, the President said of Mr. Brown, "He has just recently been a president of one of the finest technical schools in the country — I guess, second only to Georgia Tech — the California Institute of Technology."

Other Southern schools claim a sprinkling of Carter appointees. Attorney General Griffin Bell graduated from Mercer University in Macon, Georgia. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps earned degrees at Kentucky's Berea College and Duke University in North Carolina. Secretary of Labor F. Ray Marshall is an alumnus of Mississippi's Millsaps College and Louisiana State University.

There is a serious point to be made from all the Southern alumni in Washington, according to presidential adviser Charles Kirbo.

"This gives Southern schools an outlet to demonstrate the development that's been taking place over the past 10 or 15 years," says Mr. Kirbo.

Part of this new-found confidence is due to the example being set by Mr. Carter and his cadre of Southern-educated appointees, says Mr. Kirbo. But the South's universities and colleges were improving even before Mr. Carter began campaigning, according to studies by the Southern Regional Education Board.

Southerners now are spending more money on higher education than any other region except the East. Consequently, Southern post-secondary schools now are paying higher faculty salaries, attracting more federal research grants, and producing more doctorates than at any time in the past.

Chief responds to his critics

In answer to Diane Peterson's letter that appeared in the Fence Post on Monday, May 9:

True, I am here today, but I owe my life to God, to the dedicated professional training of my paramedics and to their immediate response to my home. As a point of information, I have to demand and continually insist that our firemen continue their paramedical training, that they maintain their state certification and that they continually attend their monthly reviews and maintain their clinical time at the hospitals involved in our paramedic system.

The city administration must be continually informed of the need to continually update telemetry equipment, provide the money for the overtime compensation to send the men to school to continue their medical training, appraised of the manpower neeeded to man our apparatus and the life expectancy of our ambulances and apparatus.

YES, I WAS concerned about the threat of the men not responding to calls. Any fire chief worth his salt would be concerned about the safety of his community. Yet I felt it was not my duty to over alarm them at that time. I cancelled all vacation and holiday leaves so that a full complement of men would be on duty at all times in order to handle all ambulance and small fire calls.

As to the structural fires that might have occurred, I know my personnel. They are dedicated, compassionate, concerned family men who enjoy performing the service that they have been trained to do for the citizens of our city. They would have responded to all fire emergencies in full force. My confidence in my men is such that I would have put my life on the line that all of my men would have responded to any fire emergency.

I have been associated with these men for many years, and I have a great confidence and great rapport with my men. They have never failed to do anything that I have asked of them, both during an emergency or on a personal basis.

If my statement upset you or the rest of our citizens, I apologize, but I am much closer to the situation, and I felt the firemen and the city council could settle their problems very easily.

Area Girl Scouts operate 3 day camps

Your recent article about day camps was interesting, but incomplete. The Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County will operate three day camps this summer. All girls, both Scouts and non-Scouts are eligible to attend; however, the minimum age requirement is completion of first grade.

West Camp will be located near Harper College; North Camp will be at St. Alphonsus School and East Camp will be located in the Niles area. The fees are modest. It will be $15.50 for an eight-day session and $9.50 for a five-day session. Bus transportation is extra.

The program is varied and interesting. The girls help to plan. In general, they might make musical instruments and have a tin-can band, play kick-ball, have an overnight, pitch a tent, do sand casting, weaving or whatever "turns 'em on."

Special Units are also forming for girls with a special interest in Biking, Pioneer Arts, the Performing Arts or International Activities. Please call (640-0500) the G.S. Council of NW Cook for more information. Day camp is usually held from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Anyone who wishes to work at a Girl Scout Day Camp may call the above number for an appointment to fill-out an application form and information about financial reimbursement.

Worthy of note

We would like to extend a big thank you to the many people in Arlington Heights who have given us help and encouragement in the past weeks.

A first thank you goes to the sympathetic and helpful firemen who answered our call for help. We have been overwhelmed by the offers of help from strangers. We are most grateful to our neighbors and friends who have given shelter, clothing and countless other necessities.

So many generous and imaginative things were done to ease our lives. Someone even remembered to tack a note on our charred door to tell the Easter Bunny where to find us.

Carter picks good choices

The nation gained two new intelligent, articulate public servants when former United Auto Workers Pres. Leonard Woodcock and Yale University Pres. Kingman Brewster accepted diplomatic assignments in the Carter Administration.

Woodcock was an uncommon labor leader and Brewster was an uncommon educator. Both men frequently found themselves on leading edge of the forces for change during the 1960s.

Woodcock heads to the Far East to head the diplomatic mission in China. He was one of thee first labor leaders to back Carter in his early presidential bid.

While clearly a booster of the new president, Woodcock is not above speaking his mind as was evidenced in his final address to 1.4 million member union's leadership.

Woodcock used the occasion to knock Carter's plan to impose heavy taxes on gas guzzling automobiles, arguing small car buyers should be rewarded and there should be no rebate for foreign cars.

Brewster, too, has spoken his mind from time to time, questioning the government's aid to higher education and priorities in solving the problems of the underprivileged.

The appointments of Woodcock and Brewster, while in part reward for political support, mark a stunning reversal of the policy of past administrations which handed out ambassadorial assignments much like receipts for campaign contributions.

Both men have important assignments, Woodcock in a nation where American relations are in infantile stages and Brewster to represent Carter before one of our oldest allies.

Woodcock's credentials in foreign affairs might be questioned, but he did serve the nation well on his recent trip to Vietnam to gather information about American servicemen who are still missing in action.

Besides, as Carter mentioned testimony on Woodcock negotiating ability can probably best be offered by the executives of Chrysler, Ford and General Motors.

As Woodcock and Brewster move into their new positions, the best the nation can ask is that they carry their success from the private sector into their public service.

Reunion a unique idea

It should be quite an event when the Rev. William Herman of Rolling Meadows brings back hundreds of couples he's married for a symbolic ceremony July 23.

Rev. Herman came up with the idea as a fund raiser for a mission in India and for local organizations such as the Clearbrook Center and the Northwest Opportunity Center. It's an interesting idea.

He says he hopes the service will strengthen the family and recapture some of the spirit the married couples had when they got married.

And if indeed he can do that he will be doing something.

He probably has officiated at more wedding ceremonies than most ministers because his church is non-denominational, and he expects a good turnout for the $20 a couple dinner.

He's a bit curious too, he says, to find out how some of his marriages have turned out after all these years.

Jim Bishop

"You write abut 'Sudden Money' as though it is dangerous," says Davey Archer of San Francisco. "Were you ever hit with 'Sudden Money'?"

Yes. Once. The chain of events started in the summer of 1954. I had been a reasonably competent magazine editor. After meditation, I decided that I would rather be lucky than competent. I quit the job and went home to write.

Home was an old two-story house on Garrison Avenue in Teaneck, N.J. My first wife, Elinor, was a noble woman who lived in tension. She wound herself too tight. She could explode in a fervor of love or a ferver of fury over a word or a phrase.

SHE ASKED ME to write in the cellar. I built a wall between my typewriter and a noisy oil burner. In my head was a good economic plan: 1) I would write magazine articles at the going rate of $1,000 a shot to keep the children in Pablum and snow suits and, 2) chip away at a book to be called "The Day Lincoln Was shot."

It didn't work. My confreres among magazine editors buried me. They had no assignments. I went broke.

Sporadically, I had researched the last day of President Lincoln's life for 24 years. I had separate notebooks for each hour of the final day. In some instances, I had four versions of what he and John Wilkes Booth were doing at say, 11:30 a.m.

WRITE OR DIE. In the opening scene, I could see the gaunt, heavy-footed Lincoln walking down the corridor of the White House between rows of office seekers and carpetbaggers who crouched against the walls. I wrote.

I sent a two-and-a-quarter page outline of the book to my agent. No publisher wanted it.

The cellar was dusty. Musty. It smelled of damp laundry. The oil burner burst into roaring flame. Last year's clothes had to be let out for Virginia Lee and Gayle. We couldn't afford a movie. Spaghetti and tomato sauce is filling.

Even Thomas, editor of Harper & Row, read the outline. "This could be a fine historical book," he said. Could. We signed a cautious contract. The advance money was enough for three mortgage payments and six grocery sprees.

I WRITE BUT ONCE. No polishing. I do my best the first time. The book was finished in the spring of 1955. If Harper broke even on the advance, they would permit me to write a second book. Barney Finn got $200.

It was a day of cold, slanted rain. A buddy from AP phoned. "Hey," he said. "The Book-of-the-Month has picked your book as a sole selection."A cruel joke. No, it happened. The throat tightened. Breathing was difficult.

Elinor sobbed. "Can I tell them not to shut the phone off?" Thirty days later, the first of many checks arrived. It was payable to me: $70,000. We turned it over and over and laughed until our eyes were wet.

"Sudden Money." The book was translated into 16 languages. I deposited the check. The mortgage was paid in full. On 34th Street, I bought Elinor a full-length mink coat. My love for the seaside is eternal, so I bought a house on sand dunes at Sea Bright, N.J.

THE KIDS GOT outfits with fur collars and cuffs. I bought a gray Cadillac. A game table. Also three pairs of black shoes and three suits.

The rest went into the bank. The bank president, a fan, often called to say, "Dammit, Jim, you're overdrawn again by $22.75. Now this has got to stop, my friend." This time he murmured, "We always knew you'd make it big."

I sat and thought about it. It wasn't the money, though that was important. The thing was I had proved to myself that I could write one good book. Never mind the clunkers which might lie ahead. One good one is a perfume of the mind.

Elinor interrupted my reverie; "Excuse me," she said, "now that we have all that money, don't you think we should pay Book-of-the-Month the $9.70 we owe them?"

Rhodesia trade curb urged by Kennedy

A congressional study, made public Sunday by Sen. Edward Kennedy, sharply criticizes the government for failing to make sure American corporations and citizens comply with economic sanctions against Rhodesia. "The record is clear that the United States has not been living up to its public commitments on enforcing sanctions against Rhodesia," Kennedy said. The Massachusetts Democrat urged President Carter, as part of his human rights policy, to implement full trade sanctions against the white minority government.

Sex, age not linked to car crashes

Statistics show there is no reason why men less than 25 years of age should pay 60 to 80 per cent more than women for car insurance, according to a researcher. What students study probably has more effect on their driving behavior than whether they're man or woman, says Walter Ziemba, a graduate student at Southern Connecticut State College. For his master's thesis, "College Students and Automobile Accidents," Ziemba studied the driving habits of 336 college students, half men and half women, for two years. The study showed age and sex "are not related to significant differences in automobile accident involvement," he said. Ziemba said he discovered juniors and seniors majoring in psychology, sociology, social work and special education were in the "high" accident group. Students majoring in English, speech and social studies were in the "low" accident group, he said.

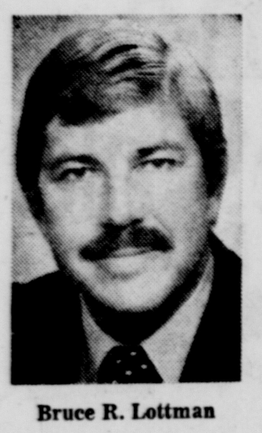

You work one-third year for taxes

It takes more than a third of a year for the average worker to pay all federal, state and local taxes, according to the Tax Foundation. The foundation estimates that a worker's earnings from Jan. 1 to May 4 go for taxes. Or to put it another way, he works two hours and 42 minutes in an eight-hour day for the tax collector. Taxes are the largest single item in the average budget, followed by housing and household operations, which require 90 minutes of a day's work.

More mistakes on tax forms: IRS

Americans made more mistakes on their 1976 income taxes and many filed at the last minute. But they will be getting a record average tax return, the Internal Revenue Service said. The IRS said taxpayers made considerable more mistakes on 1976 returns, particularly on the short form 1040A. Officials said the 1976 Tax Reform Act required users for the first time to figure out their taxes mathematically. The IRS also reported fifteen out of every 100 U.S. taxpayers waited until the last week before the April 15 deadline to mail their income tax returns. On the good news side, Americans will receive record refunds this year — an average $444.39 so far compared with $417.26 at the same time last year. Last year's over-all average refund was $426.41 — the highest up to that time. More persons authorized a dollar for the presidential campaign fund — some $22.4 million — than they did last year when the 1976 campaign was in full swing. As of April 22, the IRS processed nearly 79 million returns, a spokesman said.

U.S. to spend more on pensions for military than on gear: Aspin

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government this year will spend more on pensions for healthy retired military men and women under age 65 than on new Air Force planes or Navy ships, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Sunday.

"This year the federal government will pay about $6.7 billion to more than 800,000 'retirees' who are under 65 and who retired with no disability whatsoever," said Aspin, a former Defense Dept. analyst.

"That's more than we'll spend on all the planes the Air Force will buy this year. It's more than we'll spend on ships for the Navy," he said.

ASPIN SAID almost 92 per cent of military retirees collecting pensions are healthy and still of working age and 45 per cent are under age 50.

"Is it fair to millions of taxpayers who don't collect military pensions that we pay so much 'retired pay' to so many 'retirees' who aren't retired at all?" Aspin asked.

Many of the young retired military men work at other jobs, some "double-dipping" with new government jobs which promise another government pension, he said.

Under law, military personnel can begin collecting pensions after 20 years of service, regardless of age. Aspin said he has drafted legislation which would postpone military pensions to a more "normal" retirement age.

Aspin released data which he said came from Pentagon computers showing that 28 per cent of retired military persons are in their 30s when they first begin collecting pensions.

Oil methods used in North Sea to aid U.S. search

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The lessons learned in developing the North Sea Ekofisk petroleum field could be of great help in finding gas or oil in the American waters of the North Atlantic, says W. A. Roberts, an executive vice president of Phillips Petroleum Co.

Roberts has played a considerable role in the development of Ekofisk, which lies 180 miles off the Norwegian coast. The field, the largest in western Europe, was discovered in 1969 by Phillips after everyone else had given up on the North Sea.

"Actually, we had given up too," Roberts said. "The only reason we still were drilling there was that we had the rig under contract and had to pay for it anyway."

EVEN THE SOMBER lessons from the recent well blowout in the field may be valuable in the long run, Roberts said. The cause of the blowout, he said, may take some time to analyze satisfactorily.

Roberts said he personally believes, and other petroleum engineers agree with him, that the North Atlantic is much more likely to yield substantial amounts of gas than oil.

"I think that because of the geochemistry involved in the area," he said. Roberts is a chemical engineer.

He emphasized that, although the potential reserves of the North Atlantic appear to be large, there is absolutely no way except by drilling to be certain whether either gas or oil lies under the waters in large quantities.

Phillips presently has no leases in the North Atlantic, "We bid what we thought the prospects justify but others bid higher."

That doesn't mean Phillips won't get into the North Atlantic in the future either by buying into existing leases or bidding on new leases, he said.

ROBERTS' VIEW that the large area under 300 to 400 feet of water in the American areas of the North Atlantic is much more likely to produce gas in large amounts than oil and could have great economic and ecological significance.

The eastern states need gas more desperately than they need oil and extracting gas from under the ocean and bringing it ashore by ocean bed pipeline presents infinitely fewer ecological hazards than transporting oil.

If it is proved that geologic structures under this side of the North Atlantic contain much more gas than oil, that might greatly diminish the fears of residents of New England, New York and New Jersey that their beaches would be contaminated by oil seepage from the wells and pipelines.

"As a matter of fact," Roberts said, "tanker spillage presents a far greater ecological hazard than well or pipeline seepage in any area where oil must be consumed."

HE SAID even if substantial amounts of oil are found, the technology for bringing it safely ashore has improved greatly in the past five years. This has resulted to a considerable degree from experiences in the North Sea.

"The North Sea is stormy," he said, "vastly stormier than the Gulf of Mexico, but the weather problems on the American side of the Atlantic will be no worse than those that have been overcome in the North Sea."

He said preventing well seepage or blowouts and pipeline seepage depends on extremely careful engineering. Some spills in the past, he said, shocked the profession profoundly and drastically changed their ideas of the safeguards required.

Oil company management, he said, has had to accept the engineers' new ideas about safeguards.

ABA to oppose racial quotas

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Bar Assn. will tell the U.S. Supreme Court it opposes racial quotas in admisions tomedical and law schools, Pres. Justin Stanley said Sunday.

Stanley said professional schools should "consider race and economic and educational background as relevant factors in selecting from among qualified candidates for admision.

"We will not, however, endorse a quota system," he said.

Stanley explained the position the ABA is preparing to take in a major "reverse discrimination" case before the Supreme Court next term.

Allan Bakke, 36, twice rejected by the University of California Medical School at Davis, went to court charging that a quota system admitting 16 blacks to the 100-member entering class denied him equal protection under the law.

HOW TO SHOP FOR A MATTRESS

1. Pay attention to all the radio and TV ads by the big name manufacturers. Each one will tell you what famous medical group or orthopedic society or surgical committee designed that particular mattress.

2. Go to a retail store and find the famous Bleepy "This-A-Pedic" or the Blurpo "Bumpy Rest" and poke it with your fingers. Use all four fingers because you can't really tell how it feels by poking with just two fingers.

3. By all means do not lie down on it because you might be a little embarrassed to have people see you lying on a mattress in a retail store. Besides, that way you can get a bigger surprise the first time you try to sleep on it. Anyway, if it's one of those Pedic kinds, the salesman would probably just as soon you wouldn't find out how hard it really is.

4. Don't act shocked when the salesman tells you the King size set is only $500.00. After all, the super deluxe model is only $50.00 or $100.00 or more.

5. Before you make a final decision, go to the Schaumburg Mattress Factory. We have a small showroom in the front of the factory, and we want our customers to lie down on our comfortable mattresses. And if you just happen to doze off for awhile, we won't even bother you — until closing time of course.

Rhodesia trade curb urged by Kennedy

A congressional study, made public Sunday by Sen. Edward Kennedy, sharply criticizes the government for failing to make sure American corporations and citizens comply with economic sanctions against Rhodesia. "The record is clear that the United States has not been living up to its public commitments on enforcing sanctions against Rhodesia," Kennedy said. The Massachusetts Democrat urged President Carter, as part of his human rights policy, to implement full trade sanctions against the white minority government.

Sex, age not linked to car crashes

Statistics show there is no reason why men less than 25 years of age should pay 60 to 80 per cent more than women for car insurance, according to a researcher. What students study probably has more effect on their driving behavior than whether they're man or woman, says Walter Ziemba, a graduate student at Southern Connecticut State College. For his master's thesis, "College Students and Automobile Accidents," Ziemba studied the driving habits of 336 college students, half men and half women, for two years. The study showed age and sex "are not related to significant differences in automobile accident involvement," he said. Ziemba said he discovered juniors and seniors majoring in psychology, sociology, social work and special education were in the "high" accident group. Students majoring in English, speech and social studies were in the "low" accident group, he said.

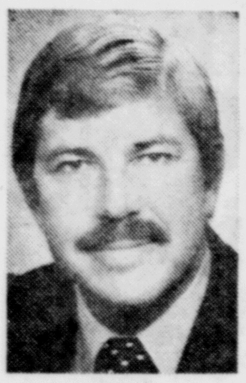

You work one-third year for taxes

It takes more than a third of a year for the average worker to pay all federal, state and local taxes, according to the Tax Foundation. The foundation estimates that a worker's earnings from Jan. 1 to May 4 go for taxes. Or to put it another way, he works two hours and 42 minutes in an eight-hour day for the tax collector. Taxes are the largest single item in the average budget, followed by housing and household operations, which require 90 minutes of a day's work.

More mistakes on tax forms: IRS

Americans made more mistakes on their 1976 income taxes and many filed at the last minute. But they will be getting a record average tax return, the Internal Revenue Service said. The IRS said taxpayers made considerable more mistakes on 1976 returns, particularly on the short form 1040A. Officials said the 1976 Tax Reform Act required users for the first time to figure out their taxes mathematically. The IRS also reported fifteen out of every 100 U.S. taxpayers waited until the last week before the April 15 deadline to mail their income tax returns. On the good news side, Americans will receive record refunds this year — an average $444.39 so far compared with $417.26 at the same time last year. Last year's over-all average refund was $426.41 — the highest up to that time. More persons authorized a dollar for the presidential campaign fund — some $22.4 million — than they did last year when the 1976 campaign was in full swing. As of April 22, the IRS processed nearly 79 million returns, a spokesman said.

U.S. to spend more on pensions for military than on gear: Aspin

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government this year will spend more on pensions for healthy retired military men and women under age 65 than on new Air Force planes or Navy ships, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Sunday.

"This year the federal government will pay about $6.7 billion to more than 800,000 'retirees' who are under 65 and who retired with no disability whatsoever," said Aspin, a former Defense Dept. analyst.

"That's more than we'll spend on all the planes the Air Force will buy this year. It's more than we'll spend on ships for the Navy," he said.

ASPIN SAID almost 92 per cent of military retirees collecting pensions are healthy and still of working age and 45 per cent are under age 50.

"Is it fair to millions of taxpayers who don't collect military pensions that we pay so much 'retired pay' to so many 'retirees' who aren't retired at all?" Aspin asked.

Many of the young retired military men work at other jobs, some "double-dipping" with new government jobs which promise another government pension, he said.

Under law, military personnel can begin collecting pensions after 20 years of service, regardless of age. Aspin said he has drafted legislation which would postpone military pensions to a more "normal" retirement age.

Aspin released data which he said came from Pentagon computers showing that 28 per cent of retired military persons are in their 30s when they first begin collecting pensions.

Oil methods used in North Sea to aid U.S. search

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The lessons learned in developing the North Sea Ekofisk petroleum field could be of great help in finding gas or oil in the American waters of the North Atlantic, says W. A. Roberts, an executive vice president of Phillips Petroleum Co.

Roberts has played a considerable role in the development of Ekofisk, which lies 180 miles off the Norwegian coast. The field, the largest in western Europe, was discovered in 1969 by Phillips after everyone else had given up on the North Sea.

"Actually, we had given up too," Roberts said. "The only reason we still were drilling there was that we had the rig under contract and had to pay for it anyway."

EVEN THE SOMBER lessons from the recent well blowout in the field may be valuable in the long run, Roberts said. The cause of the blowout, he said, may take some time to analyze satisfactorily.

Roberts said he personally believes, and other petroleum engineers agree with him, that the North Atlantic is much more likely to yield substantial amounts of gas than oil.

"I think that because of the geochemistry involved in the area," he said. Roberts is a chemical engineer.

He emphasized that, although the potential reserves of the North Atlantic appear to be large, there is absolutely no way except by drilling to be certain whether either gas or oil lies under the waters in large quantities.

Phillips presently has no leases in the North Atlantic, "We bid what we thought the prospects justify but others bid higher."

That doesn't mean Phillips won't get into the North Atlantic in the future either by buying into existing leases or bidding on new leases, he said.

ROBERTS' VIEW that the large area under 300 to 400 feet of water in the American areas of the North Atlantic is much more likely to produce gas in large amounts than oil and could have great economic and ecological significance.

The eastern states need gas more desperately than they need oil and extracting gas from under the ocean and bringing it ashore by ocean bed pipeline presents infinitely fewer ecological hazards than transporting oil.

If it is proved that geologic structures under this side of the North Atlantic contain much more gas than oil, that might greatly diminish the fears of residents of New England, New York and New Jersey that their beaches would be contaminated by oil seepage from the wells and pipelines.

"As a matter of fact," Roberts said, "tanker spillage presents a far greater ecological hazard than well or pipeline seepage in any area where oil must be consumed."

HE SAID even if substantial amounts of oil are found, the technology for bringing it safely ashore has improved greatly in the past five years. This has resulted to a considerable degree from experiences in the North Sea.

"The North Sea is stormy," he said, "vastly stormier than the Gulf of Mexico, but the weather problems on the American side of the Atlantic will be no worse than those that have been overcome in the North Sea."

He said preventing well seepage or blowouts and pipeline seepage depends on extremely careful engineering. Some spills in the past, he said, shocked the profession profoundly and drastically changed their ideas of the safeguards required.

Oil company management, he said, has had to accept the engineers' new ideas about safeguards.

ABA to oppose racial quotas

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Bar Assn. will tell the U.S. Supreme Court it opposes racial quotas in admisions tomedical and law schools, Pres. Justin Stanley said Sunday.

Stanley said professional schools should "consider race and economic and educational background as relevant factors in selecting from among qualified candidates for admision.

"We will not, however, endorse a quota system," he said.

Stanley explained the position the ABA is preparing to take in a major "reverse discrimination" case before the Supreme Court next term.

Allan Bakke, 36, twice rejected by the University of California Medical School at Davis, went to court charging that a quota system admitting 16 blacks to the 100-member entering class denied him equal protection under the law.

Last Oct. 28, the California Supreme Court ruled the program unconstitutional and ordered the university to admit Bakke. The Supreme Court will hear arguments on the issue next fall or winter, and the ABA will be one of many, groups filing "friend of the court" briefs.

CLASSROOM DISRUPTION is one of the biggest problems facing teachers and obstructing academic learning in junior high schools. Teachers say that discipline is as big a part of the junior high curriculum as are reading, writing and arithmetic.

That case went to juvenile court, he said, although he and the principals attempt to settle problems in school.

ONE OF THE biggest problems is harassment and intimidation, Hogy said.

"Kids will pick on a lone child who's shy and withdrawn. We see this more so in girls than ever before. They even draw blood on each other."

Hogy's theory is that girls no longer view themselves as "dainty little ladies. They're taking a more equal role in society and feel they can take care of a beef with their own hands."

Hogy and other school officials say drug use has decreased at the junior high level, as it has in high school. Occasional problems from marijuana to LSD, however, still are reported.

"DRUGS REACHED a peak a couple of years ago," said Ken Ciozek, assistant principal at Addams Junior High in Schaumburg.

"That's kind of going away. Kids are now more into alcohol. Three or four years ago we had a few OD's (kids overdosing on drugs), but now it's very rare," Ciozek said.

Hogy said that students are showing great disapproval of drugs. He said he gets a lot of information on who's into drugs from other kids "who don't want this garbage."

Another common problem is smoking in the washrooms. Some schools have stationed supervisors in washrooms at lunch and have teachers check washrooms at other times to cut down on the problem.

"ONE MOTHER told me her daughter didn't even want to go into the bathroom last year," said Meme Cacchione, a lunchroom supervisor at London Junior High in Wheeling.

Theft is another common problem plaguing junior highs. Kids are careless and tell their locker combinations, or leave things around that other kids don't seem able to resist.

Some principals, however, say theft is not as widespread as some kids would like their parents to believe. They say kids would rather tell parents their $20 pair of tennis shoes was stolen than admit they lost the shoes.

Problems like stealing, fighting and intimidation affect students' behavior and add to the discipline problems in the classroom.

WHEN STUDENTS AT London Junior High last year were asked to list common discipline problems, smoking in the washrooms, stealing from lockers and vandalism were high on the lists. But so were talking back to teachers, disturbing classes, too much freedom in class, grouping classes so troublemakers won't all be in the same class, disrespect to all and poor teacher discipline.

A major complaint of both teachers and principals is the lack of respect for authority at the junior high level. Sometimes the only person who impresses a student is the principal.

"There's a kind of disregard for au-

Pre-teens have very tough row to hoe

A junior high school boy knocks on the counselor's door and pops his head in the office.

"You know Peggy?" he asks. "She's in the washroom crying because all the boys are calling her names and she says she doesn't want to go to school."

The door closes. The counselor sighs. "There's a lot of intimidation in junior high."

Twelve-year-old Brad brings home a detention slip that indicates he has been caught smoking in his junior high school's washroom.

"You used to be such a good kid," his father says to him. "What's the matter with you?"

Being a junior high student is no piece of cake.

Your body is changing, your emotions are up one minute and down the next. You're too young to be independent but too old to rely on your parents. You aren't sure how you're supposed to act or what you're supposed to do. You feel like you're in limbo.

Your parents, meanwhile, are wringing their hands over your sudden behavior changes. The angel that used to confide everything in Mom is now secretive and often disrespectful. Should they talk to you or leave you alone? They're in limbo too.

This is the age when both kids and parents turn to the schools for help. Junior high kids are just as crazy in class as they are at home, but teachers have had more practice and can usually take it better.

Smoking in the washroom, causing trouble in class, beating up other kids, cutting school — teachers have seen it all.

So rather than wield the paddle for every offense, teachers today are looking for the reasons behind disruptive classroom behavior that often makes teaching the pre-teen student impossible.

The first step is recognizing that discipline goes hand-in-hand with junior high education.

"It doesn't seem unnatural for adolescents to be so hyper," said Jona Peretz, counselor at South Junior High in Arlington Heights. "Part of growing up is fighting the system a little."

The nature of being 12-or 13-years-old makes junior high students somewhat at loose ends, said South Principal Phillip Worland.

"They're going through a period where they're neither fish nor fowl. They're full of energy and change as fast as the weather," he said.

The move from grade school to junior high corresponds with a whole raft of physical and emotional changes that make every child a discipline problem of some sort as he feels his way into maturity. It's a time for a child to try out his wings.

Teachers and parents may want to help but "they need to handle things extremely carefully so the child doesn't feel he can't handle things on his own. Kids want limits and direction, but it's important the way that direction is given."

Mrs. Peretz said junior high kids are very insecure and constantly worry about friendships, grades and family.

Belonging to a group is of the utmost importance, she said. In part, the group offers protection. Horsing around and gaining attention in annoying ways in class often is a means of getting into a group.

The "hard core" repeat discipline problems are students who can't get attention any other way than by acting up, Mrs. Peretz said. "This is their way of saying, 'Hey, look at me.' "

Although counselors are important in helping teachers handle serious discipline problems, they are equally important as an older and wiser friend to the average child.

"You don't realize how desperately these kids need someone to talk to who isn't going to judge them or grade them and doesn't live with them," she said.

About 50 per cent of the students who come to see Mrs. Peretz talk about problems with their friends or family.

Counselors want to work with parents, and can often serve as a bridge between child and parent to work problems out.

Ms. Thomas said parents call her to find out what's bothering their child or to ask how to handle a family problem.

"Communication is the most important thing to work on," she said. "You have to work on building up a mutual trust in a relationship with kids. Parents should sit down with a child and ask what happened that day. If he doesn't tell you, don't be hurt. Just provide communication time."

Teachers and counselors receive some training on handling the adolescent, the parent gets experience in coping with a junior high child only when his own child turns 12-years-old. That makes it difficult for the school to work with parents on behavior problems.

"When women are pregnant they take prenatal care courses, Lamaze, and they read all kinds of baby books, but then it ends," Mrs. Peretz said.

thority among some of the students, but this isn't something that's limited to kids," said Phillip Worland, principal at South Junior High in Arlington Heights. "They come by it naturally from their parents."

Principals emphasize that parents and teachers have to work together to correct behavior problems.

James Fay, principal at Grove Junior High in Elk Grove Village, said most of the parents of Grove students support the values of the school, but a small percentage of students have learned anti-education and anti-authority sentiments from their parents.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to see that this small percentage who are not interested in obtaining an education do not get the chance to disrupt the education of the other 99 per cent," he said.

Roseann Wishner, a parent and volunteer at Tarkington School in Wheeling, said her volunteer experience has led her to believe too much responsibility is being pushed onto the school to improve behavior.

"Whatever kids can get away with at home, they think they can get away with at school. If parents tolerate certain behavior at home, I don't see how the school is going to change it. We're putting too much responsibility on the school if we ask them to do that too,"

Still, kids are in school a large part of their day and educators accept discipline as a part of their job. Most agree the attitude of a teacher can make a difference in a student's behavior.

"SOME KIDS ARE real troublemakers, but when they go into certain classes they won't make any trouble at all," said Mary Cassidy, a sixth grader at Grove. "The teachers are harder so the kids are afraid. It's better if the teachers are strict."

"How a teacher acts toward kids makes you want to listen and learn or fool around," said Grove eighth grader Julie Yalda.

While being strict may be easier said than done, teachers also say their own attitude can make a big difference in how much disruption takes

"When I was first teaching, kids rocking back in their chairs drove me crazy," said Bill Slodki, social studies teacher at Eisenhower Junior High in Hoffman Estates.

"After a while, you tend not to be so petty," Slodki said. "If you take care of the big things, the little things take care of themselves."

Tomorrow: Although discipline problems are similar in local school districts, methods of handling them vary widely, from corporal punishment to rewarding the good kids with dances and rock concerts.

Counselors want to work with parents, and can often serve as a bridge between child and parent to work problems out.

Ms. Thomas said parents call her to find out what's bothering their child or to ask how to handle a family problem.

"Communication is the most important thing to work on," she said. "You have to work on building up a mutual trust in a relationship with kids. Parents should sit down with a child and ask what happened that day. If he doesn't tell you, don't be hurt. Just provide communication time."

Teachers and counselors receive some training on handling the adolescent, the parent gets experience in coping with a junior high child only when his own child turns 12-years-old. That makes it difficult for the school to work with parents on behavior problems.

"When women are pregnant they take prenatal care courses, Lamaze, and they read all kinds of baby books, but then it ends," Mrs. Peretz said.

thority among some of the students, but this isn't something that's limited to kids," said Phillip Worland, principal at South Junior High in Arlington Heights. "They come by it naturally from their parents."

Principals emphasize that parents and teachers have to work together to correct behavior problems.

James Fay, principal at Grove Junior High in Elk Grove Village, said most of the parents of Grove students support the values of the school, but a small percentage of students have learned anti-education and anti-authority sentiments from their parents.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to see that this small percentage who are not interested in obtaining an education do not get the chance to disrupt the education of the other 99 per cent," he said.

Roseann Wishner, a parent and volunteer at Tarkington School in Wheeling, said her volunteer experience has led her to believe too much responsibility is being pushed onto the school to improve behavior.

"Whatever kids can get away with at home, they think they can get away with at school. If parents tolerate certain behavior at home, I don't see how the school is going to change it. We're putting too much responsibility on the school if we ask them to do that too,"

Still, kids are in school a large part of their day and educators accept discipline as a part of their job. Most agree the attitude of a teacher can make a difference in a student's behavior.

"SOME KIDS ARE real troublemakers, but when they go into certain classes they won't make any trouble at all," said Mary Cassidy, a sixth grader at Grove. "The teachers are harder so the kids are afraid. It's better if the teachers are strict."

"How a teacher acts toward kids makes you want to listen and learn or fool around," said Grove eighth grader Julie Yalda.

While being strict may be easier said than done, teachers also say their own attitude can make a big difference in how much disruption takes

"When I was first teaching, kids rocking back in their chairs drove me crazy," said Bill Slodki, social studies teacher at Eisenhower Junior High in Hoffman Estates.

"After a while, you tend not to be so petty," Slodki said. "If you take care of the big things, the little things take care of themselves."

Tomorrow: Although discipline problems are similar in local school districts, methods of handling them vary widely, from corporal punishment to rewarding the good kids with dances and rock concerts.

COFFEE AND cordiality are characteristic of the Waycinden Park Woman's Club; philanthropy is its main purpose. "It was a little dream of mine," says Dorothy Westman, its founder.

Such neighborly people

Waycinden women work miracles

by ELEANOR RIVES

Waycinden Park, a neighborhood in Des Plaines, lies quietly between Algonquin Road and Dempster Street, from Mount Prospect Road to as near to Route 83 as residences get.

It is characterized by a fierce community loyalty, a small town flavor and a neighborhood pride that is underscored by the Waycinden Park Home Owners Association and the Waycinden Park Woman's Club, a flourishing group of determined women who accomplish minor miracles.

Miracles like fashion shows for 650 people. Or raising $3,000 a year for the fun of giving it away.

But back to its humble beginnings that cold November afternoon in 1960. Dorothy Westman, then a new resident, had tried her best to round up a good number of neighborhood women. She had spread the word of her meeting, had made sure member Jean Kolba published it in her Waycinden Wanderings column in the local paper. The results were so disappointing. Only eight women showed up.

"IT WAS A LITTLE dream of mine," she said. "I wanted to develop an outlet for the energies and talents of community women. We were all new residents; many of us were lonely. We hardly knew each other."

The second meeting drew 14 women, and within a few months, the group of 35 was too large to be contained comfortably in a home. The women moved to a large kitchen room at Einstein Elementary School, later to Dempster Junior High, where it still convenes monthly.

Now in its 17th year, Waycinden Park Woman's Club has retained its local flavor, has refused to give up its independence to become part of a larger organization. "It might take away from the small town feeling," said Dolores Hermansen, a past president and member for 13 years. At one time its membership soared to 100.

BUT THE OUTSTANDING characteristic about the club is that it likes — really enjoys — giving away money. Not just to anybody, mind you. It channels its gifts according to the personal interests and preferences of its members, who now number around 50. And the members follow through — they like to see where the money goes.

"We do so much good for so many people," said Dolores. "The philanthropy report is a joy to hear."

Take Clearbrook School, for instance. The club furnished a room there, and the same evening held its installation of officers in that room so all the members could see it. At Kirk Center, a group of members watched a demonstration of the equipment their club had furnished.

FOR THE ELDERLY residents of the Graceland and Des Plaines Homes, members not only bring personal gifts and holiday items, such as Easter baskets, but bring children to pass them out, a never-fail way to bring smiles to passive faces.

Because Waycinden Park is in School District 59, the club furnished a projector, oil paintings, a gym mat and as an innovation this year, will give a $25 Good Samaritan award to an eighth grade girl at Friendship Junior High. Because the teen-agers of Waycinden Park attend Forest View High School, the club adds its Girls Sports Award to the school's annual awards.

"We sponsor a Little League team, too," said Mrs. Hermansen. "Those little guys came up with a first place trophy twice for us."

THE DES PLAINES Historical Society, Paramedics, and Children's Dental Clinic get a slice of the club's generosity, as does Maryville Academy and the Edison Park Children's home. At Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas, club members take food baskets to as many as 17 needy families.

Other recipients are the O'Hare USO, the Neediest Kids Fund, the Pilot Guide Dog Foundation and the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The gifts come to $3,000 a year, a great portion of which is raised at the club's annual fashion show in October, a big bash with so many gifts and prizes that three-fourths of the guests go home with something in their arms.

Waycinden Park women are such neighborly people, welcoming newcomers, visiting the sick, bringing food or babysitting when someone must go to the hospital. "It's a close feeling," said Dolores. "We don't get too far from home base. We're available for any disaster."

THE CLUB MEMBERSHIP represents a cross-section of women of all ages and interests. There are mothers of pre-schoolers, of high school age kids, and of kids who have grown up and married. There are career women, too. One member, a past president with multiple sclerosis, comes in a motorized wheelchair.

Pat Davidson is current president. Four of the original eight who attended that first meeting in 1961 still are active members: Helen Jakubek, Marge Carlson, Deena Roglin and Jean Haugeberg.

Dorothy Westman, founder and past president, now lives in Schaumburg, but it gives her great pleasure to know that her "little dream" of pooling the energies and talents of women in a single neighborhood is alive and still flourishing in Des Plaines' Waycinden Park.

Self-destructive stereotype

Chauvinistic behavior only skin deep

by RON HUTCHERSON

It's superficial and wrong to look at the American male as a chauvinist, says university psychologist Herbert Goldberg.

"Rather than being top dog and exploitive, most men operate as masochists and are constantly involved in proving something, and in self-denial," said Goldberg in a presentation on his interpretation of the male experience in modern America.

"They do little that feels good."

Goldberg, of the psychology department at California State University at Los Angeles, told delegates to a convention of anthropological and archaeological organizations recently the "descriptions of a male as a chauvinist" are only "a surface interpretation."

"THE MALE ROLE has been grossly misinterpreted," he said.

But now there is this "power exploitive stereotype" of the Amerian man. Goldberg says the response of this archetypal man has been "to stretch himself even more to accommodate" women and to feel guilty about being exploitive.

In his view, the male tries too hard to live up to a "macho" stereotype when, in fact, he is "deeply and primitively dependent on the woman in his life."

"The male is self-destructive and troubled with self-hate, as from the 'Little boys are made of snakes and snails (rhyme),'" Goldberg continued. "He is the victim of an actor-reactor syndrome with women."

HE EXPLAINED that women remain passive and wait for men to make both the decisions and the mistakes. As an example, he gave this interplay of a man taking a woman to dinner.

- He: What would you like to eat?
- She: Just about anything is fine with me.
- He: I know good places for Chinese and Italian.
- She: Oh, I like both. Whatever you prefer.

"By the time he gets to Mama Giovanni's Italian Restaurant, he's going to have as heavy an involvement with the food as if he'd cooked it," Goldberg said.

The male actor was to acknowledge and express his ideas and wants, while the female reactor avoids decisions and mistakes, and correspondingly, when the male is right he is a hero and when wrong, a bum, he said.

Dependence on the female isolates the male from close relationships with other males and makes him vulnerable to physical crises and death, Goldberg said.

And, said Goldberg, "Fear of vulnerability prevents him from paying attention to his body. When he is emotionally in trouble, he'll deny it as long as possible."

HE CITED AS THE male's body-destructive macho traits:

- Proving he can stand pain;
- Forcing himself to be hyperactive and to resist or not admit fatigue;
- Declining to seek a doctor's help;
- And being emotionally repressive, and therefore vulnerable to alcohol, drugs and phychosomatic disorders.

The male also becomes sexually defensive, he said.

"All of this adds up to a zombie-like male experience," he concluded. "I perceive the male as profoundly self-destructive, more a masochist than a self-aggrandizer. He burns out early."

Goldberg told his audience it is time for men to redefine their roles, permit their women "to come out of hiding" and admit they (males) will not be destroyed by the women's concealed feelings of lust, rage and aggression.

Wife abuse series starts tomorrow

Wife battering is a problem-in-hiding, like child abuse, alcoholism and rape. Some experts consider wife-beating the most prevalent of all crimes in the United States. Beginning tomorrow a three-part series on wife abuse will focus on the problems and experiences of battered women in the Northwestern suburbs and what kinds of help are available.

Keep details simple on fluid, lightweight knits

Eunice Farmer

Sew simple

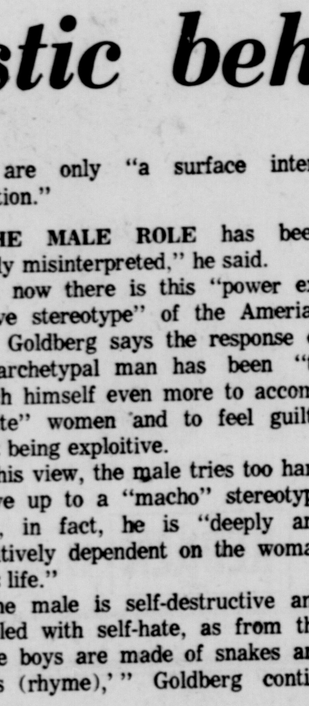

Dear Eunice Farmer: I am making a prom dress out of Qiana knit for my daughter. I've used lace at the hem, but can't conceal the bulk. How can I make it look more professional? —Mrs. B.S.S.

Dear Mrs. B.S.S.: Your mistake was using lace for the hem on this fine knit. Most of us who have been sewing for years find it difficult to change our old habits and methods, yet new fabrics call for a change.

Knits that are lightweight and fluid simply require machine stitching the hems. Stich about one-fourth inch from the fold of the hem and cut away the excess fabric. If done carefully, the edge will actually look like it has a cording for a finish.

Please remember to keep construction details at a minimum when working with today's sheer fabrics. It's wise to take time to examine the techniques used on ready-to-wear articles of the same type fabric and revise your old methods.

If you are tailoring a beautiful garment or working with an underlined silk, you may use these beautiful details, but not on the quick sewing that is found in most garments today.

"To avoid cutting two pieces of fabric for the same side when you have to cut your garment on a single layer of fabric, always leave your pattern attached to the first piece you cut. That way, you will know to lay it face down when cutting for the opposite side."

Dear Eunice Farmer: I want to make my husband some sport shirts but have a problem with the neckline. He is stoop-shouldered and the neckline pulls out of shape. What can I do about this? —Your faithful reader.

You must alter your husband's pattern before you begin. This adjustment would be the same as for a woman that is round-shouldered.

The pattern must be slashed about four inches below the neckline, beginning at the center back and cutting to about one inch from the armhole.

Place another piece of paper under this area and separate the pattern about ½ inch, tapering to nothing at the armhole.

Remark the center back seam, making it straight from the lower part of the shirt to the neckline (you will find the center back is slightly larger at the neckline).

For the neckline to fit the collar, you must take this exact amount out of the neckline in the form of a small dart in your pattern, tapering to nothing about three inches below the neckline.

The extra fabric you have added to the back of the pattern should allow it to fit over the stooped back and still fit the original pattern for the collar.

Dear Eunice Farmer: I have just finished making a skirt that is almost straight, yet has a few gathers at the waistline. These gathers at the waist seem to make the skirt fit over my curves better than a skirt with darts. However, after I attached the waistband, the gathers billow up almost above the waistband. What should I do? —Mrs. A.B.

Dear Mrs. A.B.: This sounds like your waistband is too tight.

You should always fit the waistband separately from the skirt — don't go by the pattern measurement, as you often need more room for tuck in blouses, etc. When cutting the waistband, measure your waist and add about two inches until the skirt has been fitted.

If you do this, I think you will find the waistband fits nicely without stretching and the skirt will be beautiful on you.

The doctor says

Benefits of X rays outweigh the risks

Recently my daughter had an X-ray of her heart, as doctors found a murmur.

A friend of mine has since told me that X rays expose a person to the risk of chest and breast cancer. According to her the radiation stays in the body for some time and within 10 to 15 years I can expect the worst. She also says that an X ray of the sinuses causes cancer of the eyes. I can't tell you how I feel. I guess she has scared me half to death. Could you comment on the danger in your column?

Relax! Almost everyone gets X rays and certainly not everyone gets cancer. Your friend is a bilateral double-rotating alarmist and I would disregard her well meaning but ill-founded fears.

We all are exposed to radiation every day. There is a certain level of background radiation in the soil and elsewhere that comes from solar radiation.

The basic position of the American College of Radiology and the American Medical Association is that if there is a medical reason to do an X ray — as to determine the status of your daughter's heart — the danger of radiation is slight enough that it should not interfere with the practice of good medicine. Recently the American College of Radiology has decided that X rays of pregnant women, when needed, need not be postponed because of pregnancy or suspected pregnancy.

I think you can be quite certain that the chest X ray your daughter had will not cause her any harm.

You may be interested to know that some of the scare stories on radiation are based on calculations that may not apply to human risk for such procedures as chest X rays. The data may have overestimated the risk from diagnostic X rays as much as five to 20 times the real risk.

I am a 28-year-old mother of three children. Recently I lost 16 pounds and do hope to keep it off. I would like a diet to stick with so I can eat properly each day. My doctor said to stay around 1,400 calories a day and I wouldn't gain back my weight loss. I do gain weight easily.

Also, if I drink socially, how many calories should I stay with? I don't eat very much when we are going out that evening. I usually have three drinks the entire evening but was curious.

Although three children may keep you pretty busy, if you can program a nice walk into your daily routine it will help you keep your weight down. Being busy and frustrated with too much to do is not the same thing as healthy physical exercise that you need to use calories.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, as you requested. You can use this plan as a basis for a regular diet for yourself. It contains about 1,200 calories and you can add to these basic foods whatever you like as long as you don't eat so much you start gaining weight again. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Alcohol frequently destroys a good fat control program. If you estimate that one ounce of alcoholic beverage is used to make a cocktail there will be about 75 calories from the alcohol alone, plus calories from whatever mix you use. If it is water it is nothing; if fruit juice, it is a lot.

Reader can dry edible laurel leaves at home

Dear Dorothy: Is there any reason why I can't dry my own laurel leaves instead of buying the commercially dried leaves? I know there are a number of variations, but I'm pretty sure we have the right kind of bush.—Carol Christopher

The several types of bay leaf have slightly different characteristics and colors. Greek and Turkish leaves are slightly serrated along the edges, greenish-brown and of medium pungency. The California bay leaf is extremely pungent — two to three times more so than the European varieties. If you've checked your laurel with the good books about edible plants and those that are dangerous, there's no reason you shouldn't go ahead. The mountain laurel has the same name, but the whole plant is poisonous.

Dear Dorothy: I'm experiencing an infestation of silverfish in the attic storage area. What's the most efficient method of getting rid of them?—Robert J. Leverman

Get rid of everything that contains starch or glue — such as boxes, books and so forth — and then spray with lindane, ronnel or malathion household spray. Chlordane did a fine, fast job, but it's no longer available. These others ought to do it, however.

Dear Dorothy: The mother of one of my good friends says she always has at least one sweet potato a week — that they're good for you. Is there any reason for this that you know?—Curious Milly

Well, they are loaded with some of the best vitamins. A 100-portion of sweet potato contains 8,800 international units of vitamin A, as well as a fine scattering of other nutrients. So there's sound scientific backing for her belief.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

The doctor says

Benefits of X rays outweigh the risks

Recently my daughter had an X-ray of her heart, as doctors found a murmur.

A friend of mine has since told me that X rays expose a person to the risk of chest and breast cancer. According to her the radiation stays in the body for some time and within 10 to 15 years I can expect the worst. She also says that an X ray of the sinuses causes cancer of the eyes. I can't tell you how I feel. I guess she has scared me half to death. Could you comment on the danger in your column?

Relax! Almost everyone gets X rays and certainly not everyone gets cancer. Your friend is a bilateral double-rotating alarmist and I would disregard her well meaning but ill-founded fears.

We all are exposed to radiation every day. There is a certain level of background radiation in the soil and elsewhere that comes from solar radiation.

The basic position of the American College of Radiology and the American Medical Association is that if there is a medical reason to do an X ray — as to determine the status of your daughter's heart — the danger of radiation is slight enough that it should not interfere with the practice of good medicine. Recently the American College of Radiology has decided that X rays of pregnant women, when needed, need not be postponed because of pregnancy or suspected pregnancy.

I think you can be quite certain that the chest X ray your daughter had will not cause her any harm.

You may be interested to know that some of the scare stories on radiation are based on calculations that may not apply to human risk for such procedures as chest X rays. The data may have overestimated the risk from diagnostic X rays as much as five to 20 times the real risk.

I am a 28-year-old mother of three children. Recently I lost 16 pounds and do hope to keep it off. I would like a diet to stick with so I can eat properly each day. My doctor said to stay around 1,400 calories a day and I wouldn't gain back my weight loss. I do gain weight easily.

Also, if I drink socially, how many calories should I stay with? I don't eat very much when we are going out that evening. I usually have three drinks the entire evening but was curious.

Although three children may keep you pretty busy, if you can program a nice walk into your daily routine it will help you keep your weight down. Being busy and frustrated with too much to do is not the same thing as healthy physical exercise that you need to use calories.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, as you requested. You can use this plan as a basis for a regular diet for yourself. It contains about 1,200 calories and you can add to these basic foods whatever you like as long as you don't eat so much you start gaining weight again. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Alcohol frequently destroys a good fat control program. If you estimate that one ounce of alcoholic beverage is used to make a cocktail there will be about 75 calories from the alcohol alone, plus calories from whatever mix you use. If it is water it is nothing; if fruit juice, it is a lot.

Reader can dry edible laurel leaves at home

Dear Dorothy: Is there any reason why I can't dry my own laurel leaves instead of buying the commercially dried leaves? I know there are a number of variations, but I'm pretty sure we have the right kind of bush.—Carol Christopher

The several types of bay leaf have slightly different characteristics and colors. Greek and Turkish leaves are slightly serrated along the edges, greenish-brown and of medium pungency. The California bay leaf is extremely pungent — two to three times more so than the European varieties. If you've checked your laurel with the good books about edible plants and those that are dangerous, there's no reason you shouldn't go ahead. The mountain laurel has the same name, but the whole plant is poisonous.

Dear Dorothy: I'm experiencing an infestation of silverfish in the attic storage area. What's the most efficient method of getting rid of them?—Robert J. Leverman

Get rid of everything that contains starch or glue — such as boxes, books and so forth — and then spray with lindane, ronnel or malathion household spray. Chlordane did a fine, fast job, but it's no longer available. These others ought to do it, however.

Dear Dorothy: The mother of one of my good friends says she always has at least one sweet potato a week — that they're good for you. Is there any reason for this that you know?—Curious Milly

Well, they are loaded with some of the best vitamins. A 100-portion of sweet potato contains 8,800 international units of vitamin A, as well as a fine scattering of other nutrients. So there's sound scientific backing for her belief.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

WLS-TV employes rally to do their best

One newsroom official looked up from his typewriter long enough to say he didn't believe a strike was an effective weapon. "No one can shut down the money machine," he said.

By the looks of things at WLS-TV Channel 7, that seems to be true.

There is a driving force in human nature that pulls people close together in the face of a crisis. If any of the three network-owned television stations were not able to come through with an evening newscast in this fiercely competitive market, it would be a disaster for those involved.

WITH THAT IN mind executives at Channel 7 have been on double duty since last week when engineers and technicians, members of the National Assn., of Broadcast Employes and Technicians, walked out after a break in contract negotiations.

The contract dispute is over working conditions for electronic newsgathering technicians, the hiring of freelance union technicians and the participation in lighting pool setups with other networks when covering the same story. The trike involves the entire ABC network.

Persons picketing outside the WLS-TV offices at 190 N. State St., and the employes frantically running around the inside, are still friends. They have a healthy respect for each other's union and work situation. It seems everyone involved would like to see the strike over soon.

EVERYONE'S EFFORTS are to keep regular programming going during the strike. When you know the show has to go on, you get in there and learn fast, supervisors say.

The atmosphere is tense inside the control room, a carnival of bright lights on control panels and monitors. Putting a live news show on the air, three times each night, is serious business, and warrants even more concentration and effort with the regular crew absent.

Station manager Phil Boyer is filling in as technical director of the 5, 6 and 10 p.m. newscasts. He carefully manipulates the buttons and switches on the master control board, coordinating film clips, visuals, namelines and commercials.

IN THE NEWSROOM, Elizabeth Barks, editorial director, is filling in on the U-shaped copy desk, writing on-air copy from wire stories. She says she has had to learn to work in the midst of the noise and pandemonium that characterize any newsroom. She says she has a better understanding of the challenges her associates on the news-side of the business face each day.

Reporters, who usually go out and cover their stories and return to the station to write their own reports, are handling several other duties during the strike. "It's like those days when the school children are allowed to take over the city for a day and run things. There are a lot of people doing things they don't normally do, but everyone's learning and helping out," said reporter Rona Douglas. "If anything, this strike is bringing a lot of us closer together."

Diane Preacely, a publicist, has been "promoted" to associate producer of the news and is making 20 trips each day between the ninth-floor newsroom and 12th-floor studios with lists of identifying namelines and visuals that must be flashed onto the screen during the newscasts.

MANY OF THE "new recruits" have plenty of news and production experience under their belts and are familiar with equipment and procedure.

Film camermen, not members of the striking union, are honoring the picket lines and call in for their assignments. They have their film sent by messenger into the newsroom.

Despite quickly arranged training sessions and 14-hour work days, many television personnel admit they are not completely certain what will happen once they are on the air. A general air of confidence is sprinkled with uncertainty, and although the newscasts come off fairly well, they are interspersed with a few mistakes.

Barbra Streisand stars in "Hello Dolly"

THE WRONG VISUALS are flashed on the screen during a report, the wrong namelines are used to identify a person, film clips don't run at the right time and the audio wavers.

"Oh sure, there have been a few things. But, things are running pretty smoothly. We haven't forgone anything because of the strike," said Vinnie Burke, news assignment manager. The station has not utilized its minicams for videotape or live reports on the street yet, "but, if the need arises, we are ready to use them."

Live programs such as "A.M. Chicago" and local shows like "B.J.'s Gigglesnort Hotel," are being produced as scheduled.

But, the newscasts are what try men's souls. When the wrong film clip crops up behind an anchorman's head, or an incorrect visual shows up across the face of a reporter, or a commercial ends and no one's quite ready to go back on the air, there is a moaning and groaning kind of "Oh, darn!" that goes out through the studios.

WLS-TV EXECUTIVES say the situation can only improve and the first few days of a strike are the worst. But, the camaraderie, enthusiam and welcome change of pace that exists now may become nothing more than an exhausting task as weeks or even months of the strike go by.

There is too much money at stake and a reputation to uphold despite the problems. The man was right when he said nothing can stop the money machine.

The show must go on and it does.

TV Highlights:

- Rona Douglas starts a three-part report today on "Going it Alone" as a single parent on Channel 7's Eyewitness evening news.
- "Hello, Dolly," which stars Barbra Streisand as the happy matchmaker, airs on Channel 2 at 7:30 p.m.
- Chicago Acting Mayor Michael Bilandic and Ald. Dennis Block, both vying for the city's top job, will participate in live debate sponsored by the League of Women Voters at 8 p.m. on Channel 11.
- The final episode of "Testimony of Two Men" airs at 8 p.m. on Channel 9.

'Patton' no impact on bombing: Nixon

Richard Nixon says the movie „Patton" did not inspire his 1970 decision toon" did not inspire his 1970 decision to bomb Cambodia.

Nixon had seen "Patton" twice between April 20 and April 30, 1970 — the day he ordered the Cambodian incursion — and interviewer David Frost asked him on a third televised interview last week if it had affected his decision.

"The war part of the 'Patton' movie didn't particularly interest me," Nixon said. "The character sketch was fascinating. And as far as that was concerned, it had no efect whatever on my decision."

"I've seen the 'Sound of Music' twice and it hasn't made me a writer either," Nixon said.

WLS-TV employes rally to do their best

One newsroom official looked up from his typewriter long enough to say he didn't believe a strike was an effective weapon. "No one can shut down the money machine," he said.

By the looks of things at WLS-TV Channel 7, that seems to be true.

There is a driving force in human nature that pulls people close together in the face of a crisis. If any of the three network-owned television stations were not able to come through with an evening newscast in this fiercely competitive market, it would be a disaster for those involved.

WITH THAT IN mind executives at Channel 7 have been on double duty since last week when engineers and technicians, members of the National Assn., of Broadcast Employes and Technicians, walked out after a break in contract negotiations.

The contract dispute is over working conditions for electronic newsgathering technicians, the hiring of freelance union technicians and the participation in lighting pool setups with other networks when covering the same story. The trike involves the entire ABC network.

Persons picketing outside the WLS-TV offices at 190 N. State St., and the employes frantically running around the inside, are still friends. They have a healthy respect for each other's union and work situation. It seems everyone involved would like to see the strike over soon.

EVERYONE'S EFFORTS are to keep regular programming going during the strike. When you know the show has to go on, you get in there and learn fast, supervisors say.

The atmosphere is tense inside the control room, a carnival of bright lights on control panels and monitors. Putting a live news show on the air, three times each night, is serious business, and warrants even more concentration and effort with the regular crew absent.

Station manager Phil Boyer is filling in as technical director of the 5, 6 and 10 p.m. newscasts. He carefully manipulates the buttons and switches on the master control board, coordinating film clips, visuals, namelines and commercials.

IN THE NEWSROOM, Elizabeth Barks, editorial director, is filling in on the U-shaped copy desk, writing on-air copy from wire stories. She says she has had to learn to work in the midst of the noise and pandemonium that characterize any newsroom. She says she has a better understanding of the challenges her associates on the news-side of the business face each day.

Reporters, who usually go out and cover their stories and return to the station to write their own reports, are handling several other duties during the strike. "It's like those days when the school children are allowed to take over the city for a day and run things. There are a lot of people doing things they don't normally do, but everyone's learning and helping out," said reporter Rona Douglas. "If anything, this strike is bringing a lot of us closer together."

Diane Preacely, a publicist, has been "promoted" to associate producer of the news and is making 20 trips each day between the ninth-floor newsroom and 12th-floor studios with lists of identifying namelines and visuals that must be flashed onto the screen during the newscasts.

MANY OF THE "new recruits" have plenty of news and production experience under their belts and are familiar with equipment and procedure.

Film camermen, not members of the striking union, are honoring the picket lines and call in for their assignments. They have their film sent by messenger into the newsroom.

Despite quickly arranged training sessions and 14-hour work days, many television personnel admit they are not completely certain what will happen once they are on the air. A general air of confidence is sprinkled with uncertainty, and although the newscasts come off fairly well, they are interspersed with a few mistakes.

Barbra Streisand stars in "Hello Dolly"

THE WRONG VISUALS are flashed on the screen during a report, the wrong namelines are used to identify a person, film clips don't run at the right time and the audio wavers.

"Oh sure, there have been a few things. But, things are running pretty smoothly. We haven't forgone anything because of the strike," said Vinnie Burke, news assignment manager. The station has not utilized its minicams for videotape or live reports on the street yet, "but, if the need arises, we are ready to use them."

Live programs such as "A.M. Chicago" and local shows like "B.J.'s Gigglesnort Hotel," are being produced as scheduled.

But, the newscasts are what try men's souls. When the wrong film clip crops up behind an anchorman's head, or an incorrect visual shows up across the face of a reporter, or a commercial ends and no one's quite ready to go back on the air, there is a moaning and groaning kind of "Oh, darn!" that goes out through the studios.

WLS-TV EXECUTIVES say the situation can only improve and the first few days of a strike are the worst. But, the camaraderie, enthusiam and welcome change of pace that exists now may become nothing more than an exhausting task as weeks or even months of the strike go by.

There is too much money at stake and a reputation to uphold despite the problems. The man was right when he said nothing can stop the money machine.

The show must go on and it does.

TV Highlights:

- Rona Douglas starts a three-part report today on "Going it Alone" as a single parent on Channel 7's Eyewitness evening news.
- "Hello, Dolly," which stars Barbra Streisand as the happy matchmaker, airs on Channel 2 at 7:30 p.m.
- Chicago Acting Mayor Michael Bilandic and Ald. Dennis Block, both vying for the city's top job, will participate in live debate sponsored by the League of Women Voters at 8 p.m. on Channel 11.
- The final episode of "Testimony of Two Men" airs at 8 p.m. on Channel 9.

'Patton' no impact on bombing: Nixon

Richard Nixon says the movie „Patton" did not inspire his 1970 decision toon" did not inspire his 1970 decision to bomb Cambodia.

Nixon had seen "Patton" twice between April 20 and April 30, 1970 — the day he ordered the Cambodian incursion — and interviewer David Frost asked him on a third televised interview last week if it had affected his decision.

"The war part of the 'Patton' movie didn't particularly interest me," Nixon said. "The character sketch was fascinating. And as far as that was concerned, it had no efect whatever on my decision."

"I've seen the 'Sound of Music' twice and it hasn't made me a writer either," Nixon said.

Restriction tells choice

Jim: "Since we mentioned the principle of restricted choice last week, we ought to try to explain it this week."

Oswald: "Try, is correct. We will devote a few articles to it this week. If any readers don't understand it after our explanations, we ask them to take it on faith. There are plenty of top players who don't understand it either."

Jim: "South finds himself in a normal four-spade contract. East wins the first trick with the ace of hearts and returns the deuce to his partner's king. West shifts to the deuce of clubs. South wins and leads a trump toward dummy. West plays the queen and South puts up dummy's king. Then if he knows about restricted choice, he finesses against East's jack and makes his contract."

Oswald: "The reason for this is that when West played the queen, he was either playing it from singleton queen or doubleton queen-jack. If he had held the doubleton he might well have played the jack, not the queen. Hence, it was more likely that the queen had been a singleton and the finesse was indicated."

CAPTAIN EASY by Crooks & Lawrence

PRISCILLA'S POP by Al Vermeer

Ask Andy

Centipede feat is crawling on its many feet

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Scott McIlvride, 12, of St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada, for his question:

DOES A CENTIPEDE REALLY HAVE 100 FEET?

Although most people call the centipede the hundred-legged worm, most of them have only 15 pairs and several families even fewer. One variety, however, the long and slender type found in rotting logs, may possess 173 pairs of legs. The centipede's name in the Latin, actually, means hundred-legged.

Largest of the centipedes are the giants found on a small island off the coast of Trinidad in the West Indies. This type measures 12 inches long and an inch wide. He can catch mice and lizards but lives mostly on larger tropical insects.

The centipede's legs are attached at the sides of a flattened body. This arrangement lets the animal slip easily in and out of crevices while hunting. His victims are killed with venom from glands opening in the highly modified first pair of legs, which serve as jaws.

The house centipede, found in households throughout the world, is comparatively harmless. His 15 pairs of banded legs are so very long and slender that they must be held in a bent position. The body may be two inches long and is usually light brown with three dark lengthwise stripes. The creature, who is an arthropod, rarely will bite a human. An occasional bite is comparable to a wasp's sting. Best of all, the centipede cleans out lots of very undesirable household insects.

A number of varieties of the centipede can be seen at night by their own light. We don't know why some are luminescent, but this type can be found in many parts of Europe. They have very long, threadlike bodies.

Centipedes move quickly. They reach out ahead with long antennae, and always seem to be searching for insects, earthworms or other prey.

A distant relative is the millipede, which means thousand-legged. This creature actually can have up to 200 legs. He's a harmless scavenger who eats decaying plant material.

In some parts of Polynesia, large centipedes are very highly esteemed as an item of food for humans. People in the islands hold the creature by its two ends and roast it over a small fire. They then chew the toasted middle portions — and rate it a dining delicacy. Who knows? The islanders probably turn up their noses when offered chocolate candy.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Denise Eisenback, 11, of Jefferson Town, Ky., for her question:

WHO WAS SACAGAWEA?

Sacagawea was an American Indian girl who has a secure place in the history books in the story of the building of the West. Born a Shoshone she was taken by the Hidatsa tribe as a child. Her name means "bird woman."

Sacagawea and her French-Canadian husband, Toussaint Charbonneau, both became guides for Lewis and Clark on their expedition to the Pacific in 1805. She gave great assistance in dealing with the many tribes along the way through the mountain country where she had spent her childhood. Throughout the expedition she carried her infant son on her back.

Some records show she died as a young woman in 1812, but others indicate that she lived to a ripe old age and died in 1884.

Restriction tells choice

Jim: "Since we mentioned the principle of restricted choice last week, we ought to try to explain it this week."

Oswald: "Try, is correct. We will devote a few articles to it this week. If any readers don't understand it after our explanations, we ask them to take it on faith. There are plenty of top players who don't understand it either."

Jim: "South finds himself in a normal four-spade contract. East wins the first trick with the ace of hearts and returns the deuce to his partner's king. West shifts to the deuce of clubs. South wins and leads a trump toward dummy. West plays the queen and South puts up dummy's king. Then if he knows about restricted choice, he finesses against East's jack and makes his contract."

Oswald: "The reason for this is that when West played the queen, he was either playing it from singleton queen or doubleton queen-jack. If he had held the doubleton he might well have played the jack, not the queen. Hence, it was more likely that the queen had been a singleton and the finesse was indicated."

Ask Andy

Centipede feat is crawling on its many feet

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Scott McIlvride, 12, of St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada, for his question:

DOES A CENTIPEDE REALLY HAVE 100 FEET?

Although most people call the centipede the hundred-legged worm, most of them have only 15 pairs and several families even fewer. One variety, however, the long and slender type found in rotting logs, may possess 173 pairs of legs. The centipede's name in the Latin, actually, means hundred-legged.

Largest of the centipedes are the giants found on a small island off the coast of Trinidad in the West Indies. This type measures 12 inches long and an inch wide. He can catch mice and lizards but lives mostly on larger tropical insects.

The centipede's legs are attached at the sides of a flattened body. This arrangement lets the animal slip easily in and out of crevices while hunting. His victims are killed with venom from glands opening in the highly modified first pair of legs, which serve as jaws.

The house centipede, found in households throughout the world, is comparatively harmless. His 15 pairs of banded legs are so very long and slender that they must be held in a bent position. The body may be two inches long and is usually light brown with three dark lengthwise stripes. The creature, who is an arthropod, rarely will bite a human. An occasional bite is comparable to a wasp's sting. Best of all, the centipede cleans out lots of very undesirable household insects.

A number of varieties of the centipede can be seen at night by their own light. We don't know why some are luminescent, but this type can be found in many parts of Europe. They have very long, threadlike bodies.

Centipedes move quickly. They reach out ahead with long antennae, and always seem to be searching for insects, earthworms or other prey.

A distant relative is the millipede, which means thousand-legged. This creature actually can have up to 200 legs. He's a harmless scavenger who eats decaying plant material.

In some parts of Polynesia, large centipedes are very highly esteemed as an item of food for humans. People in the islands hold the creature by its two ends and roast it over a small fire. They then chew the toasted middle portions — and rate it a dining delicacy. Who knows? The islanders probably turn up their noses when offered chocolate candy.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Denise Eisenback, 11, of Jefferson Town, Ky., for her question: WHO WAS SACAGAWEA?

Sacagawea was an American Indian girl who has a secure place in the history books in the story of the building of the West. Born a Shoshone she was taken by the Hidatsa tribe as a child. Her name means "bird woman."

Sacagawea and her French-Canadian husband, Toussaint Charbonneau, both became guides for Lewis and Clark on their expedition to the Pacific in 1805. She gave great assistance in dealing with the many tribes along the way through the mountain country where she had spent her childhood. Throughout the expedition she carried her infant son on her back.

Some records show she died as a young woman in 1812, but others indicate that she lived to a ripe old age and died in 1884.

Detroit pounds Wood, Sox

by BOB GALLAS

Wilbur Wood wouldn't have made a very good conquering hero back in the days of the Roman Empire.

The rotund knuckleballer finally returned to the scene of earlier triumphs — the pitching mound — Sunday as he started his first game in more than a year. But the Detroit Tigers, who were in no mood to be conquered, took "Bat Day" seriously and chased Wilbur after only an inning en route to a 14-3 romp over the White Sox.

Wilbur was nicked for six runs before departing after walking the opening two hitters of the second inning though the crowd of 30,030 scarcely remembered by the end of the game three hours later thanks to:

• A tremendous 460-foot home run to the center field bleachers by Richie Zisk, who becomes only the fifth player in history to do so. Zisk's only comment: "Now that I proved I can put a ball into the bleachers Bill Veeck will never move the fences in."

• A return of the Sox version of "outfield follies" as a 24-miles-per-hour wind blowing out simply ruined the day for Ralph Garr.

• A fair pitching performance by 20-year-old Dave "The Rose" Rozema, who struck out five, walked nobody but served up home run balls to Zisk and Oscar Gamble.

"Nothing hurt, I just got the bleep kicked out of me," said Wood, who hasn't started a game since a year ago when his kneecap was shattered by a ball off the bat of Ron LeFlore of Detroit. LeFlore did not play Sunday. "The ball was breaking but everything was high. Then I tried to compensate and everything was breaking into the dirt in front of the plate."

Sox manager Bob Lemon, who watched the game from the dugout runway in street clothes, said he'd try to get Wood into a few more games from the bullpen, and might start him Sunday in New York.

The loss was the third straight for the South Siders, equalling their longest down skein of the season.

EVEN THOUGH the umpires refused to accept Lemon's protest because it was a "judgment" call, Sox owner Bill Veeck, who felt it should have been a ground rule double because the ball was heading into the seats on a bounce when touched, said he plans to file a protest anyway.

First base umpire Lou DiMuro ruled the fan interference and it was home plate umpire Dale Ford who ruled that Gamble must not take second, because in Ford's judgment, right fielder Tim Corcoran would have had a play on Gamble at second had the ball not been touched by a fan.

Zisk's blast, which came in the eighth inning with no one on base, puts him in some select company. He was the first to put a ball into the bleachers since Dick Allen did it back in August of the 1972 season. The event not only stunned the crowd but apparently the scoreboard operator who had to be reminded to set the exploding board off and didn't do so until after Zisk had run the bases.

The only others to record a bleachers' clout in Comiskey Park are Jimmy Foxx, Hank Greenberg and Alex Johnson.

WHITE SOX fans, who've been shut out from seeing Mark "The Bird" Fidrych pitch in the past two seasons, did get the next best thing Sunday. Early arrivers saw Fidrych pitch about 20 minutes of batting practice as he warmed up for his first start of the season against Seattle in Detroit on Friday. Fidrych hurt his knee in spring training and recently rejoined the team.

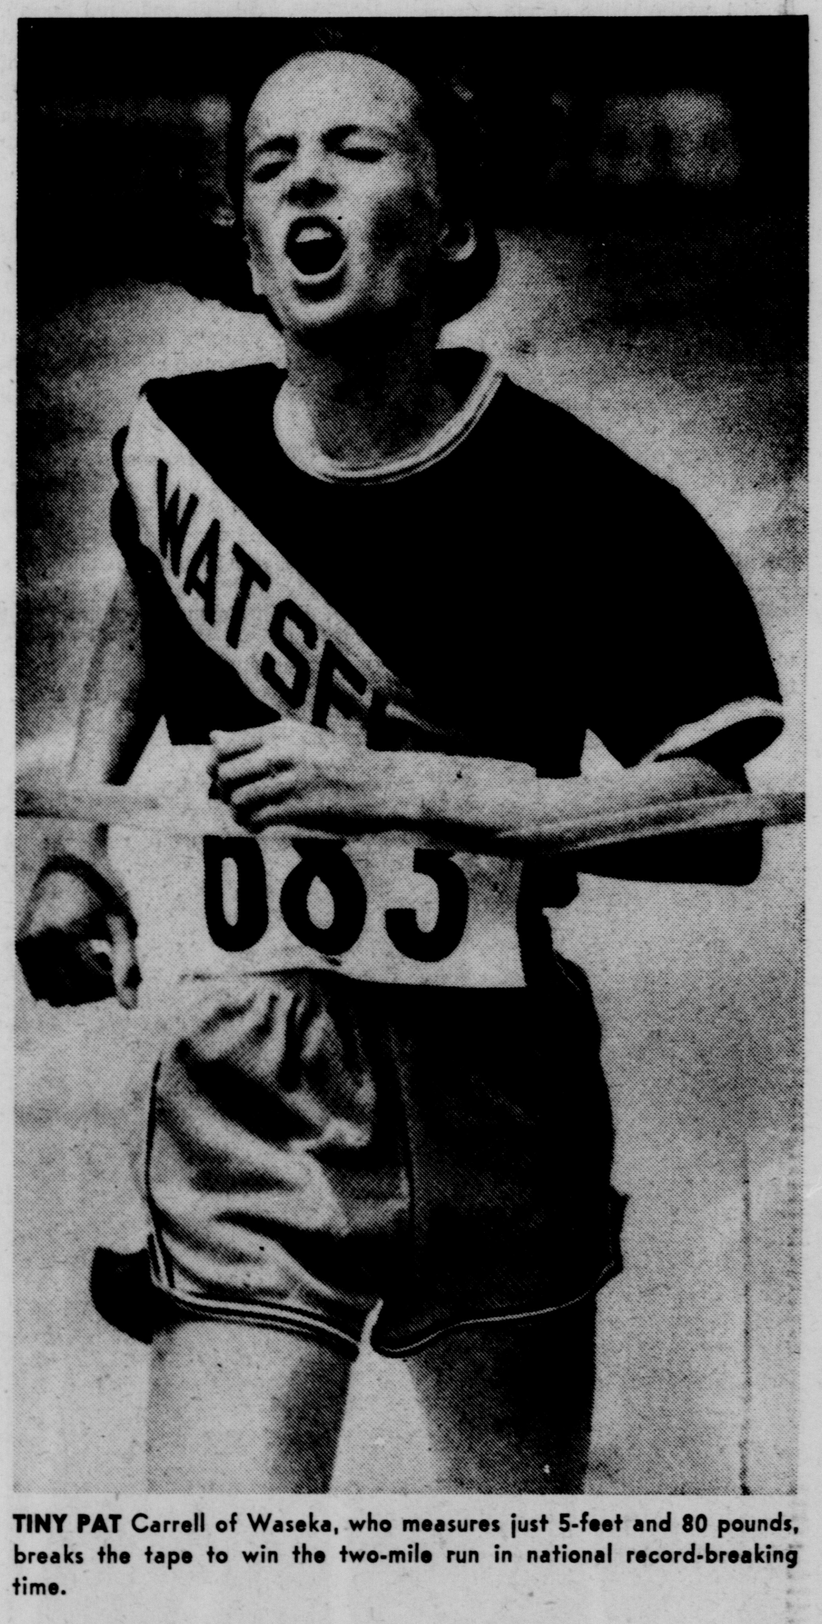

The strong wind blowing out didn't affect the Tiger outfield but did cause some problems for leftfielder Garr and centerfielder Jerry Hairston, who came in for Chet Lemon in the fifth inning when Lemon aggravated a heel injury sustained Saturday.

Garr staggered under several fly balls, the most notable being a ball hit by Jason Thompson, who finished with five runs batted in, which dropped 10-feet behind Garr for an RBI triple in the second.

Hairston tangled with the wall on a Mickey Stanley double in the seventh, then got into some confusion with Zisk in right as a ball hit by Rusty Staub dropped for a run scoring single.

BRUCE DAL CANTON worked 4 2/3 innings for the Sox and gave up three more runs. Dave Hamilton was nailed for four runs, only one earned, in his one-inning stint and Lerrin LaGrow gave up a run as he worked the final 2 1/3 innings.

After off-days today and Tuesday, the Sox start a two-city road trip beginning Wednesday in Milwaukee and ending with a weekend series in New York.

TINY PAT Carrell of Waseka, who measures just 5-feet and 80 pounds, breaks the tape to win the two-mile run in national record-breaking time.

Cubs are sidetracked 5-2 by Atlanta's good pitching

ATLANTA — The Cubs' traveling base-hit show ran into two more major league pitchers Sunday, two guys named Andy and Jamie who forced the Cubs to forget about first place at least for awhile.

Braves' starter Andy Messersmith, not able to wind up because of a sore rib cage, pitched well enough from a stretch for six innings to earn the 5-2 victory, then gave way to reliever Jamie Easterly.

Easterly, not to be confused with Cincinnati's Rawly Eastwick (the N. L. Fireman of the Year last season), looked about as good as a relief specialist could look, fanning four Cubs in three innings to pick up his first save of the year.

THE CUBS started the day just a half-game behind Eastern Division-leading Pittsburgh and, with ace righty Bill Bonham (5-2) on the mound, the Wrigleys were entertaining thoughts of first place, a nice place to be, even in May.

But Bonham had a rough first inning and a rocky third inning, too, in suffering his third loss of the season. Besides, the Pirates won, anyway, to hold onto first.

Bonham probably should have gotten out of the first without any damage, but a questionable call at first base gave Jerry Royster an infield single. Royster stole second but Bonham retired the next two hitters before walking Jeff Burroughs on a 3-2 pitch. Then Gary Matthews tripled over rightfielder Greg Gross's head for a 2-0 lead.

There were two outs in the third, also, when Burroughs came to the plate with Rod Gilbreath on base with a single. Burroughs, who has power to all fields, showed his rightfield strength with a homer that barely cleared the fence. The Texas reject has 10 homers and 36 RBI for Atlanta.

MESSERSMITH, NOW 3-1, gave up seven hits in his six innings of pitching from the belt, but the Cubs wasted a number of opportunities against the righthander who was making his first start since April 30.

In the first, after two were out, Larry Biittner and Manny Trillo singled but Gene Clines flied out to left. In the fourth, Trillo led off with a single but was erased when Clines bounced into a 5-4-3 double play. Joe Wallis walked and George Mitterwald followed with a base hit before Dave Rosello flied out to end the inning.

The Cubs got their only run off Messersmith in the fifth when Ivan DeJesus slammed a one-out single and stole second in front of Gross's RBI single. Then Biittner killed the rally by grounding into a Gilbreath-to-Royster-to-Tom Paciorek double play.

Easterly, a chunky southpaw, came on at the beginning of the seventh and snuck called third strikes past Rosello and pinch-hitter Jerry Morales before DeJesus ripped another single. However, pinch-hitter Steve Ontiveros went down swinging to end the inning.

THE BRAVES GOT an insurance run in the seventh off Paul Reuschel when Royster singled, stole second and scored on Gilbreath's base hit.

In the eighth, Burroughs misplayed Trillo's flyball to rightfield for a double, and Trillo scored on a two-out bat-handle single by Wallis. But Mitterwald rolled out to cut that rally short.

Trillo, the first Cub second sacker to hit cleanup since Rogers Hornsby, was 4-for-4 Sunday to raise his batting average to .395.

Easterly put the Cubs down in order in the ninth, preserving the Braves' second victory in the four-game series.

THE CUBS, now a game and a half behind Pittsburgh, take today off and open a three-game set with Montreal Tuesday at Wrigley Field.

Janet's car qualifies; Indy field complete

by KURT FREUDENTHAL

INDIANAPOLIS — Grinning from ear to ear, Janet Guthrie Sunday became the first woman to qualify for the famed Indianapolis "500" auto race.

She did it in the final day of the time trials at a speed of nearly 188.5 miles per hour — in the same car in which she smacked the wall in a practice run nearly two weeks earlier.

The 39-year-old New Yorker, a veteran of sports car racing, tried her luck at the Speedway last year for the first time in a machine that just wasn't fast enough. She vowed she would be back.

THIS TIME, in a faster car, she turned in practice speeds of 191 mph. Then she hit the wall and had to start all over.

"I admit I was chewing my fingernails once or twice," she told a crowded news conference after her successful run Sunday. "I was talking to myself for one and a half weeks, but when Dick Simon told me the car was right, I knew it was."

Guthrie improved her qualifying speeds Sunday with each lap —

Watseka wisp captures girls state track raves

by JEFF NORDLUND

CHARLESTON — East Moline was the team champ and Debi Kilhoffer of Illiopolis hurdled to two first places, but the show was stolen by a pigtailed freshman from Watseka.

Tiny Pat Carrell, who stands barely 5-feet tall and weighs 80 pounds, won the grueling two-mile run in 90-degree temperatures at Eastern Illinois University's O'Brien Field to capture the hearts of those at the Girls State Track Meet Saturday.

The 14-year-old Carrell, who was the third runner on Watseka's boys cross country team last fall, ran the two miles in national record-setting time, clipping six-tenths of a second off the old mark by turning in a 10:41.3.

EAST MOLINE won the team title with 16 points, just ahead of Evanston (15), Cahokia (14) and Proviso West (13). Wheeling, which started the day with five finalists, collected just one point. Hersey had three points and Hoffman Estates had one.

Hersey's Cheryl Lange took fourth in the 440-yard finals, while also running the anchor leg on the fifth-place 880-yard medley team. Other runners on the team were Jody Stembridge, Carol DeVries and Debbie Barnd. Wheeling's Gail Miloch placed fifth in the mile, and Hoffman Estates' Charlene Warring was fifth in the high jump.

Although Carrell's dad guessed her weight at 72 pounds when asked by reporters — "She really doesn't have much weight to lose during a race," he said — she corrected that later.

"OH NO! I'm up to 80 pounds now," she said. "I knew if I didn't kick like that on the final lap, the girl behind me (Martha Billingsley of Chicago University High) would catch me. She's much taller and stronger than I am.

"I was really nervous about Billingsley because it's her last year, and she looked so calm and cool. The girl next to me (Joan Kelly of Palatine) kept talking to me. I think they were trying to psych me out."

Carrell, the smallest of any of Saturday's finalists, began running distance events as a seventh-grader. Last fall she turned in the best time by any girl in state at the cross country finals in Peoria.

MILOCH OF Wheeling turned in a 5:21.6 time for fifth in the mile run, minutes after having run the 880-yard run and finishing seventh.

"I felt all right running the mile, although it was a little easier Friday when there was more time between the two events," Miloch said. "After last year's meet, I decided I wanted to run in both events in the finals this year, so I'm not sorry I ran twice today.

"I don't know if we could have ever beaten Evanston, but we thought we had a chance at taking the third-place trophy. It just didn't work out.

Detroit pounds Wood, Sox

by BOB GALLAS

Wilbur Wood wouldn't have made a very good conquering hero back in the days of the Roman Empire.

The rotund knuckleballer finally returned to the scene of earlier triumphs — the pitching mound — Sunday as he started his first game in more than a year. But the Detroit Tigers, who were in no mood to be conquered, took "Bat Day" seriously and chased Wilbur after only an inning en route to a 14-3 romp over the White Sox.

Wilbur was nicked for six runs before departing after walking the opening two hitters of the second inning though the crowd of 30,030 scarcely remembered by the end of the game three hours later thanks to:

• A tremendous 460-foot home run to the center field bleachers by Richie Zisk, who becomes only the fifth player in history to do so. Zisk's only comment: "Now that I proved I can put a ball into the bleachers Bill Veeck will never move the fences in."

• A return of the Sox version of "outfield follies" as a 24-miles-per-hour wind blowing out simply ruined the day for Ralph Garr.

• A fair pitching performance by 20-year-old Dave "The Rose" Rozema, who struck out five, walked nobody but served up home run balls to Zisk and Oscar Gamble.

"Nothing hurt, I just got the bleep kicked out of me," said Wood, who hasn't started a game since a year ago when his kneecap was shattered by a ball off the bat of Ron LeFlore of Detroit. LeFlore did not play Sunday. "The ball was breaking but everything was high. Then I tried to compensate and everything was breaking into the dirt in front of the plate."

Sox manager Bob Lemon, who watched the game from the dugout runway in street clothes, said he'd try to get Wood into a few more games from the bullpen, and might start him Sunday in New York.

The loss was the third straight for the South Siders, equalling their longest down skein of the season.

EVEN THOUGH the umpires refused to accept Lemon's protest because it was a "judgment" call, Sox owner Bill Veeck, who felt it should have been a ground rule double because the ball was heading into the seats on a bounce when touched, said he plans to file a protest anyway.

First base umpire Lou DiMuro ruled the fan interference and it was home plate umpire Dale Ford who ruled that Gamble must not take second, because in Ford's judgment, right fielder Tim Corcoran would have had a play on Gamble at second had the ball not been touched by a fan.

Zisk's blast, which came in the eighth inning with no one on base, puts him in some select company. He was the first to put a ball into the bleachers since Dick Allen did it back in August of the 1972 season. The event not only stunned the crowd but apparently the scoreboard operator who had to be reminded to set the exploding board off and didn't do so until after Zisk had run the bases.

The only others to record a bleachers' clout in Comiskey Park are Jimmy Foxx, Hank Greenberg and Alex Johnson.

WHITE SOX fans, who've been shut out from seeing Mark "The Bird" Fidrych pitch in the past two seasons, did get the next best thing Sunday. Early arrivers saw Fidrych pitch about 20 minutes of batting practice as he warmed up for his first start of the season against Seattle in Detroit on Friday. Fidrych hurt his knee in spring training and recently rejoined the team.

The strong wind blowing out didn't affect the Tiger outfield but did cause some problems for leftfielder Garr and centerfielder Jerry Hairston, who came in for Chet Lemon in the fifth inning when Lemon aggravated a heel injury sustained Saturday.

Garr staggered under several fly balls, the most notable being a ball hit by Jason Thompson, who finished with five runs batted in, which dropped 10-feet behind Garr for an RBI triple in the second.

Hairston tangled with the wall on a Mickey Stanley double in the seventh, then got into some confusion with Zisk in right as a ball hit by Rusty Staub dropped for a run scoring single.

BRUCE DAL CANTON worked 4 2/3 innings for the Sox and gave up three more runs. Dave Hamilton was nailed for four runs, only one earned, in his one-inning stint and Lerrin LaGrow gave up a run as he worked the final 2 1/3 innings.

After off-days today and Tuesday, the Sox start a two-city road trip beginning Wednesday in Milwaukee and ending with a weekend series in New York.

TINY PAT Carrell of Waseka, who measures just 5-feet and 80 pounds, breaks the tape to win the two-mile run in national record-breaking time.

Cubs are sidetracked 5-2 by Atlanta's good pitching

ATLANTA — The Cubs' traveling base-hit show ran into two more major league pitchers Sunday, two guys named Andy and Jamie who forced the Cubs to forget about first place at least for awhile.

Braves' starter Andy Messersmith, not able to wind up because of a sore rib cage, pitched well enough from a stretch for six innings to earn the 5-2 victory, then gave way to reliever Jamie Easterly.

Easterly, not to be confused with Cincinnati's Rawly Eastwick (the N. L. Fireman of the Year last season), looked about as good as a relief specialist could look, fanning four Cubs in three innings to pick up his first save of the year.

THE CUBS started the day just a half-game behind Eastern Division-leading Pittsburgh and, with ace righty Bill Bonham (5-2) on the mound, the Wrigleys were entertaining thoughts of first place, a nice place to be, even in May.

But Bonham had a rough first inning and a rocky third inning, too, in suffering his third loss of the season. Besides, the Pirates won, anyway, to hold onto first.

Bonham probably should have gotten out of the first without any damage, but a questionable call at first base gave Jerry Royster an infield single. Royster stole second but Bonham retired the next two hitters before walking Jeff Burroughs on a 3-2 pitch. Then Gary Matthews tripled over rightfielder Greg Gross's head for a 2-0 lead.

There were two outs in the third, also, when Burroughs came to the plate with Rod Gilbreath on base with a single. Burroughs, who has power to all fields, showed his rightfield strength with a homer that barely cleared the fence. The Texas reject has 10 homers and 36 RBI for Atlanta.

MESSERSMITH, NOW 3-1, gave up seven hits in his six innings of pitching from the belt, but the Cubs wasted a number of opportunities against the righthander who was making his first start since April 30.

In the first, after two were out, Larry Biittner and Manny Trillo singled but Gene Clines flied out to left. In the fourth, Trillo led off with a single but was erased when Clines bounced into a 5-4-3 double play. Joe Wallis walked and George Mitterwald followed with a base hit before Dave Rosello flied out to end the inning.

The Cubs got their only run off Messersmith in the fifth when Ivan DeJesus slammed a one-out single and stole second in front of Gross's RBI single. Then Biittner killed the rally by grounding into a Gilbreath-to-Royster-to-Tom Paciorek double play.

Easterly, a chunky southpaw, came on at the beginning of the seventh and snuck called third strikes past Rosello and pinch-hitter Jerry Morales before DeJesus ripped another single. However, pinch-hitter Steve Ontiveros went down swinging to end the inning.

THE BRAVES GOT an insurance run in the seventh off Paul Reuschel when Royster singled, stole second and scored on Gilbreath's base hit.

In the eighth, Burroughs misplayed Trillo's flyball to rightfield for a double, and Trillo scored on a two-out bat-handle single by Wallis. But Mitterwald rolled out to cut that rally short.

Trillo, the first Cub second sacker to hit cleanup since Rogers Hornsby, was 4-for-4 Sunday to raise his batting average to .395.

Easterly put the Cubs down in order in the ninth, preserving the Braves' second victory in the four-game series.

THE CUBS, now a game and a half behind Pittsburgh, take today off and open a three-game set with Montreal Tuesday at Wrigley Field.

by KURT FREUDENTHAL

INDIANAPOLIS — Grinning from ear to ear, Janet Guthrie Sunday became the first woman to qualify for the famed Indianapolis "500" auto race.

She did it in the final day of the time trials at a speed of nearly 188.5 miles per hour — in the same car in which she smacked the wall in a practice run nearly two weeks earlier.

The 39-year-old New Yorker, a veteran of sports car racing, tried her luck at the Speedway last year for the first time in a machine that just wasn't fast enough. She vowed she would be back.

THIS TIME, in a faster car, she turned in practice speeds of 191 mph. Then she hit the wall and had to start all over.

"I admit I was chewing my fingernails once or twice," she told a crowded news conference after her successful run Sunday. "I was talking to myself for one and a half weeks, but when Dick Simon told me the car was right, I knew it was."

Guthrie improved her qualifying speeds Sunday with each lap —

by JEFF NORDLUND

CHARLESTON — East Moline was the team champ and Debi Kilhoffer of Illiopolis hurdled to two first places, but the show was stolen by a pigtailed freshman from Watseka.

Tiny Pat Carrell, who stands barely 5-feet tall and weighs 80 pounds, won the grueling two-mile run in 90-degree temperatures at Eastern Illinois University's O'Brien Field to capture the hearts of those at the Girls State Track Meet Saturday.

The 14-year-old Carrell, who was the third runner on Watseka's boys cross country team last fall, ran the two miles in national record-setting time, clipping six-tenths of a second off the old mark by turning in a 10:41.3.

EAST MOLINE won the team title with 16 points, just ahead of Evanston (15), Cahokia (14) and Proviso West (13). Wheeling, which started the day with five finalists, collected just one point. Hersey had three points and Hoffman Estates had one.

Hersey's Cheryl Lange took fourth in the 440-yard finals, while also running the anchor leg on the fifth-place 880-yard medley team. Other runners on the team were Jody Stembridge, Carol DeVries and Debbie Barnd. Wheeling's Gail Miloch placed fifth in the mile, and Hoffman Estates' Charlene Warring was fifth in the high jump.

Although Carrell's dad guessed her weight at 72 pounds when asked by reporters — "She really doesn't have much weight to lose during a race," he said — she corrected that later.

"OH NO! I'm up to 80 pounds now," she said. "I knew if I didn't kick like that on the final lap, the girl behind me (Martha Billingsley of Chicago University High) would catch me. She's much taller and stronger than I am.

"I was really nervous about Billingsley because it's her last year, and she looked so calm and cool. The girl next to me (Joan Kelly of Palatine) kept talking to me. I think they were trying to psych me out."

Carrell, the smallest of any of Saturday's finalists, began running distance events as a seventh-grader. Last fall she turned in the best time by any girl in state at the cross country finals in Peoria.

MILOCH OF Wheeling turned in a 5:21.6 time for fifth in the mile run, minutes after having run the 880-yard run and finishing seventh.

"I felt all right running the mile, although it was a little easier Friday when there was more time between the two events," Miloch said. "After last year's meet, I decided I wanted to run in both events in the finals this year, so I'm not sorry I ran twice today.

Krainik, Fremd are big winners

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

Tony Krainik is incredible.

The Maine West sprinter proved it again Saturday at the Crown High School District meet by winning the 100-yard dash in the state's fastest time, a wind-aided 9.6, then coming back for victories in the 440 (48.9) and the 220 (22.0), both times running away from the best athletes the Mid-Suburban League has to offer.

Krainik also anchored his Warrior 440-relay team to a first place effort in 43.2, giving him an amazing four firsts in the 18-team qualifying meet for next week's state Class AA track and field championships.

AS SENSATIONAL as Krainik was, it couldn't deprive Fremd of the district title, the Vikings' second in two years. Fremd had 60 points to 43½ for Maine West and 30 for Rolling Meadows. Palatine was fourth with 24.

Fremd matched Maine West's four firsts and the Vikes led all teams with the largest number of qualifiers, 12. In addition to two relay teams, Fremd qualified athletes in the two-mile, the triple jump, both hurdles events, the high jump, the shot put, the mile, the pole vault, and the 440-dash.

Topping the Fremd list was senior Brian Schones, who won the high jump in 6-7 and also took second in both the high and low hurdles. Teammate Gary Gunderson won the highs in 14.4 while Viking triple jumper Dave Smedley (43-3¾) and two-miler Dan Inbody (9:28.6) were also victorious.

OTHER FREMD qualifiers were Randy Polomsky in the 440, Greg Stipe in the pole vault, soph Marty Finis in the shot, Bob Ratcliffe in the mile, and the 440- and mile relay teams.

ASIDE FROM Krainik, the meet's most stunning performance was by Hoffman Estates pole vaulter Paul Major, who reached 15 feet for the first time ever. Major became only the second area vaulter to hit the magic mark of 15-0. The other was Schaumburg's Bruce Mahlig.

Major's main competition next week at the state meet will likely come from Bloom's Jim Sarros, who has gone 15-7 this season, although he reached only 14-6 in his district meet Saturday.

MAJOR TOOK 12 jumps on his way to 15-0 and failed three times at 15-4, not even coming close.

"Paul just took too many jumps," said his vault coach, Bill Spiletto. "But we had to play it conservatively. Next week we'll play it conservatively, too, and hope he has enough energy to beat Sarros — that's what we're going to try to do."

Forest View's Darryl Robinson generated a pair of firsts for his team, anchoring the two-mile relay (8:01.1) and coming back in the mile to nip Palatine's Tom Johnson at the tape, 4:19.6 to 4:19.7. Forest View's Bob Haas also qualified in the mile, as did Buffalo Grove's Joe Schmidt.

Buffalo Grove was the only other school with a pair of firsts, getting them from discus thrower Dave Kellogg (155-9) and low hurdler Chris Hilvert (38.3).

MAINE NORTH'S Chris Heroux, tuning up for a possible run at the state record in the 880, won in 1:54.3. The Norseman senior, second last year to Steve Schellenberger in the state meet, will be gunning for Schellenberger's IHSA mark of 1:49.9.

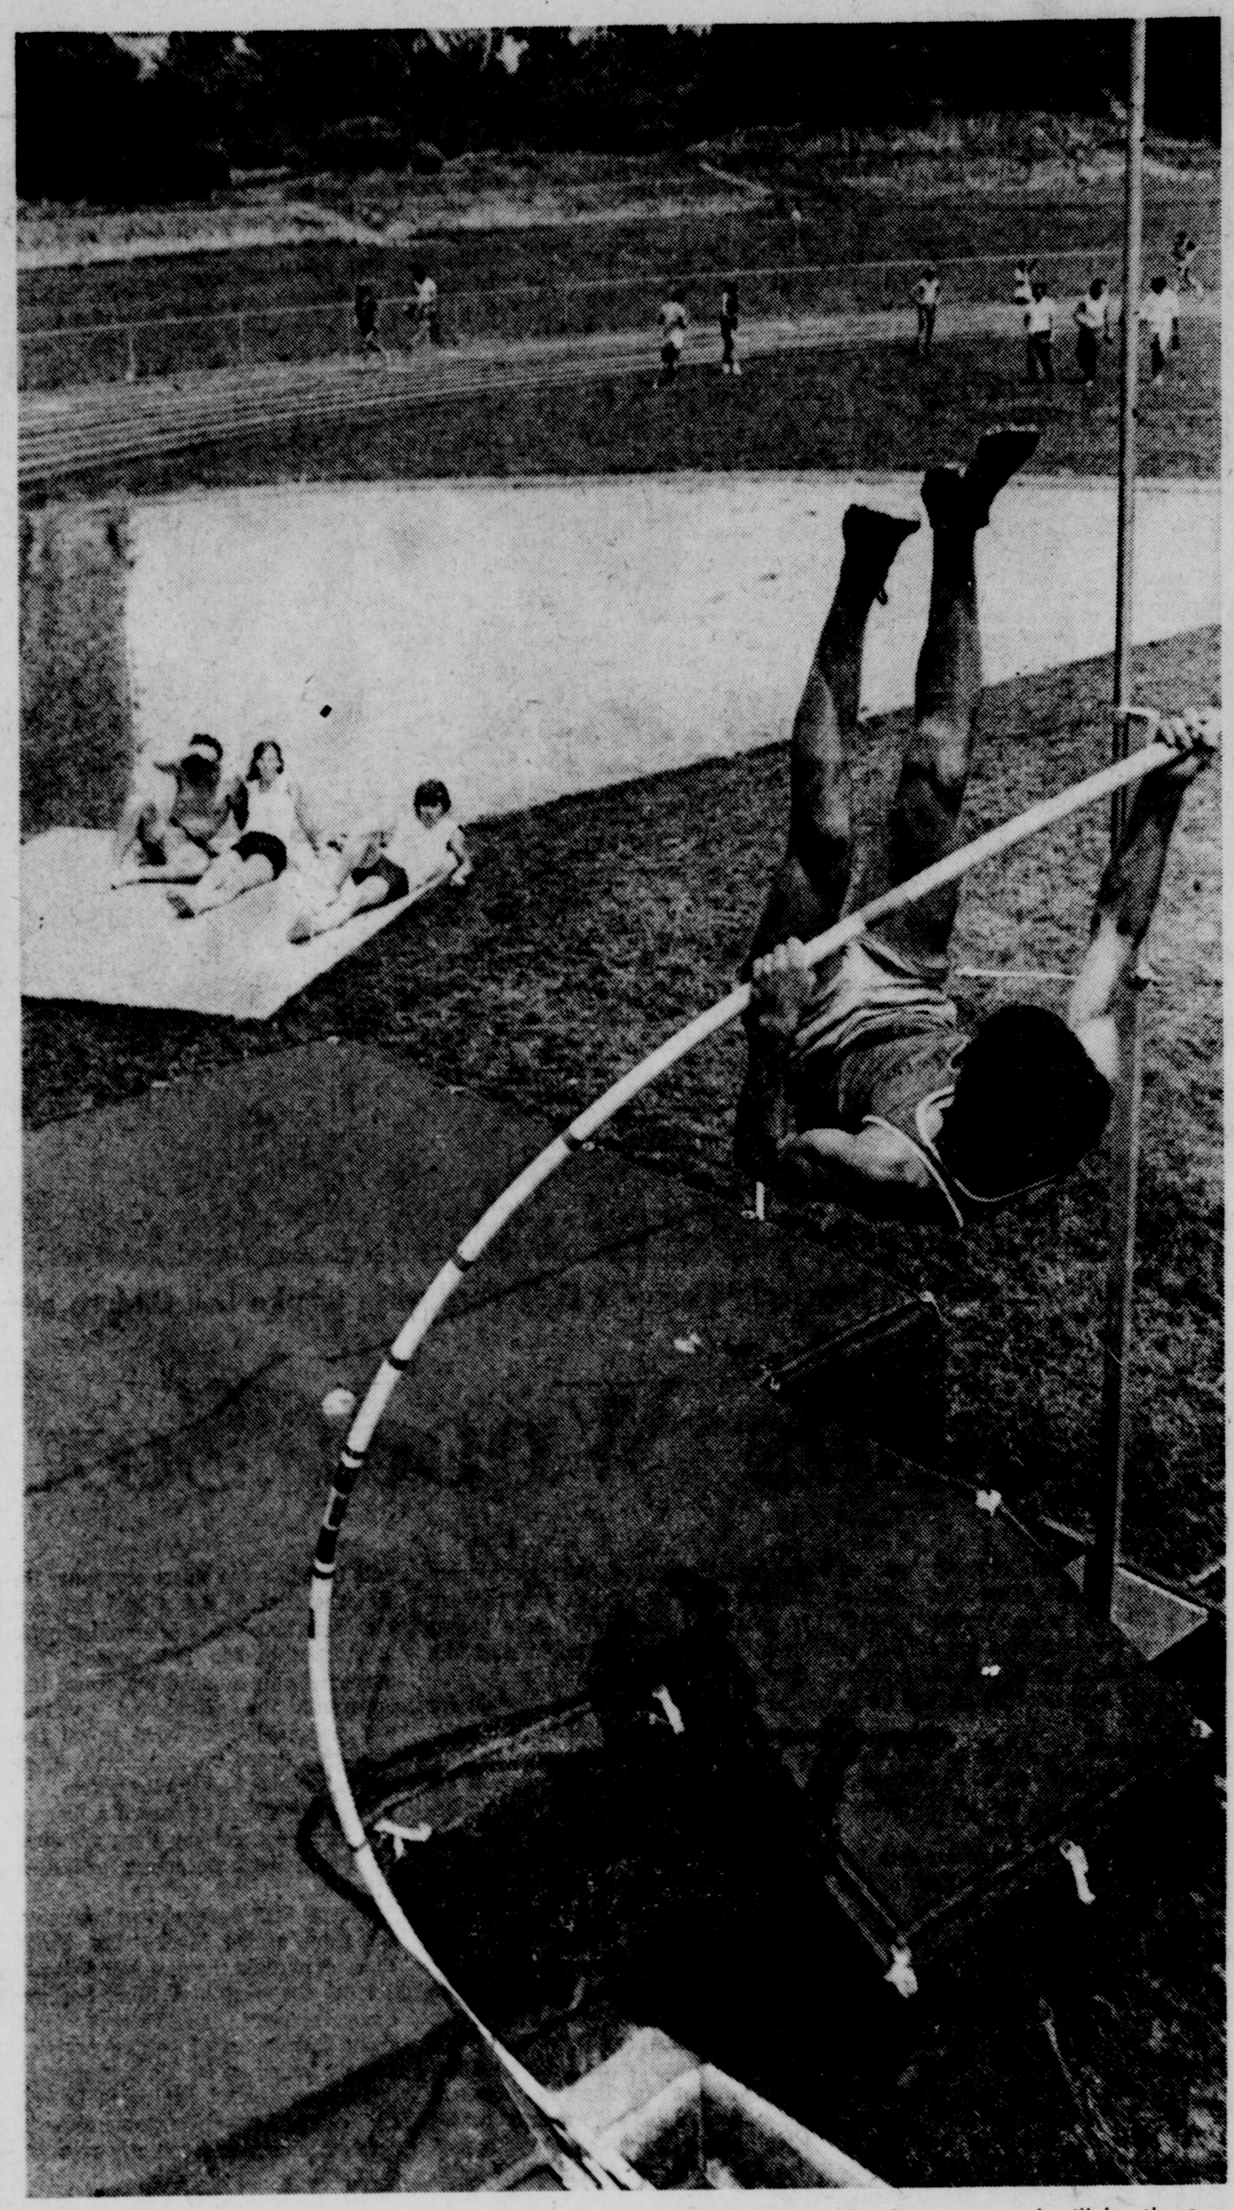

Prospect long jumper Brad Miller and Conant shot putter Bob Holzkamp each avenged losses in the MSL conference meet last week by winning district titles in their events. Millar reached a season best of 21-9 in the long jump while Holzkamp's 54-7 won by more than a foot.

Roling Meadows got a win from its mile relay team of Rick Sutton, Dave Boursaw, Pete Till, and Fred Kocian. Sutton also qualified in the 220 and Boursaw made it in the 100, both of them beaten by Krainik. Mustang weightman Rich Huber qualified in the shot and the discus with runnerup efforts in both.

Palatine qualified in eight events, including Johnson in the mile and sophomores Mark Migas in the long jump and Dave Kenedy in the 440. Other Pirates to make it downstate were high jumpers Tom Digan and Kevin Chartier, two-miler Chuck Elliott, an dthe mile- and two-mile relay teams.

ST. VIATOR WILL send two qualifiers to the state meet in Charleston. They are Dave Efken in the two-mile and Ed Schwabe in the long jump.

In addition to Krainik, Maine West's individual qualifiers are Jeff Brydges (880), Brian Tolan (two-mile), Paul Lippold (highs, lows), Greg Morava (highs), and the two-mile relay team. (See Scoreboard for all qualifiers.)

GIVE A LITTLE. Hoffman Estates pole vaulter Paul Major gives 15-4 a try during Crown District track meet Saturday in Carpentersville. Although he failed in three attempts at that height, Major cleared 15-0 for the first time and will be the top-seeded vaulter at the state meet next weekend in Charleston. Only one area vaulter has ever made 15-0 before. (Photo by Rick Hill)

Cards fall to NTE in sectional

by KEITH REINHARD

"We just didn't have it today," shrugged Arlington baseball coach Fran Somers.

What his Cardinals didn't have, the New Trier East Indians obviously did possess Saturday afternoon: a berth in the Glenbrook North sectional finals after roughing up the Redbirds, 6-1.

"I DON'T THINK it was so much a case of our pitching letting us down as it was the fact that this is a great hitting ball club," Somers added. "Anyway, we had our opportunities too and didn't take advantage of them."

It was actually amazing that the Indians didn't finish with twice as many runs. They belted out 14 hits, four of them for extra bases, and had a total of 19 baserunners in six innings. The Card battery also contributed a pair of wild pitches and two passed balls.

But Arlingtin's defense backed up starting pitcher John Mertins and reliever Doug Harth superbly, with flawless fielding while contributing a pair of double plays. And three New Trier baserunners were picked off base, one by the catcher and two by Arlington outfielders.

THE FIRST FOUR Indian batters of the game all reached base, on a walk, two singles and a double. Only one run came across however, Mike Mayerck cut down the leadoff batter trying to go to third on a single.

THE 1-1 TIE was very temporary. New Trier came back with a disputed run in the bottom of the second and Mals drilled a two-run homer in the third that helped chase Mertins. Harth was also tagged for a run in the third and yielded an additional tally in the sixth.

"Their go-ahead run in the second didn't lose the game for us but it sure had to affect the momentum," sighed one Arlington fan afterwards, adding "From where I was sitting he was perfectly gunned down at the plate."

The triumph upped the Indian slate to 18-2 and they will now play Proviso East, winners over Lake Forest 5-4, for the sectional title Monday.

RUNNING DOWN THE leaders is a tough challenge any time, especially in a district qualifying meet. Here, the front-runners in the two-mile are Dan Inbody of Fremd (left) and Brian Tolan of Maine West. Trying to catch up are Arlington's Doug Austen and Wheeling's Ben Sanchez. Inbody won in 9:28.6, Tolan was third and Sanchez fourth. Those three, plus St. Viator's Dave Efken and Palatine's Chuck Elliott qualified for the state meet.

Palatine, Fremd advance players

by VIC NOVAK

It was a banner day for boys tennis teams Saturday as local athletes won two state district titles and qualified nine singles players plus four doubles teams for the state final meet May 26-28.

Arlington won its own district meet while Maine West captured the Ridgewood District title.

Neither meet could have been closer. Arlington edged Forest View, 12½-12 and although each produced 13½ points, Maine West was declared the winner over Fenton at Ridgewood.

Arlington's win over Forest View was sweet revenge, since the Falcons had severed Arlington's string of 112 consecutive, Mid Suburban League dual meet wins and 11 straight, conference titles earlier this season.

TWO MORE STREAKS figured here, too. Cardinal senior Paul Wei's eighth win in three years against Falcon senior Dave O'Donnell gave the Cardinals its 11th district championship in a row.

Wei said moving from the outdoor Arlington courts indoors at River Trails Tennis Center during intermittent rain aided his 6-3, 6-0 win.

"At Arlington where we started, I was nervous and uptight," said Paul. "When we got indoors, I wasn't nervous at all, because I serve better indoors."

Paul, who'll be entering Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism this fall, theorized about his amazing success against O'Donnell. "It seems like I overpower him and that's the main difference," said the Arlington senior.

WEI'S WIN WAS crucial since Forest View beat both Arlington doubles teams. Falcons Steve Calderone and Nick Kekos defeated Arlington's Bob Pionke and Mike Doering 7-6, 6-3.

Meanwhile Falcon teammates Doug Majewski and Mark Stiles knocked off Cardinals Blair Johnson and Kurt Wiebe 7-5, 4-6 and 7-6. The lost set was decided in a marathon, 12-10 tiebreaker.

In the championship, Calderone and Kekos were victorious 6-1, 6-4.

Arlington senior Todd Van Gorp also figured prominently. Recovering from an illness that limited his play to just one week this season, Todd won two singles matches before losing to O'Donnell, 6-0, 6-1. His two wins gave Arlington two critical points.

MAINE WEST'S winning effort was closer and more bizarre. The Des Plaines school was declared the eventual winner, because it produced a greater percentage of games won in the Ridgewood District than Fenton. Maine won 65.608 per cent of its matches while Fenton took 63.485 per cent. Thus, Maine West, like Arlington, qualifies its entire team for the state meet.

This last criterion was used after four other criteria could not resolve the tie. Since both Maine West teams made the doubles finals and both Fenton players qualified for the singles finals, any more competition could have created more losses and thus a lower percentage of district wins.

Therefore, in doubles, West's Dick Gearhart and John Mnardi defaulted to teammates Tom Gebhardt and Bob Wyatt. In singles play, Fenton's Metropolis defaulted to teammate Kielczewski.

SEMIFINAL ACTION saw Metropolis topping Maine West's Jeff English 6-3, 6-2. Westmen Todd Pistolis then lost to Kielczewski 6-0, 6-1.

Gearhart and Minardi won their semifinal dubles match against Porto and Baader of Fenton 6-4, 4-6, and 6-1.

Gebhart and Wyatt defeated Fenton's Szacklin and Wlinski 6-2, 6-7, 6-1.

AT THE BARRINGTON District, Palatine and Fremd both qualified their first state meet competitors. They were Mike Esenberg (Palatine) and Bob Milligan (Fremd). Ironically, both played each other for the singles championship. Esenberg won 6-1, 6-1. District finalists are assured of advancing to the state meet.

MILLIGAN HAD advanced to the title match by beating Barrington's Mac Finley 4-6, 7-5, 6-1. Esenberg won his semifinal match against Fremd's Mike Mitch 6-0, 6-1. The win gives Esenberg a 21-5 record.

At the Lake Park District, Schaumburg's Ron Dudley, Mitch Borske, and Scott Wright qualified for the state final meet.

After beating Elk Grove's Gary Christensen 6-4, 7-5 Dudley fell in the championship match to Lake Park's Paul Shriver 6-2, 6-3.

Borske and Wright captured their semifinal doubles match against Lake Park's Wentworth and Petropoulos 6-4, 6-3. In the finals, the Schaumburg pair was beaten by Addison Trail's Jungles and Pierott, 6-1, 6-3.

At Wheeling, Buffalo Grove tallied two points while the host Wildcats failed to score. Stevenson's Bill Heiser lost the singles championship to Highland Park's defending state champ Mat Horwich, 6-2, 6-3.

"We just didn't have it today," shrugged Arlington baseball coach Fran Somers.

What his Cardinals didn't have, the New Trier East Indians obviously did possess Saturday afternoon: a berth in the Glenbrook North sectional finals after roughing up the Redbirds, 6-1.

"I DON'T THINK it was so much a case of our pitching letting us down as it was the fact that this is a great hitting ball club," Somers added. "Anyway, we had our opportunities too and didn't take advantage of them."

It was actually amazing that the Indians didn't finish with twice as many runs. They belted out 14 hits, four of them for extra bases, and had a total of 19 baserunners in six innings. The Card battery also contributed a pair of wild pitches and two passed balls.

But Arlingtin's defense backed up starting pitcher John Mertins and reliever Doug Harth superbly, with flawless fielding while contributing a pair of double plays. And three New Trier baserunners were picked off base, one by the catcher and two by Arlington outfielders.

THE FIRST FOUR Indian batters of the game all reached base, on a walk, two singles and a double. Only one run came across however, Mike Mayerck cut down the leadoff batter trying to go to third on a single.

New Trier Hurler Ray Mals drove in the run with a solid double to right.

THE 1-1 TIE was very temporary. New Trier came back with a disputed run in the bottom of the second and Mals drilled a two-run homer in the third that helped chase Mertins. Harth was also tagged for a run in the third and yielded an additional tally in the sixth.

"Their go-ahead run in the second didn't lose the game for us but it sure had to affect the momentum," sighed one Arlington fan afterwards, adding "From where I was sitting he was perfectly gunned down at the plate."

The triumph upped the Indian slate to 18-2 and they will now play Proviso East, winners over Lake Forest 5-4, for the sectional title Monday.

RUNNING DOWN THE leaders is a tough challenge any time, especially in a district qualifying meet. Here, the front-runners in the two-mile are Dan Inbody of Fremd (left) and Brian Tolan of Maine West. Trying to catch up are Arlington's Doug Austen and Wheeling's Ben Sanchez. Inbody won in 9:28.6, Tolan was third and Sanchez fourth. Those three, plus St. Viator's Dave Efken and Palatine's Chuck Elliott qualified for the state meet.

Palatine, Fremd advance players

by VIC NOVAK

It was a banner day for boys tennis teams Saturday as local athletes won two state district titles and qualified nine singles players plus four doubles teams for the state final meet May 26-28.

Arlington won its own district meet while Maine West captured the Ridgewood District title.

Neither meet could have been closer. Arlington edged Forest View, 12½-12 and although each produced 13½ points, Maine West was declared the winner over Fenton at Ridgewood.

Arlington's win over Forest View was sweet revenge, since the Falcons had severed Arlington's string of 112 consecutive, Mid Suburban League dual meet wins and 11 straight, conference titles earlier this season.

TWO MORE STREAKS figured here, too. Cardinal senior Paul Wei's eighth win in three years against Falcon senior Dave O'Donnell gave the Cardinals its 11th district championship in a row.

Wei said moving from the outdoor Arlington courts indoors at River Trails Tennis Center during intermittent rain aided his 6-3, 6-0 win.

"At Arlington where we started, I was nervous and uptight," said Paul. "When we got indoors, I wasn't nervous at all, because I serve better indoors."

Paul, who'll be entering Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism this fall, theorized about his amazing success against O'Donnell. "It seems like I overpower him and that's the main difference," said the Arlington senior.

WEI'S WIN WAS crucial since Forest View beat both Arlington doubles teams. Falcons Steve Calderone and Nick Kekos defeated Arlington's Bob Pionke and Mike Doering 7-6, 6-3.

Meanwhile Falcon teammates Doug Majewski and Mark Stiles knocked off Cardinals Blair Johnson and Kurt Wiebe 7-5, 4-6 and 7-6. The lost set was decided in a marathon, 12-10 tiebreaker.

In the championship, Calderone and Kekos were victorious 6-1, 6-4.

Arlington senior Todd Van Gorp also figured prominently. Recovering from an illness that limited his play to just one week this season, Todd won two singles matches before losing to O'Donnell, 6-0, 6-1. His two wins gave Arlington two critical points.

MAINE WEST'S winning effort was closer and more bizarre. The Des Plaines school was declared the eventual winner, because it produced a greater percentage of games won in the Ridgewood District than Fenton. Maine won 65.608 per cent of its matches while Fenton took 63.485 per cent. Thus, Maine West, like Arlington, qualifies its entire team for the state meet.

This last criterion was used after four other criteria could not resolve the tie. Since both Maine West teams made the doubles finals and both Fenton players qualified for the singles finals, any more competition could have created more losses and thus a lower percentage of district wins.

Therefore, in doubles, West's Dick Gearhart and John Mnardi defaulted to teammates Tom Gebhardt and Bob Wyatt. In singles play, Fenton's Metropolis defaulted to teammate Kielczewski.

SEMIFINAL ACTION saw Metropolis topping Maine West's Jeff English 6-3, 6-2. Westmen Todd Pistolis then lost to Kielczewski 6-0, 6-1.

Gearhart and Minardi won their semifinal dubles match against Porto and Baader of Fenton 6-4, 4-6, and 6-1.

Gebhart and Wyatt defeated Fenton's Szacklin and Wlinski 6-2, 6-7, 6-1.

AT THE BARRINGTON District, Palatine and Fremd both qualified their first state meet competitors. They were Mike Esenberg (Palatine) and Bob Milligan (Fremd). Ironically, both played each other for the singles championship. Esenberg won 6-1, 6-1. District finalists are assured of advancing to the state meet.

MILLIGAN HAD advanced to the title match by beating Barrington's Mac Finley 4-6, 7-5, 6-1. Esenberg won his semifinal match against Fremd's Mike Mitch 6-0, 6-1. The win gives Esenberg a 21-5 record.

At the Lake Park District, Schaumburg's Ron Dudley, Mitch Borske, and Scott Wright qualified for the state final meet.

After beating Elk Grove's Gary Christensen 6-4, 7-5 Dudley fell in the championship match to Lake Park's Paul Shriver 6-2, 6-3.

Borske and Wright captured their semifinal doubles match against Lake Park's Wentworth and Petropoulos 6-4, 6-3. In the finals, the Schaumburg pair was beaten by Addison Trail's Jungles and Pierott, 6-1, 6-3.

At Wheeling, Buffalo Grove tallied two points while the host Wildcats failed to score. Stevenson's Bill Heiser lost the singles championship to Highland Park's defending state champ Mat Horwich, 6-2, 6-3.

Warring of Hoffman Estates, just a freshman, jumped to her personal best with a 5-foot-6 on the third try to take fifth in the event. That and qualifying at all for the finals were surprises to her.

76ers' ratings climb with 'Doc & Doug' show success

by JOE JULIANO

PHILADELPHIA—The "Doc and Doug" show, a success throughout the NBA playoffs thus far, is still running strong and the Philadelphia 76ers couldn't be happier.

The Doc — Julius Erving — and Doug Collins carried the 76ers to a 1-0 lead in the league championship series Sunday with a 107-101 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers.

The spectacular Erving scored 33 points and the steady Collins chipped in with 30 to give the Sixers the jump in the finals, which continue here with game two Thursday night.

"IT WAS A STRONG performance by Doc and Doug," winning Coach Gene Shue said. "We did what we wanted to do."

Erving, who scored 71 points in the final two games of the Houston series, was the man the 76ers looked for as they repulsed two Portland drives in the fourth quarter.

"There are a lot of good one-on-one players in this league," said the Blazers' Bob Gross, who guarded Erving most of the game but fouled out in the fourth quarter. "He might be a little better than the others."

The 6.6 Collins, working inside as the 76ers used their big men to minimize Portland's backcourt pressure, spurred the 76ers in the first three quarters, scoring 13 in the third to give the Sixers an eight point lead going into the final period.

"COLLINS IS A great player," Portland Coach Jack Ramsay said. "You've got to play him tough, play him so he won't get the ball where he wants it."

Ramsay was dissatisfied with his team's play, which resulted in 34 turnovers.

"I wasn't pleased with our overall game," he said. "We can play better as a team."

Despite the play of the 76ers' two all-stars, it was 20-year-old Darryl Dawkins who carried the 76ers after Portland drew within two points, 101-99, on a dunk by Bill Walton with 1:48 to play.

DAWKINS HIT two foul shots with 1:29 to play and added a third 19 seconds later, then made a steal in the lane to ice the 76ers' win in the closely-contested battle.

Erving and Collins scored 25 points between them in the third quarter as the 76ers stretched a two-point halftime lead to an 86-78 advantage at the end of three quarters.

But the Blazers hit the first seven points of the final period, with Walton hitting two buckets and Herm Gilliam hitting one, to draw within a point at 86-85 with 9:38 to play.

The Sixers then found the range, with Erving hitting a three-point play and a basket and Caldwell Jones sinking two free throws to give them a 95-89 lead with 6:37 to play.

ERVING HIT another jumper and hit George McGinnis for a layup and Philadelphia led 101-93 with 3:22 left, but Maurice Lucas then hit two jumpers as Portland made its last run at the 76ers.

Portland's Larry Steele hit a three-point play with 4:27 left in the third quarter for the game's final tie at 73, but baskets by Jones, Collins and Erving gave the 76ers the lead for good.

Walton led the Blazers with 28 points and Lucas added 18.

Four players fouled out of the very physical contest. Bob Gross and Lionel Hollins, assigned to guard Erving and Collins respectively, fouled out midway through the fourth quarter and Lucas fouled out with 1:29 to play. Jones fouled out for the 76ers with 2:37 to play.

The 76ers, not known for excellent free throw shooting, hit their first 23 foul shots in a row before Henry Bibby missed with 4:03 to play.

NEITHER TEAM could break out to more than a four point lead in the first half. Portland took a 19-15 first quarter advantage led by Gross, who had 10 points in the quarter, but the Sixers came back on Erving's steal to take a 27-25 lead at the buzzer.

Portland regained the lead and Lucas' jumper gave the Blazers a 37-33 advantage with 7:48 left in the half. But the Sixers tied the score on the third of three straight baskets by Collins and held on for their two point halftime advantage.

Boston, Milwaukee split, set mark

AL baseball

The Boston Red Sox collected 15 hits and combined with Milwaukee to tie a major league record of 11 home runs in slugging their way to a 14-10 opening-game victory Sunday. In the nightcap, Boston could manage only two hits as they were shut out by Ed Rodriguez, 2-0.

In the first game, George Scott's second career grand slam highlighted a seven-run Red Sox' eighth inning and gave reliever Bill Campbell his third victory. Don Money and Fred Lynn each had a pair of homers in the three-hour slugfest.

Money's second homer in as many innings, a three-run shot in the fifth, put the Brewers ahead 6-4, which increased to 9-4 on solo homers in the seventh by Sixto Lezcano, Mike Hegan and Joshua.

But Boston closed to within two on Lynn's three-run homer in the seventh before scoring seven runs in the eighth to wrap it up. Evans' two-run homer and a wild pitch by Rich Folkers accounted for the other runs in the inning prior to Scott's grand slam.

Rodriguez made it look easy in the second game, facing just 30 batters and striking out eight. Jim Wohlford drove in four runs for the Brewers with a single, an infield out and his second home run in three seasons.

Rodriguez, making his first start of the season, allowed just a fourth-inning double to Rick Burleson and an eighth-inning infield single to Dwight Evans.

Elsewhere, the Yankees and Orioles split a doubleheader, Baltimore taking the first game 5-1 and New York winning the nightcap 8-2, Minnesota downed California 8-5, Cleveland beat Kansas City 7-1 and Seattle downed Oakland 6-2.

Graig Nettles' three RBI, including a two-run homer, and the combined four-hit pitching by Ron Guidry and Dick Tidrow gave the Yankees a split, but they remain half a game behind the first-place Orioles. In the opener, Rudy May scattered seven hits in defeating his former Yankee teammates for the fifth straight time. Baltimore rookie Eddie Murray knocked in two runs with a bases-loaded single.

Craig Kusick's pinch-hit, three-run homer capped a five-run Minnesota rally in the sixth inning and the Twins held on to increase their first-place lead over the White Sox to two games. Kusick greeted Angel reliever Don Kirkwood with a towering blast over the center field fence.

Jim Bibby, 3-2, went the distance and yielded seven hits and Buddy Bell went 4-for-4 in the Cleveland victory. Bell hit three singles and a solo homer and finished the three-game series against the Royals with eight hits in 12 at-bats.

Seattle battered three Oakland pitchers — including losing starter Vida Blue — for 13 hits and Dick Pole went five innings for his first win of the season. Danny Meyer knocked in three runs with four hits for the Mariners, while Pole combined with Enrique Romo to limit the A's to just three singles.

In night action, Toronto was at Texas.

Pirates slug Dodgers, 11-4

NL baseball

Tempers flared at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium Sunday, but the Pirates did their talking with home runs and the Dodgers had no reply.

Dave Parker belted a grand slam and a solo homer and Omar Moreno and Al Oliver also hit homers to power Pittsburgh to an 11-4 romp over Los Angeles Dodgers in a game marred by two near-donnybrooks.

John Candelaria, unbeaten in six decisions, helped his own cause with two RBI singles. The left-hander gave up nine hits and the first three Dodger runs, including solo homers by Dusty Baker and Lee Lacy before being lifted for Kent Tekulve in the eighth. In the second, Candelaria stroked his first run-scoring single and Moreno homered to erase a 1-0 Dodger lead.

Dodger starter and loser Don Sutton, 6-1, was lifted midway through the fourth when the Pirates scored five runs, capped by Parker's slam. Sutton, who had a 1.74 ERA going into the game, was charged with seven runs. Al Downing gave up Parker's grand slam, a low liner that barely cleared the left field fence.

The game was interrupted twice — in the second and eighth innings — after Dodger pitchers were warned for throwing at Pittsburgh hitters.

In the second, Sutton hit Frank Taveras, who charged the mound as both dugouts emptied. Taveras was restrained by Dodger catcher Steve Yeager, however, before any blows were thrown. Both dugouts emptied again in the eighth when Elias Sosa was warned by plate umpire Ed Vargo for brushing back Rennie Stennett after yielding back-to-back homers to Parker and Oliver. Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda was ejected from the game in the inning for not ordering his hurlers to stop throwing at Pirate batters.

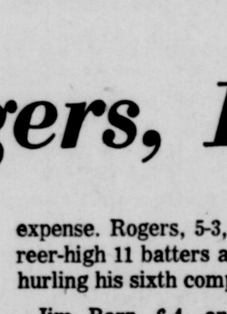

In other games, Philadelphia beat Houston 6-3, Montreal trimmed San Diego 3-1, San Francisco blanked St. Louis 2-0 and Cincinnati split with New York, winning 8-1 before losing 4-3 in 11 innings.

Larry Bowa drove in three runs with a pair of doubles while Bob Boone went 3-for-4 and tripled home two others to boost the Phillies over the Astros.

Steve Rogers tossed a six-hitter and the Expos took advantage of four wild pitches by John D'Acquisto to snap an 11-game losing streak at the Padres' expense. Rogers, 5-3, struck out a career-high 11 batters and walked one in hurling his sixth complete game.

Jim Barr, 6-4, and reliever Gary Lavelle combined for a seven-hit shutout and Willie McCovey singled in a first-inning run as the Giants defeated the Cardinals. Gary Thomasson homered and Lavelle picked up his fourth save.

In the Reds-Mets opener, Johnny Bench hit a three-run homer and Bob Bailey added a two-run, bases-loaded single to lead Cincinnati's first-game victory. In the nightcap, Dave Kingman led off the 11th with a double and scored one out later on Mike Phillips' single to earn the Mets' a split.

Pirates slug Dodgers, 11-4

NL baseball

Tempers flared at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium Sunday, but the Pirates did their talking with home runs and the Dodgers had no reply.

Dave Parker belted a grand slam and a solo homer and Omar Moreno and Al Oliver also hit homers to power Pittsburgh to an 11-4 romp over Los Angeles Dodgers in a game marred by two near-donnybrooks.

John Candelaria, unbeaten in six decisions, helped his own cause with two RBI singles. The left-hander gave up nine hits and the first three Dodger runs, including solo homers by Dusty Baker and Lee Lacy before being lifted for Kent Tekulve in the eighth. In the second, Candelaria stroked his first run-scoring single and Moreno homered to erase a 1-0 Dodger lead.

Dodger starter and loser Don Sutton, 6-1, was lifted midway through the fourth when the Pirates scored five runs, capped by Parker's slam. Sutton, who had a 1.74 ERA going into the game, was charged with seven runs. Al Downing gave up Parker's grand slam, a low liner that barely cleared the left field fence.

The game was interrupted twice — in the second and eighth innings — after Dodger pitchers were warned for throwing at Pittsburgh hitters.

In the second, Sutton hit Frank Taveras, who charged the mound as both dugouts emptied. Taveras was restrained by Dodger catcher Steve Yeager, however, before any blows were thrown. Both dugouts emptied again in the eighth when Elias Sosa was warned by plate umpire Ed Vargo for brushing back Rennie Stennett after yielding back-to-back homers to Parker and Oliver. Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda was ejected from the game in the inning for not ordering his hurlers to stop throwing at Pirate batters.

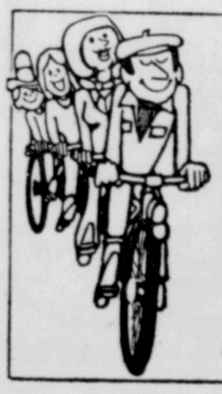

In other games, Philadelphia beat Houston 6-3, Montreal trimmed San Diego 3-1, San Francisco blanked St. Louis 2-0 and Cincinnati split with New York, winning 8-1 before losing 4-3 in 11 innings.

Larry Bowa drove in three runs with a pair of doubles while Bob Boone went 3-for-4 and tripled home two others to boost the Phillies over the Astros.

Steve Rogers tossed a six-hitter and the Expos took advantage of four wild pitches by John D'Acquisto to snap an 11-game losing streak at the Padres' expense. Rogers, 5-3, struck out a career-high 11 batters and walked one in hurling his sixth complete game.

Jim Barr, 6-4, and reliever Gary Lavelle combined for a seven-hit shutout and Willie McCovey singled in a first-inning run as the Giants defeated the Cardinals. Gary Thomasson homered and Lavelle picked up his fourth save.

In the Reds-Mets opener, Johnny Bench hit a three-run homer and Bob Bailey added a two-run, bases-loaded single to lead Cincinnati's first-game victory. In the nightcap, Dave Kingman led off the 11th with a double and scored one out later on Mike Phillips' single to earn the Mets' a split.

Hallberg in top form

PINEHURST, N.C. — Gary Hallberg, who won the 77th North and South Amateur golf championship Saturday, has come a long way from hitting golf balls in a field at the age of 13.

Hallberg, a self-taught golfer, started with a seven-club beginner set and a big back yard in Barrington, Ill., at age 8.

When his family moved 45 miles away to a farm outside Barrington, he found the time and space at age 13 to practice seriously.

"The farm had a lot of land and there was nothing to do there but hit balls, which is what I did," said Hallberg, who beat Michael Donald of Hollywood, Fla., 5-and-3 Saturday to capture this prestigious amateur event.

After attending the Arnold Palmer Academy in Vermont, and having a 10-minute lesson with his hero, "I had the itch to play even more," he said. Hallberg won the Western Junior, the Illinois High School and the Illinois State Amateur titles, all without formal training.

"We were never members of a country club, I never had a regular pro giving me lessons and I never read a golf book," Hallberg said. "I just have my own idea of the game and how it should be played. My swing feels pretty natural. I don't try to get mechanical. When I do, I lose my feel."

Sting rolls to second straight win

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Chicago Sting scored its second major upset in less than 48 hours as it defeated the Cosmos, 2-1, in a North American Soccer League game Sunday before 20,407 fans.

Chicago, which won its first game after six straight losses Friday when it upended the defending NASL champion Tampa Bay Rowdies, 4-3, got goals from Ron Moore and Bill Jennings early in the first half and then held off a strong Cosmos comeback attempt to gain its second victory.

The Cosmos, who had won three straight games, kept the pressure on Chicago goalie Mervyn Caswston, but could get just one goal, that on a penalty kick by Giorgio Chinaglia with 1:28 remaining in the first half.

Rain delays Memorial golf tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio — The third rain delay of the day forced suspension of play Sunday in the final round of the $225,000 Memorial Golf Tournament at the Muirfield Village Golf Club, with host Jack Nicklaus holding a two-shot lead over Hubert Green.

Play was suspended twice but resumed after the second stop of two hours and 20 minutes. A third storm, with more lightning than rain, halted play for good with 10 players still on the course.

The three remaining threesomes, plus defending champion Roger Maltbie — who refused to continue, although his playing partners, Tom Weiskopf and Bruce Devlin holed out — will conclude their round starting at 9 a.m. Monday.

Nicklaus, who started the day a shot behind young Bobby Wadkins, assumed command of the tournament, being played on the Muirfield layout he designed. Wadkins fell from a tie with the Golden Bear by double-bogeying the ninth hole.

Scheckter nips Lauda at Monte Carlo

MONTE CARLO—Jody Scheckter of South Africa, driving a Wolf-Ford and dogged by a last-minute fuel problem, held off the Ferrari of Niki Lauda Sunday to win the Monaco Formula 1 Grand Prix by 89-100ths of a second.

Schecter led from start to finish, boosting his lead in the World Drivers' Championship to seven points ahead of Lauda of Austria and notching his second victory in the six races.

The win was another remarkable feat for the new team of Canadian millionaire Walter Wolf, who entered Grand Prix racing with his own car just five months ago. It also gave the Cosworth-Ford V8 engine its 100th victory on its 10th birthday.

Scheckter completed the 156.4-mile race in one hour, 57 minutes, 52.77 seconds at an average speed of 80 miles per hour.

Hallberg in top form

PINEHURST, N.C. — Gary Hallberg, who won the 77th North and South Amateur golf championship Saturday, has come a long way from hitting golf balls in a field at the age of 13.

Hallberg, a self-taught golfer, started with a seven-club beginner set and a big back yard in Barrington, Ill., at age 8.

When his family moved 45 miles away to a farm outside Barrington, he found the time and space at age 13 to practice seriously.

"The farm had a lot of land and there was nothing to do there but hit balls, which is what I did," said Hallberg, who beat Michael Donald of Hollywood, Fla., 5-and-3 Saturday to capture this prestigious amateur event.

After attending the Arnold Palmer Academy in Vermont, and having a 10-minute lesson with his hero, "I had the itch to play even more," he said. Hallberg won the Western Junior, the Illinois High School and the Illinois State Amateur titles, all without formal training.

"We were never members of a country club, I never had a regular pro giving me lessons and I never read a golf book," Hallberg said. "I just have my own idea of the game and how it should be played. My swing feels pretty natural. I don't try to get mechanical. When I do, I lose my feel."

Now, just a few days away from his 19th birthday, Hallberg is a likely member of the Walker Cup team, the high point of amateur golf. His play at Pinehurst Country Club last week was his proving ground.

Sting rolls to second straight win

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Chicago Sting scored its second major upset in less than 48 hours as it defeated the Cosmos, 2-1, in a North American Soccer League game Sunday before 20,407 fans.

Chicago, which won its first game after six straight losses Friday when it upended the defending NASL champion Tampa Bay Rowdies, 4-3, got goals from Ron Moore and Bill Jennings early in the first half and then held off a strong Cosmos comeback attempt to gain its second victory.

The Cosmos, who had won three straight games, kept the pressure on Chicago goalie Mervyn Caswston, but could get just one goal, that on a penalty kick by Giorgio Chinaglia with 1:28 remaining in the first half.

Rain delays Memorial golf tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio — The third rain delay of the day forced suspension of play Sunday in the final round of the $225,000 Memorial Golf Tournament at the Muirfield Village Golf Club, with host Jack Nicklaus holding a two-shot lead over Hubert Green.

Play was suspended twice but resumed after the second stop of two hours and 20 minutes. A third storm, with more lightning than rain, halted play for good with 10 players still on the course.

The three remaining threesomes, plus defending champion Roger Maltbie — who refused to continue, although his playing partners, Tom Weiskopf and Bruce Devlin holed out — will conclude their round starting at 9 a.m. Monday.

Nicklaus, who started the day a shot behind young Bobby Wadkins, assumed command of the tournament, being played on the Muirfield layout he designed. Wadkins fell from a tie with the Golden Bear by double-bogeying the ninth hole.

Scheckter nips Lauda at Monte Carlo

MONTE CARLO—Jody Scheckter of South Africa, driving a Wolf-Ford and dogged by a last-minute fuel problem, held off the Ferrari of Niki Lauda Sunday to win the Monaco Formula 1 Grand Prix by 89-100ths of a second.

Schecter led from start to finish, boosting his lead in the World Drivers' Championship to seven points ahead of Lauda of Austria and notching his second victory in the six races.

The win was another remarkable feat for the new team of Canadian millionaire Walter Wolf, who entered Grand Prix racing with his own car just five months ago. It also gave the Cosworth-Ford V8 engine its 100th victory on its 10th birthday.

Scheckter completed the 156.4-mile race in one hour, 57 minutes, 52.77 seconds at an average speed of 80 miles per hour.

The new voice of the Indy 500

by BOB GALLAS

INDIANAPOLIS — Move over, Walter Mitty. Paul Page has taken over the catbird seat.

Page is a 31-year-old Highland Park High School graduate who is the new voice of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway network, replacing Sid Collins. An Indianapolis radio reporter who's been spending his days lately in a helicopter high above the city giving traffic reports, Page has been thrust into the worldwide spotlight and is still scratching his head in wonderment.

When Page speaks on race day, 100 million people will be listening.

"IT'S KINDA funny," he mused, while waiting for the helicopter to pick him up at the track and take him aloft for an afternoon radio shift.

Defending 500 champ Johnny Rutherford will start this year's race from back in the seventh row, so he's working hard. See photos, Sect. 4, Page 4.

"This all happened so fast. People are calling me 'sir' who wouldn't even return my phone calls three weeks ago."

Page was Collins' personal choice to succeed him as the anchorman for the largest radio network in the world. But Collins, despondent over the fact that he was suffering from a terminal illness, hanged himself a month ago and Page was soon thrust into the position under circumstances that were trying at best.

"What I faced was what Sid faced when Eddie Sachs was killed in a race," Page said, describing his first time on the air during the opening of time trials when he eulogized Colins.

"You have to tell people about death. Some told me to record it, but I refused. I wanted Sid to be proud of it, wherever he was listening."

PAGE'S INTEREST in the 500 dates back to his childhood when he heard his first race in Germany, where his father was stationed in the Army. As a teen, he ran away from home to go to the race.

For the past three years, he's been part of the race broadcast team, stationed in the north pits. He thinks his feeling for the race will be the biggest noticeable change.

"Sid brought a great dignity to the race. He was very polite. However, I've been out in the North 40, (the place where infield patrons park the night before the race) and I've been in the Snakepit (turn number one on the infield). I hope to relate to the fans more."

Collins and Page were very close, so the death of Collins, who'd been the Speedway Voice for 29 years, hit him especially hard.

"HE HAD INDICATED to me for some time that he wanted me to take over but I didn't believe it would happen. But we didn't want him to quit. With his illness we felt that if he gave up the race, he's be giving up everything."

"We knew that suicide was a real possibility and myself and another friend had been taking turns the past few weeks before his death, staying with Sid and keeping his spirits up. It (Collins' disease) scared him to death. He didn't want to die paralized."

Page was probably closest to Collins, whose only living relative was an elderly mother. He took over the funeral arrangements and also the packing up of Collins' belongings.

"It was incredible. Sid was very well off financially but all he had was a few sticks of furniture an mementos from the race. The man knew everybody. We found pictures signed by presidents. The race was Sid's whole life.

"THE DISEASE Sid had was very hard to diagnose, but the post mortem proved he was right. He had the disease in a very advanced state and might not have lived to race day."

Another change Page has planned is more immediacy. Collins would often be up to 10 laps behind in reporting the race. He also would report in the past tense, saying things like, "Unser was losing speed when he came by here a few moments ago," instead of: "Unser's car is losing speed as he goes by."

"During the broadcasts of time trials Sid would tape the spots and back them all together for the 30-minute show. We did the whole thing live.

"But there won't be that many changes. Many of the staff turned in tentative resignations when I got the job so 'I could hire my own people,' but I told them don't be silly, we have a race in 28 days.

"SID COLINS was a very creative man. I'd be crazy to mess around too much with everything. I'm just adjusting things to my life style.

"So many people used to come up to Sid and tell him they had come to the race after hearing him on the radio. "I'm here to see this rac because you made it come alive for me."

Perhaps the biggest change is adjusting to the change from helicopter reporter to honcho at the Speedway.

"I'm used to running my own equipment but now I have to be careful I don't offend anyone. I looked up a statistic the other day during a broadcast and found out later I hurt someone's feelings. It was HIS job to look that up."

"Soon after I got the job I walked up to the tower, but a guard stopped me at the door and said I couldn't go up. 'It was for Speedway Radio Network personnel only,' he said."

Janet's car qualifies; Indy field complete

the first driver to do so this year. When she rolled into the pits to the cheers of thousands of fans, she broke into a wide grin. She embraced and kissed her car owner, Rolla Vollstedt, and Simon, her teammate who also qualified later Sunday.

"The car worked beautifully," she said. "It felt awfully good. I was thinking 'no mistakes.' The track was fantastic and I didn't notice the wind.

"I DON'T THINK the crash affected me. I think I could have qualified Saturday, but then we had more of our typical luck — the turbocharger fell off the car."

Guthrie was first in line to be qualified Sunday and she put her foot into it.

"Qualifying at Indianapolis is a major accomplishment in any race driver's career," she said.

"As for the symbolism of having women race drivers, the fact I'm now in the '500' should be proof there's no difference between men and women as race drivers. I think that's a good thing."

LAST YEAR was "very stressful" for her, Guthrie said, because of "initial hostility that women can't do it."

"I had faith in the sportsmanship of USAC drivers and I'm not aware of any hostility now," she said. "Most of the drivers have been very helpful."

Vollstedt said there had been skepticism that Guthrie's attempt to make this year's race was a publicity stunt.

"I think we answered that without any question," he said. A relaxed Guthrie nodded, smilingly.

"I feel as if the pressure is off for now," she said. "We intend to celebrate for a while."

Slew faces grueling Belmont

BALTIMORE (UPI)—It now appears the biggest obstacle to Seattle Slew's becoming the first undefeated Triple Crown champion is the Independent Association of Mutuel Employees at Belmont Park.

Karen and Mickey Taylor's Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner was vanned from Pimlico to Belmont Park Sunday morning, but a strike by the mutuel clerks has halted racing there.

New York Racing Assn. officials acknowledge the strike could be a lengthly one, but are confident the Belmont Stakes will be run as scheduled June 11.

THE 1½-MILE FINAL jewel of the Triple Crown has been a dream-shattering experience for the owners of seven Kentucky Derby and Preakness winners.

But Seattle Slew seems to have everything going in his favor for the Belmont Stakes. His 1½-length victory over Iron Constitution seems to have convinced most of his skeptics the 3-year-old colt's perfect record is no fluke.

Consequently, a small field is expected for the Belmont and it appears Seattle Slew will not have a For The Moment or Cormorant challenging him for the early lead.

Only nine horses have won the Triple Crown and Secretariat is the only one to accomplish the feat in the past 29 years, but none have done it with an undefeated record. Majestic Prince entered the 1969 Belmont with victories in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness and a perfect record but was beaten by Arts And Letters in the Belmont.

THE OTHER six Derby and Preakness winners to fail in the Belmont were Pensive, Tim Tam, Carry Back, Northern Dancer, Kauai King, Forward Pass and Canonero II.

Although Seattle Slew is assured racing immortality by winning the Triple Crown with an unbeaten record, trainer Billy Turner was putting on reporters Sunday about possibly running his colt against three-time Horse of the Year Forego in the Metropolitan Mile prior to the Belmont.

The curly-haired 37-year-old gave a lengthly dissertation on the logic behind entering the Metropolitan, but later admitted, "I was just having fun."

Certainly he has plenty of reasons for having fun this spring, but the pressure has been tremendous and he says so.

"IT'S TOUGH training an unbeaten horse," Turner said after his Preakness victory. And, looking forward to the Belmont, he added, "But now this makes it that much tougher."

Three of Seattle Slew's Preakness victims are expected to try him one more time.

Runnerup Iron Constitution, a 30-1 Preakness shot, closed stringly under jockey Jorge Yelasquez to earn his Belmont start.

Run Dusty Run, the Kentucky Derby runnerup and third in the Preakness, also may take one more crack at Slew, but trainer Smiley Adams said he would wait a week before making his decision and the colt was flown back to Churchill Downs Sunday.

Adams strongly criticized jockey Darrel McHargue fir his ride on Run Dusty Run in the Preakness and was not about to take back anything he said. "Damn it, I meant it," he said. "He (McHargue) lost a lot of ground on the first turn, had him up and took him back, on the outside in the backstretch and then dropped him into the rail in the stretch."

ADAMS DID NOT mind reporters speculating about his switching to Steve Cauthen if Run Dusty Run is entered in the Belmont.

Cauthen rode some of Adams' horses last summer and the veteran trainer said, "Everything I rode him on finished on the board."

Also waiting for Slew at Belmont Park is Darby Dan Farm's Sanhedrin, a fast-closing third in the Kentucky Derby. Another possible starter taking a shot at destroying Seattle Slew's Triple Crown aspirations is Spirit Level, owned by Penny (Tweedy) Ringquist, who owned Secretariat.

Seattle Slew, ridden by Jean Cruguet, paid $2.80, $2.80 and $2.20 after covering the 1 3-16 mile Preakness distance in 1:54 2-5.

CATCH ME, if you can, Seattle Slew, with jockey Jean Cruguet aboard, thunders home by 1 ½ lengths to win the Preakness Stakes, thoroughbred racing's middle jewel of the Triple Crown. Seattle Slew will attempt to become the only horse in history to win the Triple Crown unbeaten when he enters the Belmont Stakes June 11.

Ray Meyer to talk at St. Viator banquet

Ray Meyer, Head Coach of the DePaul University basketball team, will be the guest speaker at the first annual Sports Banquet sponsored by the St. Viator's Father's Club.

The dinner will honor all of the varsity athletes and coaches on Wednesday, May 25, at the Lancer Restaurant, 50 East Algonquin Road (Rt. 62), in Schaumburg. The public is invited to make reservations for the banquet by calling Bill Pirman, Athletic Director at St. Viator High School (392-4050), or they may purchase tickets at the door that night.

The cost for the festivities to begin at 6:30 p.m. is $10.

Buffalo Grove girls capture North

The waiting is over for Buffalo Grove in girls softball. But Schaumburg, Forest View and Schaumburg must still sweat it out.

Buffalo Grove wrapped up the Mid-Suburban league North crown over the weekend with a 10-1 win over Wheeling. The South title is still up for grabs and depends upon the outcome of the Prospect - Schaumburg game today.

Prospect, Forest View and Schaumburg all have a chance to win the South which hinges on the one game. Prospect is 5-0 in league play and a win would wrap it up for the Knights. Forest View has completed its season at 5-1. Schaumburg is 4-1. A win by Schaumburg today would eliminate Prospect and give the title to either Forest View or Schaumburg due to a complicated formula based on the score of the game.

Prospect 13-1 on the season, will have the added burden of sectional play. The Knights open in the Des Plaines sectional tomorrow against 11-3 Downers Grove South. So the Knights won't be able to let up today and think about Tuesday.

Another area team opens sectional play today. Hersey (11-7) will play Grant High School (13-0) at the Wheeling Sectional. All sectional contests are at 4:30 p.m.

The Mid-Suburban League title game, originally scheduled for Tuesday, has been postponed. No date has been set for the game, which possibly will be played Thursday or Friday.

The game was scratched because of the possibility that Prospect might win the MSL South and must play in the sectionals that day.

Tally Ho closes

The Tally Ho Country Club in Vernon Hills may soon be closing down permanently. The 109-acre course, purchased in 1974 by Edelberg-Mayer and Associates, has had a scheduled opening date of April 15 the last several years, but only minimal maintenance work is being done. Otherwise, the course appears abandoned.

Edelberg-Mayer originally purchased Tally-Ho to develop a housing project around the course and renovate the course itself.

by BOB GALLAS

INDIANAPOLIS — Move over, Walter Mitty. Paul Page has taken over the catbird seat.

Page is a 31-year-old Highland Park High School graduate who is the new voice of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway network, replacing Sid Collins. An Indianapolis radio reporter who's been spending his days lately in a helicopter high above the city giving traffic reports, Page has been thrust into the worldwide spotlight and is still scratching his head in wonderment.

When Page speaks on race day, 100 million people will be listening.

"IT'S KINDA funny," he mused, while waiting for the helicopter to pick him up at the track and take him aloft for an afternoon radio shift.

Defending 500 champ Johnny Rutherford will start this year's race from back in the seventh row, so he's working hard. See photos, Sect. 4, Page 4.

"This all happened so fast. People are calling me 'sir' who wouldn't even return my phone calls three weeks ago."

Page was Collins' personal choice to succeed him as the anchorman for the largest radio network in the world. But Collins, despondent over the fact that he was suffering from a terminal illness, hanged himself a month ago and Page was soon thrust into the position under circumstances that were trying at best.

"What I faced was what Sid faced when Eddie Sachs was killed in a race," Page said, describing his first time on the air during the opening of time trials when he eulogized Colins.

"You have to tell people about death. Some told me to record it, but I refused. I wanted Sid to be proud of it, wherever he was listening."

PAGE'S INTEREST in the 500 dates back to his childhood when he heard his first race in Germany, where his father was stationed in the Army. As a teen, he ran away from home to go to the race.

For the past three years, he's been part of the race broadcast team, stationed in the north pits. He thinks his feeling for the race will be the biggest noticeable change.

"Sid brought a great dignity to the race. He was very polite. However, I've been out in the North 40, (the place where infield patrons park the night before the race) and I've been in the Snakepit (turn number one on the infield). I hope to relate to the fans more."

Collins and Page were very close, so the death of Collins, who'd been the Speedway Voice for 29 years, hit him especially hard.

"HE HAD INDICATED to me for some time that he wanted me to take over but I didn't believe it would happen. But we didn't want him to quit. With his illness we felt that if he gave up the race, he's be giving up everyting."

"We knew that suicide was a real possibility and myself and another friend had been taking turns the past few weeks before his death, staying with Sid and keeping his spirits up. It (Collins' disease) scared him to death. He didn't want to die paralized."

Page was probably closest to Collins, whose only living relative was an elderly mother. He took over the funeral arrangements and also the packing up of Collins' belongings.

"It was incredible. Sid was very well off financially but all he had was a few sticks of furniture an mementos from the race. The man knew everybody. We found pictures signed by presidents. The race was Sid's whole life.

"THE DISEASE Sid had was very hard to diagnose, but the post mortem proved he was right. He had the disease in a very advanced state and might not have lived to race day."

Another change Page has planned is more immediacy. Collins would often be up to 10 laps behind in reporting the race. He also would report in the past tense, saying things like, "Unser was losing speed when he came by here a few moments ago," instead of: "Unser's car is losing speed as he goes by."

"During the broadcasts of time trials Sid would tape the spots and back them all together for the 30-minute show. We did the whole thing live.

"But there won't be that many changes. Many of the staff turned in tentative resignations when I got the job so 'I could hire my own people,' but I told them don't be silly, we have a race in 28 days.

"SID COLINS was a very creative man. I'd be crazy to mess around too much with everything. I'm just adjusting things to my life style.

"So many people used to come up to Sid and tell him they had come to the race after hearing him on the radio. "I'm here to see this rac because you made it come alive for me."

Perhaps the biggest change is adjusting to the change from helicopter reporter to honcho at the Speedway.

"I'm used to running my own equipment but now I have to be careful I don't offend anyone. I looked up a statistic the other day during a broadcast and found out later I hurt someone's feelings. It was HIS job to look that up."

"Soon after I got the job I walked up to the tower, but a guard stopped me at the door and said I couldn't go up. 'It was for Speedway Radio Network personnel only,' he said."

the first driver to do so this year. When she rolled into the pits to the cheers of thousands of fans, she broke into a wide grin. She embraced and kissed her car owner, Rolla Vollstedt, and Simon, her teammate who also qualified later Sunday.

"The car worked beautifully," she said. "It felt awfully good. I was thinking 'no mistakes.' The track was fantastic and I didn't notice the wind.

"I DON'T THINK the crash affected me. I think I could have qualified Saturday, but then we had more of our typical luck — the turbocharger fell off the car."

Guthrie was first in line to be qualified Sunday and she put her foot into it.

"Qualifying at Indianapolis is a major accomplishment in any race driver's career," she said.

"As for the symbolism of having women race drivers, the fact I'm now in the '500' should be proof there's no difference between men and women as race drivers. I think that's a good thing."

LAST YEAR was "very stressful" for her, Guthrie said, because of "initial hostility that women can't do it."

"I had faith in the sportsmanship of USAC drivers and I'm not aware of any hostility now," she said. "Most of the drivers have been very helpful."

Vollstedt said there had been skepticism that Guthrie's attempt to make this year's race was a publicity stunt.

"I think we answered that without any question," he said. A relaxed Guthrie nodded, smilingly.

"I feel as if the pressure is off for now," she said. "We intend to celebrate for a while."

POLIO VICTIM Jack Smith confirms details on the White House conference on Handicapped individuals. Smith, conference director, said the five-day gathering will not depend on "emotionalism."

1,800 meet Carter on handicaps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 1,800 people suffering from cancer, strokes, cerebral palsy and other disabling conditions journey to Washington this week to hear from President Carter and highlight their problems for the public.

Carter will speak to the group Monday at the opening of a five-day White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals.

Some 900 able-bodied persons will join 1,800 handicapped individuals at the conference in what may be the largest meeting ever of disabled persons.

The aim of the conference is to create a public awareness of problems confronting the 35 million Americans afflicted with physical and mental disabilities.

DISABLED DELEGATES, alternates and observers represent more than 25 handicapping conditions including cancer, stroke, spinal cord injury, diabetes, cerebral palsy and "little person" — a condition which limits physical growth.

To accommodate special needs of the handicapped persons, the hotel housing the conference spent more than $75,000 on wheelchair ramps, low telephones, wider bathroom stalls and sensitivity training for employes, a hotel official said.

Jack Smith, a polio victim and executive director of the conference, said the gathering will not depend on "emotionalism."

Smith said he will tell the 800 voting delegates who draft recommendations to the President and Congress that "a new door is open" for handicapped persons but they must go through it warily.

"THERE ARE some people just waiting for you to stumble," Smith said. "I can almost hear their words. "They want their rights, but they won't accept their responsibilities' ".

Jobs and transportation will be major conference issues.

Among the delegates are disabled persons who recently picketed the White House and Health, Education and Welfare Sec. Joseph A. Califano Jr.

The group also occupied a government building in San Francisco for 25 days before Califano signed a regulation designed to ease the problems of handicapped persons as they move through society.

Carter, who pledged "my administration's full cooperation and support" of the conference, said in a message, "I salute those who will participate in (the) deliberations and encourage other Americans to become actively involved in the priority task of assisting handicapped people to achieve full equality and opportunity for self-fulfillment in our society."

'Flying Chaplain' rabbi dead at 69

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rabbi Harold Gordon, executive vice president of the New York Board of Rabbis for the past 31 years, died Saturday night of a heart attack, it was announced Sunday. He was 69.

A spolesman for the board, the largest rabbinical organization in the world, said Gordon died in Lenox Hospital about 9 p.m.

Mayor Abraham Beame said in a statement, "There are, of course, no words to adequately express my deep sorrow over the death of Rabbi Gordon, a distinguished New Yorker and devoted friend."

Gordon was known as the "flying chaplain" during World War II when he flew over 250,000 miles to conduct services at military bases while attached to the North Atlantic Division of the Air Transport Command.

Death of singer's former wife probed

GRANADA HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — The coroner's office Sunday was investigating the death of Colleen Rodgers, 40, former wife of folk singer Jimmie Rodgers, who died en route to a hospital after falling unconscious at her home.

Authorities said Mrs. Rodgers, who was divorced from the singer in 1970 after a 13-year marriage, was found unconscious at the house Friday by her 13-year-old son, Michael.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Granada Hills Hospital.

Coroner's officials said the cause of death was not immediately known, but Mrs. Rodgers had a history of an ailment that had once caused her a serious fall and resulted in a fractured spine.

Investigators said the woman's death may have been from natural causes.

Rodgers, who recorded such hits as "Honeycomb" and "Kisses Sweeter than Wine" during the early 1950s, married his wife in Portland, Ore., in 1957.

POLIO VICTIM Jack Smith confirms details on the White House conference on Handicapped individuals. Smith, conference director, said the five-day gathering will not depend on "emotionalism."

1,800 meet Carter on handicaps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 1,800 people suffering from cancer, strokes, cerebral palsy and other disabling conditions journey to Washington this week to hear from President Carter and highlight their problems for the public.

Carter will speak to the group Monday at the opening of a five-day White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals.

Some 900 able-bodied persons will join 1,800 handicapped individuals at the conference in what may be the largest meeting ever of disabled persons.

The aim of the conference is to create a public awareness of problems confronting the 35 million Americans afflicted with physical and mental disabilities.

DISABLED DELEGATES, alternates and observers represent more than 25 handicapping conditions including cancer, stroke, spinal cord injury, diabetes, cerebral palsy and "little person" — a condition which limits physical growth.

To accommodate special needs of the handicapped persons, the hotel housing the conference spent more than $75,000 on wheelchair ramps, low telephones, wider bathroom stalls and sensitivity training for employes, a hotel official said.

Jack Smith, a polio victim and executive director of the conference, said the gathering will not depend on "emotionalism."

Smith said he will tell the 800 voting delegates who draft recommendations to the President and Congress that "a new door is open" for handicapped persons but they must go through it warily.

"THERE ARE some people just waiting for you to stumble," Smith said. "I can almost hear their words. "They want their rights, but they won't accept their responsibilities' ".

Jobs and transportation will be major conference issues.

Among the delegates are disabled persons who recently picketed the White House and Health, Education and Welfare Sec. Joseph A. Califano Jr.

The group also occupied a government building in San Francisco for 25 days before Califano signed a regulation designed to ease the problems of handicapped persons as they move through society.

Carter, who pledged "my administration's full cooperation and support" of the conference, said in a message, "I salute those who will participate in (the) deliberations and encourage other Americans to become actively involved in the priority task of assisting handicapped people to achieve full equality and opportunity for self-fulfillment in our society."

'Flying Chaplain' rabbi dead at 69

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rabbi Harold Gordon, executive vice president of the New York Board of Rabbis for the past 31 years, died Saturday night of a heart attack, it was announced Sunday. He was 69.

A spolesman for the board, the largest rabbinical organization in the world, said Gordon died in Lenox Hospital about 9 p.m.

Mayor Abraham Beame said in a statement, "There are, of course, no words to adequately express my deep sorrow over the death of Rabbi Gordon, a distinguished New Yorker and devoted friend."

Gordon was known as the "flying chaplain" during World War II when he flew over 250,000 miles to conduct services at military bases while attached to the North Atlantic Division of the Air Transport Command.

Death of singer's former wife probed

GRANADA HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — The coroner's office Sunday was investigating the death of Colleen Rodgers, 40, former wife of folk singer Jimmie Rodgers, who died en route to a hospital after falling unconscious at her home.

Authorities said Mrs. Rodgers, who was divorced from the singer in 1970 after a 13-year marriage, was found unconscious at the house Friday by her 13-year-old son, Michael.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Granada Hills Hospital.

Coroner's officials said the cause of death was not immediately known, but Mrs. Rodgers had a history of an ailment that had once caused her a serious fall and resulted in a fractured spine.

Investigators said the woman's death may have been from natural causes.

Rodgers, who recorded such hits as "Honeycomb" and "Kisses Sweeter than Wine" during the early 1950s, married his wife in Portland, Ore., in 1957.

No holding back for defending Indy champ Rutherford

Waiting to go out, an umbrella helps beat the heat.

Rutherford gets a few last minute instructions from a member of the pit crew before taking his car No. 2 out onto the track for a practice run.

A burning hot day in Indianapolis.

Defending "500" champ Johnny Rutherford has already qualified for the May 29th race, but back in the middle of the pack, so he knows it won't be easy come race day.

So the popular driver spent his days sweating out the 90-degree heat last week preparing for the race.

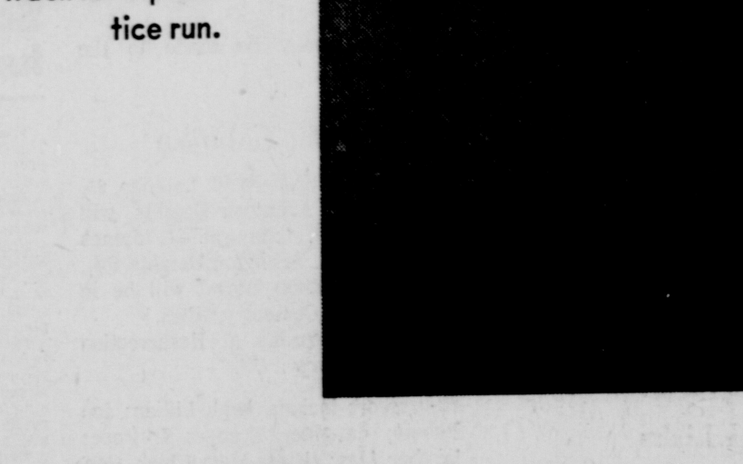

Wrapped in sweltering protective clothing, Rutherford sits patiently waiting to take his turn on the track as his crew checks tires, fel and mechanical points. Then he's off, into the world of speed close to 200-miles-per-hour.

A few laps run, it's into the pits for further checking and adjustments, then back out for yet more runs.

It's all in a day's work.

Signing autographs.

Rutherford's wife, Betty, looks on.
